A. F. L. Drafts Firm Refusal Of C. I. O. Plan For Harmony

Autonomous Unit Would Get Reins

By William V. Nessly.

The American Federation of Labor, confronted with a demand that, in effect, it turn over control of the union labor movement in America to the Committee for Industrial Organization, last night prepared to strike back.

A. F. of L. delegates to the peace conference, under way here, seeking to reunite the two great houses of labor, for hours studied the C. I. O. peace terms and worked on drafting their rejection and their own proposal of conditions for settlement.

Autonomous C. I. O. Branch.

In surprising fashion, the C. I. O. delegates opened yesterday morning's session by presenting these proposals to their adversaries:

That the A. F. of L. approve as a basic policy organization on industrial lines solely of workers in the mass production, marine, public utilities, service and basic fabricating industries.

That the C. I. O. comprise, within the Federation, a C. I. O. department, completely autonomous, operating under its own constitution and directed by its own officers. It would have sole jurisdiction over organizing workers in the industries listed and over any matter affecting its affiliated unions.

That a national convention of the combined organizations be called to ratify the plan and work out rules for its operation.

So sudden and so startling in nature was the proposal that the conference took an immediate adjournment until today, omitting the afternoon session that had been expected. The federation committee of three went to the A. F. of L. Building and there went into conference with William Green, federation president.

Refused Explanation.

Earlier, upon adjournment of the morning conference, the federation committee, headed by George M. Harrison, had said in a statement:

"The proposal submitted by the C. I. O. is in such broad terms that we are unable to give any statement in respect to the proposal at this time.

"We sought an explanation of the proposal but were unable to get any helpful information from the committee of the C. I. O. this morning. The conference adjourned to meet again tomorrow, at which time we anticipate we shall be prepared to issue a statement on the proposal of the C. I. O."

Philip Murray, leader of the ten-man C. I. O. committee said:

"We have recessed to meet tomor-

House Hearing Opens Today to Draft Farm Bill

By Robert C. Albright.

With crop restriction and tax features still wide open, preliminary skirmishing on the Administration's ever normal granary and surplus control program will open this morning behind the closed doors of a House Agriculture committee room.

Co-operation with Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace in efforts to draft a bill before Congress convenes November 15, Chairman Marvin Jones of the House group moved while Senate sub-committees were still in the field tapping farm sentiment.

Indications last night were that the first showdown on the President's No. 1 item of special session business may come in the House, instead of the Senate. Chairman Ellison D. Smith, of the Senate Committee, has said no farm bill will be ready for the Senate before December.

No Witnesses Called.

Jones said no witnesses had been summoned for this morning's executive meeting, but various farm authorities will be called later as information is needed. House committeemen will report informally on individual studies of farm conditions during the Congressional recess. Secretary Wallace will not be present.

Jones declined to discuss controversial compulsory control or tax proposals, or to forecast what form the program will take.

"But we are going to draft a bill," he said.

Lacking any agreement to date among the three major farm organi-

Montague Wins Liberty; Judge Assails Verdict

By the Associated Press.

Elizabethtown, N. Y., Oct. 26.—John Montague, fabulous Hollywood golfer, was acquitted tonight by an Adirondack Mountain jury of a seven-year-old charge of robbing a New York roadhouse.

He told the jury:

"This verdict was not in accord with what I think you should have returned."

"He selfishly basked in the glittering lights of Hollywood while his poor old mother, back home, wondered where he was," District Attorney Thomas W. McDonald told an all-male jury of mountain folk. "He never even as much as sent her a card at Christmas time in the seven years he was away."

Chief Defense Counsel James M. Noonan shouted:

"If you ever convict this man, you must believe a squeamish, perjuring mug against the testimony of the delightful woman who is the defendant's mother."

The mother, Mrs. Mary Moore, of Syracuse, N. Y., said her son was in bed the night of the robbery.

Montague chuckled as he answered "yes" to his counsel's query if he hadn't "once been fined $5 for stealing cherries."

Hollywood, Oct. 26 (AP).—John Montague is coming back to Hollywood for an ambitious seven-year program as a film actor, radio entertainer and professional golfer expected to pay him $1,000,000 under a contract with Everett Crosby, Bing's older brother.

Bankers See President on '50 Subjects'

Roosevelt Evades Saying They Conferred on Stock Market.

Morgenthau and Bell to Talk Budget on Friday.

By the Associated Press.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 26.—Men concerned with big business trouped through President Roosevelt's study today, but he said that to tie them together in connection with the current stock market situation would be creating news.

The President made that declaration at a press conference after he had received William O. Douglas and Joseph P. Kennedy, present and former chairman, respectively, of the Securities and Exchange Commission; Paul Shields, the New York banking house of Shields & Co.; James H. Perkins, chairman of the board of the National City Bank of New York, and Roy W. Howard, newspaper publisher.

Public Affairs Covered.

Asked if the stock market was discussed at any of the various conferences, Mr. Roosevelt said that the whole gamut of public affairs was covered and that probably 50 subjects were discussed.

The President announced that Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Daniel Bell, budget director, would talk budget and farm program financing with him here Friday evening.

Asked about Secretary Morgenthau's statement yesterday that he could not see how any one could tell at this time whether next year's budget could be balanced, Mr. Roosevelt asserted that was perfectly correct.

He said also that his own statements in that regard were correct: that he hoped and expected to bring the budget in balance during the fiscal 12 months that begins July 1.

Question Is Evaded.

The President was asked about a report that Secretary Morgenthau was planning to resign. One reporter said the report came from Wall Street, another that it had been used by a newspaper columnist.

The President commented that columnists and Wall Street rumors were about equal.

Answering a reporter's question, Douglas said he had nothing to say "right now" about the stock market, but added:

"We may have something before long—we may as a matter of routine and check-up."

The "we," he said, referred to his commission and the "check-up" to "the general financial situation."

Kennedy asserted he told the President a maritime survey, expected to be completed next week, would be "extremely controversial."

White House aides announced tonight that President Roosevelt would speak over the radio Sunday evening, November 14, from Washington on the new unemployment census. The census is to begin November 16.

Hoover Asks Fusion Under G.O.P. Ideals

Urges Coalition Party.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Oct. 26.—A coalition of anti-New Dealers is "devoutly to be wished for," Herbert Hoover said tonight in calling on the Republican Party first to draft a declaration of principles around which the foes of the Roosevelt Administration could rally.

The former President, in a nationally broadcast address, both reiterated his call for an off-year national convention of G. O. P. leaders and asserted flatly that he himself did not "want any public office." He made the assertion, he added, "just to keep the air clean."

He spoke from a raised platform before a dinner of the Republican Club of Massachusetts.

Address Unfinished.

He bowed himself off the air with nearly 800 words of his prepared address still to be spoken for lack of time.

"Those who have been listening on the radio will have to read their newspapers," he said.

He departed from his prepared text only once, to hit again at those who opposed the calling of a national convention next year.

"There is talk of letting the drafting of such a declaration of policy wait until the 1940 national convention," he interpolated.

"It should be remembered that a national convention is busy chiefly with selecting a candidate. You cannot send 48 men and women into a room at 9:30 at night and tell them to draft a platform before 9:30 in the morning and still expect to obtain a satisfactory result. Particularly is this so when the platform drafters are besieged by lobbyists from the corridors outside.

Coalition Invited.

He warned the Republican Party against trying to win elections by "joyriding on mistakes," and added:

"There is talk of fusion and coalition. Let me make but one remark on that. It is a result devoutly to be wished for. But the people fuse or coalesce around ideas and ideals,

New Chieftains of U. S. Steel

EDWARD R. STETTINIUS.

U. S. Steel Pays $1 on Common; Taylor, Irvin to Give Up Reins

Stockholders Other Than Preferred to Get First Dividend in 5 Years; Younger Men to Take Over Control of Huge Industry.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 26.—Directors of the $2,000,000,000 United States Steel Corporation today ordered a $1-a-share distribution to common stockholders of $8,700,000—the first common dividend in five and one-half years—and moved to turn over the management of its vast steel empire to younger hands.

Tall, stern 63-year-old Myron C. Taylor reviewed his ten-year program of sweeping changes in financial and physical structure and in operating personnel of the world's biggest steel maker, and announced he would turn over the chief executive office—the chairmanship—to 38-year-old Edward Stettinius, jr., next April 4.

At the same time, the directors took the official steps to place 47-year-old Benjamin Fairless in the presidency—chief operating executive position—next January 1, succeeding silver-haired William A. Irvin, who also is 63.

Steel's Answer to Trend.

Announcement of the momentous steps in steel history came to Wall Street as "big steel's" answer to the current interruption in the sweeping industrial recovery of the past years.

Since common dividends were suspended by United States Steel in March, 1932, Wall Street has waited almost breathlessly for announcements after each quarterly directors' meeting, particularly during the last year.

Simultaneously with announcement of the dividend, it was shown earnings had fallen off moderately in the third quarter of the year, the quarterly statement reporting a net profit of $30,617,638 for the three-month period, equal to $2.79 a common share. That was $5,556,044 under the profit for the three months ended last June 30, but was $16,981,461 above, or more than double, the net for the third quarter of 1936.

Silent on Business Outlook.

Officials of the company declined to comment on business outlook, the formal announcement merely showing that production in October had averaged 54 per cent of capacity, compared with 73.6 per cent for the entire three months ended September 30, and 88.4 per cent for the quarter ended June 30.

Inaugurating a vast program of change and development in the big United States Steel empire when he emerged from a premature retirement to become chairman of its finance committee in 1927, Taylor soon became chairman of the board of directors, and piloted the corporation through a decade of its most

The Duke of Windsor last night informed the Women's National Press Club that he and the duchess would not be able to attend a luncheon here next month.

The former British monarch, who signed his cablegram "Edward," told the club that "the schedule of our industrial tour is so full" that it was not possible to accept the invitation, even though it was for any time in November.

The cablegram also said that the duchess, the former Wallis Warfield, of Baltimore, could not accept a separate invitation for the club's annual banquet and stunt party in March, when Mrs. Roosevelt will be the guest of honor. The duke said their plans for that month are "very indefinite."

200 Watch Youth Plunge 85 Floors Off Empire State

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 26.—As 200 horrified sightseers watched, Arthur Magginson, colored WPA worker, plunged 85 stories to his death today from the observation platform of the Empire State Building—the world's highest building.

Suddenly the young man left the crowd, walked briskly to the 4-foot parapet and hurtled over. In falling, his body described an 85-foot outward arc, clearing 12-foot setbacks at the eighty-second and seventy-ninth floors and a 60-foot setback at the sixtieth floor.

Student Riots End In Egypt, Premier Yields to Boy King

Cairo, Egypt, Oct. 26 (AP).—All-day rioting among rival student political factions of the Egyptian State University died down tonight as a result of an audience in which Premier Mustapha Nahas Pasha virtually gave way to young King Farouk.

Nahas said King Farouk had convinced him the appointment of Ali Maher as the king's political adviser was not related to party politics.

Shanghai (Wednesday), Oct. 27.—Japanese bluejackets today captured the North Station, against which they hammered in vain for eight weeks, while the Chinese beat a general retreat from Chapei.

[Chinese troops have abandoned most of Shanghai, the United Press reported—Editor's note.]

The naval units fought their way into the station in the haze of dawn and at 6:15 a. m. the Rising Sun flag was raised above the shell-pocked terminal.

[All available ambulances in the Settlement were rushed to the points where Chinese civilians were felled by Japanese bombs. A United Press correspondent saw the refugees massed on Brennan road for 100 yards. Between three and four hundred were reported killed.

[Japanese bombers, working in relays of three, blasted the area around the Sungaing mill, driving refugees to the nearest barriers in a frenzy of fear. Settlement police and Ulster riflemen of the British defense forces used clubs and gun butts to prevent them from breaking through. Women and children were trampled underfoot.—Editor's note.]

British Fire on Plane.

British authorities reported a Japanese plane opened fire with its machine guns on British outposts in the vicinity of Jessfield Park.

British troops returned the fire with machine guns. Witnesses of the incident said they believed the plane had been hit.

Japan's forces also occupied the Kiangwan race course, just north of Shanghai, another long disputed sector of the north Shanghai front.

On the north bank of Soochow Creek, winding through the International Settlement opposite United States Marines and other foreign guards, Chinese soldiers could be seen hastily evacuating their Chapei dugouts and joining the straggling columns that fell back before the Japanese advance.

The backbone of the Chinese troops retreated in good order, unit by unit, most of them escaping

Navy 'at Home' Today to Draw Record Crowd to Capitol Yard

Annual observance of Navy Day is expected today in Washington to establish new records for variety and interest of program and in number of visitors who will inspect the Navy Yard where main exercises will be held. The yard will be open to the public from 8 a. m. to 5:14 p. m.

Both official and civilian participants in today's ceremonies will be heartened by a letter written yesterday by President Roosevelt to Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson. The President, who was Assistant Secretary of the Navy in the World War, always has had a deep affection for this branch of the military service.

He expressed belief, in the letter, that it was "entirely consistent" with readiness to limit armaments to "maintain a defense at sea sufficient to insure the preservation of our Democratic ideals and the maintenance of a righteous peace."

High spot of the ceremonies throughout the country today will be laying of the keel of the 35,000-ton North Carolina, the first bat-

Sulfanilamide Saves Virginia College Girl Facing Death Here From Spinal Meningitis

Student Rallies Speedily Following Treatment With Drug.

A pretty college student, snatched from almost certain death by prompt treatment with sulfanilamide was believed to be recovering from the dreaded cerebro-spinal meningitis last night in Providence Hospital.

Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, Washington physician in charge of the case, last night declared the "outlook is quite favorable."

Administration of sulfanilamide in conjunction with serum treatment brought her out of coma within a few hours after a positive diagnosis of meningitis was made here Sunday, Dr. Murphy said. Miss Trenis was unconscious upon her arrival at Providence Sunday, he said.

MISS JEANETTE TRENIS.

Meantime, authorities at the Fredericksburg institution are taking precautions against spread of the disease and to detect other possible cases as soon as symptoms appear.

Three students who shared dormitory quarters with the stricken girl, together with one of the teachers, received prophylactic treatment at Providence Hospital Sunday and remained overnight for observation, it was learned.

Tentative plans for prosecution of the Bristol, Tenn., pharmaceutical firm that manufactured and sold an "elixir of sulfanilamide" were disclosed yesterday at Washington headquarters of the Food and Drug Administration.

A preliminary hearing in Cincinnati probably will be scheduled soon, it was said, at which the company will be requested to show cause why it should not be charged with violation of Federal misbranding laws, with a maximum penalty, a $200 fine on each count.

3 Others and Teacher Brought to Hospital for Observation.

"So I told The President—"

"The presence of a Supreme Court justice at a party excites a warm glow in the aristocrat—even if the justice renders no important decision all evening. And it's stimulating to hear someone saying over the coffee, 'So I told the President'—even when it isn't possible to tell the President anything."

So says Harlan Miller in today's "Over the Coffee."

Memo to Mr. Miller: Next time pipe up and ask "What president?" It is very embarrassing.

Farley Makes Plea of Loyalty For Mahoney

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 26.—Postmaster General James A. Farley appealed tonight from the stump for Jeremiah T. Mahoney, Democratic candidate for Mayor of New York, bearing down hard on the theme of party faithfulness.

"The Democratic Party," he said in a prepared radio address ". . . has won the right to ask the loyalty of its members."

Election Day is November 2.

The Postmaster General did not seek to give Mahoney the blessing of the New Deal as such—although Clarence Low, of the State Democratic Party, had flatly called it "the opening gun . . . of the New Deal for Mahoney"—but he did pay high compliment to the candidate's "unswerving loyalty to the New Deal."

He asked especially for labor support, saying:

". . . I believe that labor should be united behind the candidacy of the standard bearer of the Democratic Party, Judge Mahoney. Not only appreciation for its past services, but a lively sense of what is best for you in the future should assure your support of the Democratic Party in the coming election. . . ."

"Having won your support by performance, it is entitled to ask of you now your unflinching loyalty. The Democratic Party did not forsake labor in labor's struggle for its rights. Labor should not forsake the Democratic Party."

The LaGuardia fusionists swore out warrants for 31 persons they claimed were illegally registered.

William C. Dodge, the retiring Democratic district attorney for Manhattan, speaking in behalf of the present party nominee, Harold Hastings, claimed his telephones were being tapped and that he himself was being "shadowed."

The whole tenor of his speech was an attack upon Thomas E. Dewey, the LaGuardia running mate for district attorney.

Granting of Permit For N.Y. Bund Fete Stir Protest Here

Action of authorities in New York City in granting permission to the German-American Bund for a parade in Manhattan Saturday was deplored yesterday in a statement issued by T. S. Wilcher, national welfare chairman of the Army and Navy Union.

"The German American Bund is one of the most vicious un-American organizations that we in this country have ever had to contend with," stated Wilcher, "and the parading of these storm troopers will only lead to serious disturbances that may very likely cause the loss of many innocent lives. He said "the Army and Navy Union has launched a campaign to have legislation passed that will not only prohibit such organizations to function in these United States, but will also provide for the cancellation of citizenship of naturalized citizens and their deportation as members and financial supporters of such movements as the bund, as well as providing for the imprisonment of native born citizens who take part in or support financially organizations that attack any citizen or citizens of the United States because of their race, creed or color."

Y.W.C.A. Reduces Its Call on Chest

In the face of steadily increasing service to girls and young women in the District, the Washington Y. W. C. A. is regularly getting less of its annual income from the Community Chest, Miss Hettie P. Anderson, executive secretary, said yesterday. She pointed out that 30,000 girls and young women received service of one sort or another last year.

"The Y. W. C. A.," she said, "has received a steadily decreasing proportion of its annual income from the Community Chest. This year it is asking for only 12 per cent of its income from the Chest, in spite of the fact that it is serving 6,000 more girls than it served last year."

Aiming for "a real democracy" in which young people of all classes and nationalities work and play together, Miss Anderson explained, there is no clear-cut line between free and pay services. At the Strong residence, she said, young working girls pay in proportion to their income. Some, who are earning $10 or $12 a week, pay only $11 a month for their room, while others who earn more pay as high as $26.

H. W. Austin Faces Problems Of 1907 in Bradbury Heights

H. W. AUSTIN.

By Christine Sadler.

Members of the Bradbury Heights Citizens Association find themselves in the same position today that some of the older associations were in 20 to 30 years ago—fighting for gas mains, sewers and transportation lines necessary to a "new and growing" part of the District.

Separated from the main part of Washington by the sparsely-bridged Anacostia, most of them have to pay two bus fares to get to work and all parents among them have to worry about school facilities.

An eight-room grammar school is a major objective of the group this year, according to the new president, Henry W. Austin—who was elected at the October meeting. There is no school in the association's territory.

Austin has first-hand information on the school question and is as interested in it personally as officially. In February, each of his three children will be going to a different school—all of them 3 miles from his home, he said. His daughter goes to a junior-senior high school in Anacostia. She has to pay two bus fares. The school was designed for 1,210 children and now has 1,325. The same overcrowding exists in all schools available to the area, Austin has found.

"There are 250 homes in the Bradbury Heights area. This gives us a population of more than 1,000. Numerous new houses and apartments are going up. We have no community hall or place other than a church in which to hold our meetings. We are getting a gas extension this year after fighting for it a long time, and we have the more important fire alarm box we needed.

"But we need a contract postoffice station, since the nearest branch to us is in Benning, 1½ miles away. We want Ridge road improved. We are fighting for a main sewer line, which is needed for future development. Personally, I am interested in bringing express service out here.

"The Benning Street Bridge is swell, but a new bridge across Pennsylvania avenue is badly needed. Personally, I would like to see a bridge extended across from Massachusetts avenue first, but I suppose the Pennsylvania avenue thoroughfare is most badly needed," Austin said.

The Bradbury Heights Association has approximately 100 members and is growing rapidly. As new homes are built Austin and his workers go out for new converts to the cause of organized citizenship.

Austin would like to have more statistics before he commits himself on the subject of District local suffrage.

Also, he would see more tax figures before condemning or praising any one system. He is sure, however, that no increase in the budget should be needed and that "the money available could be handled a little more efficiently."

Until the October election, Austin had been vice president of the association and was probably best known for the work he did with the Washington Chapter of the American Association of Engineers—of which he has been secretary since 1924.

He is a native of Mexico—New York—and a gradutae of Syracuse University. He arrived in Washington in 1921 by way of California, where his family moved several years ago. He was junior mechanical engineer in the regional office of the Interstate Commerce Commission, at San Francisco, coming here when the offices were consolidated. He is now with the Treasury Department.

Among his favorite recreations are walks with his family in Fort Dupont Park, near his home. Books are another one of his hobbies. Still another is visiting the Virginia battlefields on which his father fought as a member of the Yankee Army.

Landon Wants Rank and File Party Meeting

G. O. P. Leader Makes Gesture Toward Coalition of New Deal Foes.

By the Associated Press.

Topeka, Oct. 26.—Alfred M. Landon today insisted that if any midterm national Republican convention is held "that the rank and file of the party should be represented in the deliberations as well as in the consideration of any report on behalf of the policy committee."

Landon, the party's 1936 Presidential nominee, issued a statement after conferring with Chairman John D. M. Hamilton of the Republican National Committee.

Landon's statement said among other things that he had discussed "machinery for establishing the method of selection of delegates" for such an extraordinary meeting, but did not give any specifications, nor did it mention the plan Herbert Hoover has indorsed for assembling delegates.

Would Admit Other Foes.

The statement took cognizance of efforts to organize a coalition of anti-New Deal Democrats and Republicans, saying:

"Whatever may be done . . . should be to the end that it will afford an opportunity of expression for all groups in opposition to the Administration."

Before the meeting today, Hamilton had said the proposed convention would be "primarily for the rejuvenation of the party itself."

Reiterating that he favored the convention, Hamilton explained its function would be to "adopt a statement of policy and deal with such other concrete matters as come before us."

Cites 1920 Meeting.

A "policy committee," he said, "is not a new thing in the Republican Party. We had one in 1920 and the platform that was adopted that year largely was the work of the committee."

Commenting on the special session of the Congress, Hamilton said "the sooner we have it, the sooner we'll get it over with. God knows it has given everybody the jitters."

The calling of the special session, he said, is "indicative of what's the matter with the country today."

"One day an unofficial spokesman was saying that there would be no special session, and the next day another unofficial spokesman would say there would be.

"There would be some security if the people thought the President knew what he is going to do."

Hamilton said he believed the recent stock market flurries were attributable in part at least to the "uncertainty in Washington."

Pictures Through Windows in Rabbit's Ear Magnified 150,000 Times; Local and General Cold Applications Found Beneficial.

By the Associated Press.

Three startling developments in the unceasing war on cancer, which annually claims hundreds of thousands of Americans as its victims, were revealed yesterday.

The first motion pictures of cancer spreading through the body of an animal were presented in a world premiere before the National Academy of Sciences meeting in Rochester, N. Y., while two new tentative methods of treatment of the disease —"refrigeration" and "hibernation" —were announced to the American College of Surgeons in Chicago.

The movies, result of two years of intensive work, were exhibited by Dr. A. Gordon Ide and Dr. Stafford L. Warren, of the University of Rochester. They showed in color, cancer cells and fragments of the growth leaving the site where it had been planted, moving into the blood stream an dhurrying to infect other parts of the body.

Filmed in Rabbit's Ear.

Magnified 150,000 times on the screen, the pictures showed clearly the blood coursing through the tiny new veins and arteries which form around and within every cancerous growth. The scientists saw a break occur at the site of the cancer and particles of living cancer move swiftly into the blood.

Cancer penetrates veins and arteries only after injury to the wall of the blood vessel, Dr. Warren emphasized, but even a slight blow or pressure is sufficient to loose the poison. This fact may account, other investigators added, for the theory that irritation or a bruise causes cancer, whereas such damage is not the primary cause of the disease.

The "refrigerators"—thin-bladed, hollow knives with slender hollow tubes and little rounded "bombs"—were demonstrated to the college of surgeons by two Temple University scientists, Dr. Temple Fay and Dr. George C. Henny.

Results But no Cures.

The new medical tools, cooled by liquids of 50 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit running through their hollow interiors, are placed in or upon human cancers.

Result of a new principle of medicine, the idea that human cellular growth can be retarded by cold, the instruments have achieved remarkable results in relieving pain and reducing the size of cancers, but there have been no cures.

Dr. Fay described the treatment by "hibernation" as the process of lowering the temperature of the entire body a few degrees by treating three glands, the thyroid, pituitary and ovaries, with X-rays. Four human beings have been treated by hibernation and all still are alive. Dr. Fay described the treatment of one.

This was a woman who entered the hospital virtually blind. After a few weeks of the hibernation treatment she could see to read a newspaper. When she entered the hospital X-rays showed small cancers scattered about in torso and head. Today, nine months later, these cancers have disappeared from view of the X-rays.

State Labor Chiefs Weigh Wage Bill

The fourth annual conference on State labor legislation summoned by Secretary Perkins will be asked today to vote on a resolution indorsing the Administration's proposal to legislate minimum wages and maximum hours for workers in interstate industries.

The resolution was introduced at the conference yesterday by Robert J. Watt, secretary of the Massachusetts State Federation of Labor.

Besides indorsing a wage-hour law, one of the prime measures before the coming special session of Congress, the resolution also calls for administration of such a law by the Department of Labor with co-operation of the States.

The resolution advocates a wage-hour law for "sweated industries where interstate competition is a factor" on the grounds it will provide "essential basic underpinning to a sound social structure" and encourage enactment of similar State legislation.

Cotton Ginnings Show Large Rise

The Census Bureau reported yesterday that cotton of this year's growth ginned prior to October 18 totaled 11,068,319 running bales, compared with 8,598,476 to that date last year and 8,590,402 in 1935.

Round bales, counted as half bales, included totaled 186,174, compared with 148,827 for 1936 and 103,676 for 1935.

"When I tasted Four Roses I knew I'd found what I was hunting for—just about the grandest combination of virtues ever brought together in one whiskey. But tell me—how do you do it?"
I SAID
"Bob, what would the result be if you could combine in one pup the outstanding traits of the world's greatest hunting dogs?"
HE SAID
"A champ worth his weight in blue ribbons!"
I SAID
"So it is with Four Roses. You see, in making Four Roses we use several top-grade straight whiskies (and only straight whiskies!). Each of these whiskies is selected for some outstanding quality—aroma, body, smoothness, or flavor.
"By merging all these whiskies together, the way the years have taught us, we blend the virtues of them all in one liquor far superior to any one of them alone. That's why so many people agree with us that Four Roses is America's finest whiskey, regardless of age or price."

Tax Body Urges Using Pension Funds on Debt

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Oct. 26.—The National Tax Association's committee on social security legislation cited several possible dangers today in the millions of dollars accumulating in the old-age reserve account under the social security act.

The committee's report, submitted by its chairman, Prof. J. Roy Blough, of the University of Cincinnati, to the thirtieth annual conference on taxation, was discussed but not acted upon.

By 1980, it pointed out, the old-age reserve account would amount to $47,000,000,000 if allowed to accumulate as a full actuarial reserve—the proceeds from the pay roll and employers' taxes for old-age benefits, plus 3 per cent interest.

So much money, the committee warned, might tempt Congress to borrow from it to meet current expenses. The committee expressed hope the social security act would be amended to permit use of the reserve in retiring the public debt.

The committee suggested that instead of a full actuarial reserve, only a comparatively small amount be placed in the account for use when necessary and that old-age benefits be paid out of the general treasury.

Billion Already Taken.

By the Associated Press.

Uncle Sam already has borrowed almost a billion dollars from the Nation's wage earners under provisions of the social security act, Treasury ledgers showed yesterday.

In Treasury practice, tax collections under the security act flowed into the Government's general fund, or pool of ready cash. These collections are spent for day-to-day Government operations.

Against these collections, the Treasury deposits the special obligations in reserve accounts. These obligations in effect are promises to pay off old-age and unemployment benefits.

The obligations thus far have aggregated $916,000,000, and the Treasury is indebted to the country's workers in that amount.

Canada Is Active In Peace Efforts

New York, Oct. 26 (AP).—Sir Herbert Marler, Canadian Minister to the United States, asserted that Canada intended to do everything in its power to preserve the peace of the world.

Sir Herbert, addressing the Canadian Club of New York, stressed the importance of international trade to the Dominion's economic life, and said:

"Above all else we desire peace for ourselves as well as for the other nations of the world. We shudder at the thought of war or of participating in war."

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 26.—More than 100 employes of the Novick Transfer Co. have returned to work as a result of an agreement, which provides for a slight wage increase and shorter hours.

The contract was the result of a series of conferences between the truckers and Howard T. Colvin, of the conciliation board of the Department of Labor.

A. J. Novick, head of the transportation compar , stated that three weeks has been granted for the completion of adjustments made necessary by the change.

Brunet Business Student, 18, Selected as Halloween Queen

Miss Betty Lewis Chosen Among 27 Contestants to Rule Parade Saturday Night; Two Ladies in Waiting Are High School Pupils.

Miss Betty Lewis, 18-year-old brunette, will be queen of the Halloween parade here Saturday night. A student at Temple School, she was selected from 27 contestants who met yesterday afternoon in the office of the Greater National Capital Committee of the Board of Trade. She lives at 3107 Nineteenth street northwest.

The judges selected Betty Jones, 4818 Ninth street northwest, as the queen's first lady-in-waiting, and Carol Torreyson, 3008 R street northwest, as second lady-in-waiting. Both are 16 years old and represented the Playground Department in the contest. Both are high school students.

In the queen's court are Dorothy Keady, 1510 Thirty-fourth street northwest; Patricia Brewer, 1831 Twenty-third street northwest; Babbette Loch, 3644 Thirteenth street northwest; Jo Robertson, 209 Taylor street northwest; Ruby Jennings, 1527 Park road northwest; Evelyn Cheseldine, 487 I street southwest; Dorothy Parker, 29 Todd place northwest; Mrs. Jane Linton, 5922 Thirteenth street northwest; Jeane Hanlen, 533 Ninth street southeast, and Dorothy Sullivan, 1206 I street southwest.

Miss Lewis and her attendants will review the parade from a court of honor on Constitution avenue between Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets. The number of entrants in this year's contests is more than twice that of any previous Halloween, officials reported.

Judges of the contest were Miss Ella Werner, chairman of the Halloween queen committee; Mrs. Edna Knight Gasch, vice chairman; Robert Swope, president of the Rotary Club, and the dramatic critics of local newspapers.

Boatman Injured In Gas Explosion

Police said Myers and the owner of the boat, Duke Swann, of 479 F street southwest, had filled the engine with gasoline and started to leave the boat when they heard the blast and returned to fight the fire. Damage to the boat was estimated at $200.

Bodies of Three Found After N. Y. Plane Crash

Cowlesville, N. Y., Oct. 26 (AP).—A red-winged airplane crashed near here tonight, and farmers found in the wreckage the bodies of two men and part of a woman's body.

The coroner said the two men had been identified as Pilot Richard Babcock, 23, of St. Johns, Vt., and Austin Feuchtwanger, 27, of Riverside, Conn. The woman was believed to have been Feuchtwanger's mother.

Rep. Meade Loses Purse, Delays Hop Opening Air Line

The first plane on the new Washington-Baltimore-Buffalo air route was 20 minutes late in reaching its destination because Representative James A. Meade, of New York, lost his wallet.

After leaving Washington Airport on schedule the airliner was delayed in Baltimore when Representative Meade, chairman of the House Postoffice Committee, who was to board it there, discovered that his pocketbook had vanished.

Telephoning located it in the Pullman car in which he had ridden from Buffalo.

D. C. Police Chief Warns Pranksters There's a Limit

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, chief of police, glanced at his calendar yesterday and sighed, for the yearly night of headaches is drawing near. He called his secretary and dictated the following to all commanding officers:

"It is the wish of the department to lend its full co-operation to the general public in providing for a sane, reasonable and happy celebration over the week-end, in the course of which persons in their homes and on the streets may be free from unreasonable annoyance and insult, and property may be free from damage and destruction.

"Innocent pranks will be tolerated, but the ringing of doorbells, throwing of flour, the marking of automobiles and windows of buildings with chalk or other substances, indiscriminate use of ticklers and other such devices and rowdyism in its various forms, will under no condition be tolerated."

Lawyer Admits Using 'Dummy' Radio Station

Segal Explains Step Was to Keep Competition Away.

Paul M. Segal, widely-known radio attorney, who, with his partner, George S. Smith, are the principals in a disbarment hearing before the Federal Communications Commission, yesterday admitted that the Palmer Broadcasting Co. set up at the request of a client, was in effect a "dummy" concern.

On the stand throughout the day, Segal testified he represented the Congress Square Hotel Co., that operates radio station WCSH in Portland, Me.

He asserted that in 1932 an application for a second Portland station was filed by the Portland and Maine Publishing Co., and that WCSH wanted to keep out competition and maintain a monopoly on the field.

To this end, Segal stated, WRDO, at Augusta, Me., owned by his clients, sought to remove its station to Portland; that the New Hampshire Broadcasting Co., in an adjoining State, asked the FCC for power to increase its wave frequency so that it would be effective in the Portland field and that WCSH promptly intervened against this action because it held that it was giving sufficient service.

"If a new station comes in," the Portland station contended, "neither can make money enough to give good service that the city warrants."

As a consequence of these moves the application of the Portland & Maine Co. was denied.

In 1934, however, the Portland Broadcasting Co. was formed, Segal said, and made application for a new station which would be in direct competition with WCSH.

His clients, Segal admitted under cross-examination by special FCC counsel, Samuel Kaufman, realized that they could not repeat the moves they made two years before.

Permit Granted.

It was then that Segal said the Palmer Broadcasting Co. was formed. He admitted, under cross-examination, that its formation was for the purpose of keeping out competition, and identities of its owners were not revealed.

As part of the program to throttle competition, WCSH intervened against the Palmer application, as it had against the others, and in addition to this a firm named the Eastland Co., affiliated with WCSH, filed another Portland application for the same facilities as those the applying Portland Broadcasting Co. sought.

This time, however, the application of the Portland Broadcasting Co. was granted by the FCC.

Segal then testified that the Congress Square firm and the Eastland Co. appealed, and that the Palmer firm got a stay of the permit to the Portland Co. in the U. S. Court of Appeals.

About the time the appeal was granted, the Portland Co. filed an affidavit, charging the Palmer firm was a mere "dummy," so the Palmer people withdrew their application.

Bombing Raids On U. S. Feared By Air General

Andrews, Head of Headquarters Force, Asks More Planes.

A warning that the United States within the next five years may become vulnerable to air attack was voiced yesterday by Maj. Frank M. Andrews, Air Corps, U. S. Army, commander of the general headquarters air force.

Writing in Army ordnance, the publication of the Army Ordnance Association, he visualized aircraft of such tremendous cruising range and load capacity that this country will be "in a predicament somewhat similar to that in which all European countries now find themselves—with no air frontiers."

To provide proper defense against possible air attacks, the general counsels the construction of large numbers of bombing planes. These, he says, are "the chief means of meeting this air threat by destroying the bases of the enemy planes, either ashore, or on aircraft carriers. "Air attacks cannot be stopped by any means now known."

Praising the Army's new "flying fortress" as a "very flexible fighting machine," Gen. Andrews declared that such large airplanes could reinforce Alaska, Panama and Hawaii, from the United States, and "deny to an enemy any base he might attempt to seize."

He urged that no time be lost in bringing the General Headquarters Air Force, organized in 1935 as a highly mobile branch of the Army, up to requirements, placed by Army officials at 1,000 first line machines—double the number now in operation.

Calling for more trained men to fill key positions, Gen. Andrews emphasized that huge Army bombers have frequently been operated by "airplane commanders with far less flying experience than is required of even a co-pilot on a transport line."

Grin and Bear It — By Lichty

Contract Bridge

Simple Preparation.

When a player has two biddable suits and a hand of only moderate strength, he should bid his suits in such a way as to enable his partner to choose between them at the lowest possible level. When his hand is strong, however, he can afford to let his partner choose at a higher level. Thus, if a player opens the bidding with his lower ranking suit and at his next turn bids two of his higher ranking suit, he shows a strong hand. This "reverse" bid may compel his partner to return to the first suit at the level of three-odd, and, consequently, shows a hand which can safely stand a contract for nine tricks. Note how such a show of strength encouraged North, in the hand below, to make a strong bid, to suggest slam possibilities.

Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ A 10 9 6 ♡ 8 ◇ Q 10 7 ♣ A J 8 4 2
♠ 7 4 2 ♡ Q J 10 9 5 ◇ 8 4 3 ♣ 7 3	North West East South.	♠ 8 5 ♡ K 7 6 4 3 2 ◇ 9 2 ♣ K Q 6
	♠ K Q J 3 ♡ A ◇ A K J 6 5 ♣ 10 9 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
4 N T	Pass	5 N T	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

When South heard his partner's jump raise he naturally accepted the mild slam invitation. The four-five notrump convention quickly accounted for all the Aces, and South lost no time in bidding the small slam.

West opened the Queen of hearts, and South won with the Ace. Declarer had no difficulty in seeing that only in clubs was it possible to lose more than one trick. Apparently the contract could be made by two finesses in clubs, if only one of them should be successful. But South, being a careful player, went a step farther and played to insure the contract, even if East held both the King and Queen of clubs.

His first step was to draw three rounds of trumps. Next, declarer ran all of the diamonds, discarding two clubs from dummy. Now South could afford to lead the ten of clubs and let it ride around to East's Queen. East had only clubs and hearts left. A club return would go up to dummy's major tenace; a heart return would enable declarer to trump in one hand while discarding a club from the other.

Note that declarer would have lost his contract had he taken the first club finesse before stripping spades and diamonds from the East-West hands. East would have won with the Queen of clubs and exited with a trump, or a diamond, and then South would have had no play for his slam, since the other club finesse was bound to lose.

Home Address:

MAIN STREET, U.S.A.

IN THE showrooms of General Motors dealers everywhere the new 1938 automobiles of the General Motors family are now on display.

When you view these cars we believe you will find many fresh instances of the sound and steady progress which General Motors, since its inception, has sought to bring to automobile design.

You will note that new standards of performance have been set, and that new qualities have been added to the ride.

You will observe that improved appearance is uniformly characteristic of all our cars. Factors of safety, comfort and ease of operation have been enhanced through continuance and development of such features as Knee-Action, No Draft Ventilation and the Unisteel Turret Top Body by Fisher.

Each car in its field, we sincerely believe, represents a new high in utility and value.

* * *

Tonight, in Alabama, a cotton planter will go to bed quite unaware that he has helped to build an automobile.

A silver miner in Colorado, a cattle rancher in Wyoming, a sugar cane planter in Florida, a machine tool maker in Connecticut, will go about their daily lives feeling no part, perhaps, in the enterprise which is General Motors.

But the truth is, in every state in the Union, such men by the hundreds of thousands contribute to and reenforce the basis of General Motors merit.

For our products begin in the mines, mills, fields and factories of all America—in the raw materials there produced.

Before a single wheel turns in any GM plant, our purchases have already begun the process of moving money to Main Street—to the pockets of farmers, the tills of factories, to bank accounts from which many a pay roll is met.

* * *

But this is not the only way in which the products of General Motors are native to Main Street.

In recent years we have pursued a definite policy of decentralization—in order to create more jobs for more people in more places.

We have found that living costs go down and living standards up as industry is wider spread—that sometimes the opposite happens when industry is too closely massed.

We have learned that the problems of unemployment, seasonal or otherwise, are less acute when plants are broadly distributed—that both value and service to our buyers are enhanced, that our employes enjoy greater real wages and better, easier lives.

So we have sought to extend the benefit of General Motors investments, General Motors pay rolls and General Motors employment into many communities and many sections.

* * *

Today no less than thirty-eight cities are home towns to active producing units of General Motors.

In fourteen states, spreading from New England to the South and through the great Middle West to the Pacific Coast, General Motors is a vital local industry, giving employment to local people and better trade to local business.

How broad this distribution of industry is—how truly it cross-sections the entire country—is shown in the above listing of cities in which General Motors plants are located.

HOME FOLKS TO ALL THESE TOWNS

To picture how truly the home address of General Motors products has become "Main Street, U. S. A.," you have only to consider this list of the cities and towns in which General Motors plants are located:

It is quite natural that when you view the new General Motors cars your first interest should be what they have to offer of immediate benefit to you and your family.

But we believe you will find these new models of even greater interest if you likewise look at them in the light of what they mean in a larger sense.

By providing work for your neighbors, a market for many local industries, increased opportunities for the country at large, they have served your broader welfare even before they begin to serve you.

It is the policy of General Motors to continue this extension of service to the nation, even as we continue to extend the service of each car to its purchaser.

Steel Declares $1 on Common; Taylor to Quit

Stettinius and Fairless to Take Command of the Corporation.

One of Taylor's most spectacular steps of recent years was his secret meeting with John L. Lewis in Washington, leading to an agreement on hours and wages between United States Steel's principal subsidiaries and C. I. O. last March, thus breaking away from the long-standing open-shop tradition in United States Steel.

Stettinius Fits Plan.

Stettinius is one of the "young" men whom Taylor selected in connection with his three-point program of reform, embracing (1) rejuvenation and improvement of executive personnel, (2) recasting of capital structure, (3) renovation, integration and relocation of plants and property. Fairless is another.

After graduation from the University of Virginia in 1923, Stettinius entered General Motors Corporation and soon worked his way to a vice presidency. After serving for a short time in Washington as liaison officer between the industrial advisory board and the NRA, he was called to United States Steel in 1934 to become vice chairman of the finance committee. A year later he was given Taylor's old job as chairman of that powerful managing group.

He is the son of the late Edward R. Stettinius, St. Louis match manufacturer, who was caled to New York to handle allied war purchases by J. P. Morgan and became a partner in the House of Morgan in 1916, later Assistant Secretary of War.

Son of Coal Miner.

Fairless, who will become chief operating executive, came to U. S. Steel only two years ago, having made his mark with one of its chief competitors. The son of a Pigeon Run, Ohio, coal miner named David Williams, he was adopted at the age of 5 by an uncle, Jacob Fairless, of Justus, Ohio. After a period of teaching school, he got his degree in civil engineering at Ohio Northern University, went to railroading as a surveyor and later into steel. In 1930 he went into the newly formed Republic Steel Corporation as executive vice president, and in five years made an unusual record as a master sales and operations man.

In 1935, when Taylor's program of relocation and integration of properties brought about the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation, a big subsidiary into which others were merged, Fairless was called to Pittsburgh to head it.

Remain As Directors.

Big, ruddy faced, stocky, with heavy features, Fairless comes to the desk long occupied by James A. Farrell, who in his many years in U. S. Steel's presidency won a reputation as one of the world's outstanding steel salesmen. William A. Irvin, Fairless' immediate predecessor, came to the presidency in 1932, on Farrell's retirement.

Both Taylor and Irvin will remain directors of the corporation. Irvin is slated to become vice chairman of the board and Taylor will remain a director and member of the finance committee.

It was on the finance committee that Taylor accomplished his first big job for U. S. Steel. That was the redemption in 1929 of $370,000,000 in bonds, which were eating into earnings at the rate of $29,000,000 a year in interest charges.

The strong financial position at the time, and the uneasy feeling in conservative financial quarters that the bull market boom might come a cropper and lead to business disturbance, led Taylor to take this momentous step, which vastly strengthened the company during the dark years of the early 1930's.

Another Recruit Advances.

With Stettinius moving up from the chairmanship of the finance committee, it was announced that another recent recruit to steel management will become the finance chairman. This is Enders M. Voohees, who came to "steel" only last April 1, from a vice presidency of the Johns Manville Corporation.

Of the directors of "big steel," all were present at the corporate history making session in the austere old offices at 71 Broadway—now being modernized inside with cromium and light gray woods—save J. P. Morgan, his son Julius S. Morgan and Thomas Morrison of Pittsburgh.

The retirement of Morrison was announced—it was explained he is 75 years old—and fairless elected to his position on the board.

J. L. Perry, a native of Worcester, Mass., and recently president of Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co., an important subsidiary, was chosen for Fairless' place as president of Carnegie-Illinois, and Robert Gregg, a vice president of the parent company, was selected to head Tennessee C. I. & R.

Steel Stock Rises.

San Francisco, Oct. 26 (AP).—The San Francisco stock market responded to today's United States Steel Corporation dividend declaration by boosting the stock to $59, a point above the New York exchange close. Later, on a few sales, the stock slipped to $58.50.

Coffin Will Search Fails.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26 (AP).—Officials of the orphans court searched the coffin of Henrietta E. Garrett today, but found no will distributing her $20,000,000 snuff fortune.

Roosevelt Urges Support for Navy

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

My dear Mr. Secretary:

I have warm pleasure in commending again to our countrymen the annual observance of Navy Day in accordance with the established custom of setting apart the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt for that purpose. I hope that on this day the American people will learn more about our Navy for it is through the moral support of our citizenry that the Navy derives its most vigorous incentive to strive for preparedness of our defense at sea.

We are at peace with all the world and for that we are thankful. We as a nation have no plans of conquest; we harbor no imperial designs. War will be avoided by all honorable means. To keep the peace is a fundamental policy of the United States; to live and let live in the spirit of the good neighbor is our earnest desire. I believe it entirely consistent with our continuing readiness to limit armaments, to maintain a defense at sea sufficient to insure the preservation of our democratic ideals and the maintenance of a righteous peace.

Happily recalling my earlier personal and official association with the Navy, I congratulate the Navy on its splendid efficiency, on its record of past achievement, and the competent leadership which directs it. I have full confidence that the Navy will maintain with honor the heritage of its worthy traditions.

Very sincerely yours,

Franklin D. Roosevelt

The Honorable,
The Secretary of the Navy,
Washington, D. C.

Copy of President Roosevelt's Navy Day letter to Secretary Swanson in which he asks "the moral support of our citizenry" through which the Navy derives its most vigorous incentive.

Howard Trustees Get Ouster Plea

A petition calling for the resignation of Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, president of Howard University, was submitted to the board of trustees at its semiannual session by the General Alumni Association.

The committee submitting the petition included Thurman L. Dodson, chairman; Ernest C. Dickson, Horace O. Pollard, Judge James A. Cobb, Edward P. Lovett, Eugene Davidson and Nathan A. Dobbins.

They appeared, an official of the university stated last night, in behalf of a more satisfactory working understanding between the trustees, administration and the Alumni Association. No reference was made to the petition in the official report of the trustees, released after the meeting.

Murder Suspect Freed.

New York, Oct. 26 (AP).—Mrs. Rose Marie Dann, 40, was acquitted by a general sessions jury today on a charge of murdering her common-law husband, Hans Dann, 56, a liger captain.

tleship to be built by the United States in nearly 15 years. Construction of another is to begin shortly.

"We are at peace with all the world and for that we are thankful," the Chief Executive wrote. "We as a nation have no plans of conquest; we harbor no imperial designs. War will be avoided by all honorable means."

Meantime in Boston, Assistant Secretary Edison said that the Navy Department would ask the incoming Congress for funds to build two more $60,000,000 battleships.

It is known the President hopes Navy Day exercises not only here but throughout the Nation will acquaint more citizens with the work of the Navy and show the Navy that it has support of all Americans. Ceremonies also are expected to show fitness of the Navy for sea defense.

Observatory Open.

A detailed program of chief events of the Navy Yard ceremonies is printed elsewhere. Officials, members of patriotic societies and Washington residents also will join in a number of other exercises.

The Naval Observatory will be open to visitors from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. and for those holding admission cards from 7 p. m. to 11 p. m.

Walter J. Plant, State deputy of the Knights of Columbus, will place a wreath on the Commodore John Barry statue in Franklin Park at 11 a. m. He will be accompanied by State Warden William A. Mulligan. Prayer will be offered by the Rev. Joseph E. Gedra, of the Immaculate Conception Church.

Rear Admiral Charles R. Train, president of the Naval Examining Board, Navy Department, will deliver an address at 12:30 p. m. before the Rotary Club at a Navy Day meeting at the Hotel Willard.

Jones to Be Honored.

The Military Order of the World War and the advisory board of Masonic Clubs of the District will hold exercises, beginning at 12:15 p. m., at the John Paul Jones monument at the foot of Seventeenth street northwest. Patriotic societies will participate in these ceremonies.

Rear Admiral Harry G. Hamlet, U. S. Coast Guard (retired), will give the principal address. The former chief of Navy chaplains, Capt. Sydney K. Evans, will pronounce the invocation. Commander Norman B. Hall, U. S. N., Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox and Maj. Edwin S. Bettelheim, jr., will speak.

Navy Day exercises throughout the Nation are sponsored by the Navy League of the United States.

1938 Fleet Game Set.

The Navy's 1938 spring fleet maneuvers again will be held in the Pacific, in the waters between San Francisco and Hawaii, it was learned last night.

Official announcement of the scene of the Navy's annual war games will await return of Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, it was said.

Naval maneuvers and fleet problems in recent years have been concentrated in the triangle formed by San Francisco, Hawaii and Alaska, and next spring's games are expected to be generally along the axis between San Francisco and Hawaii.

Navy Day Program at Navy Yard

The Washington Navy Yard will be open to the public from 8 a. m. to 5:14 p. m. today, it was announced yesterday by Rear Admiral George T. Pettengill, commandant. A varied program is expected to draw more visitors even than last year when crowds numbering 305,400 inspected the yard.

Chief events are:

8:00 a. m.	Colors at main gate.
9:00 a. m.	Formal guard mounting in Leutze Park by marines.
9:25 a. m.	Firing a torpedo at a test house rear of Sail Loft.
10:00 a. m.	Air show by naval planes from Anacostia.
11:30 a. m.	Antiaircraft gun drill on deck of destroyer Leary.
11:40 a. m.	Gun drill on deck of Coast Guard cutter Bibb.
11:50 a. m.	Catapulting plane from yard catapult.
1:10 p. m.	Demonstration of air fighting tactics.
2:45 p. m.	Formation and tactical flying demonstration.
2:50 p. m.	Reception to King Neptune and his court.
3:10 p. m.	Parade of sailors, marines and coast guardsmen.
4:00 p. m.	Demonstration by howitzer platoon of marines.
4:30 p. m.	Preliminaries to sham battle.
4:40 p. m.	Sham battle by marines simulating landing operations and defense of the yard. The Coast Guard has provided patrol boats for this demonstration.

Woman Hurt in Fall From Husband's Car

Mrs. Ethel A. West, 29, of 1705 D street northwest, suffered head lacerations when she fell from the car of her husband, Jesse West, engineer, while they were crossing the Arlington Memorial Bridge. At Emergency Hospital, where Mrs. West was taken, officials said she would remain for the night.

Dr. Jesse Reeve's Funeral Set Today

Funeral services for Dr. Jesse N. Reeve, 71, who died Monday after a long illness, will be held at noon today at the Gawler funeral chapel, 1750 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. Burial will be private.

A native of Tennessee, Dr. Reeve had lived in Washington for more than 40 years and was a graduate of Georgetown University. He made his home at 1868 Columbia road northwest.

After practicing medicine here for a number of years, ill health forced Dr. Reeve to give up his profession in 1909. He subsequently tutored private and public school children and took an active interest in children.

'Living Witness' Tells of Poisoning

Cincinnati, Oct. 26 (AP).—George Heis, 62, testified from a wheel chair in the murder trial of Anna Marie Hahn today as the State undertook to support its contention that he is the woman's "only living witness of a plot to slay for gain."

Heis, a Cincinnati coal dealer, testified he gave Mrs. Hahn $2,000 over a period of four months, and that he "got sick every time" he ate meals prepared by her.

A short time before, the jury of 11 women and 1 man heard other witnesses describe a poisoned supper from which George Gsellman, 67, another acquaintance of the woman, went to his death before dawn.

Girl Who Slew Father To Save Mother Freed

New York, Oct. 26 (AP).—Gladys Breitfeller, 15-year-old Queens high school girl, who killed her father by stabbing yesterday, was freed after a two-hour heading today by Children's Court Justice Lawrence Dunham, who termed the slaying "justifiable homicide and an unfortunate tragedy."

Her mother fainted after testifying Breitfeller came home drunk and attacked her with a carving knife. Gladys, she said, seized the knife and in a struggle stabbed him in the back and chest.

Killer Sent to Alcatraz To Begin 65-Year Term

Cleveland, Oct. 26 (AP).—Federal Judge Paul Jones today sentenced James Widmer, convicted murderer, to 65 years for robbery of two Cleveland banks.

Federal authorities said Widmer, who pleaded guilty, would be taken at once to Alcatraz Island, the West Coast prison for desperate criminals.

Plan for Peace In Spain Favors Reich and Italy

Copyright, 1937, by the United Press.

London (Wednesday), Oct. 27.—Italy and Germany, driving Russia into lone isolation on the non-intervention committee, appeared today to have succeeded in stalling the Spanish "volunteers" withdrawal negotiations until the insurgents launch their major Aragon offensive.

In a stormy, five-hour session of the nine-nation committee last night the objections of Russia were overridden and a plan set in motion for withdrawing all foreign "volunteers" from the Spanish battlefronts—but not until neutral commissions have made a thorough study of the battlefronts.

Russia refused to consent to man-for-man withdrawals from the loyalist and insurgent ranks, arguing that the insurgent mercenaries outnumber those with the loyalists at least four to one.

When Russia objected to the plan Italy—with support of Fascist Germany and Portugal—attempted to oust the Soviets from the committee, but the move was defeated by British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden who occupied the chairman's seat.

It will be weeks before the neutral commissions can be sent to Spain and take a census of the foreigners bearing arms there.

Meanwhile, Generalissimo Franco's insurgents, led by at least 40,000 Italian Black Shirts, are ready to open their Aragon offensive in northeast Spain in an effort to drive a wedge cutting off the loyalists from the French frontier.

Soviet Russia, in the most surprising concession of all, consented to consider granting belligerency rights to the warring Spanish factions when the withdrawal of foreign mercenaries is well under way.

Great Britain and France agreed to abandonment of their proposal for an immediate "token" withdrawal of volunteers.

Italy and Germany—supported by their Fascist ally, Portugal—announced that they would abide by a "census" of the foreign volunteers in Spain to be taken by neutral commissions sent to the loyalist and insurgent battlefronts.

Up to the moment of today's session, which adjourned at 9 p. m. until Friday at 10:30 a. m., the various delegates were loud in their assertions of "no further concessions."

The Fascist bloc's delegates emerged from the long session claiming a diplomatic victory because Russia had been driven into a "minority of one" in opposing a man-for-man withdrawal of the volunteers.

The new plan, embodied in a revised draft resolution sent to the nine sub-committee governments tonight, provides for (1) dispatch of the neutral commissions to Spain, (2) a census of the volunteers, (3) recommendations for a plan of equal withdrawals and (4) simultaneous discussion of belligerency rights for both Spanish factions.

Madrid Offensive Nears.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Oct. 26 (AP).—Spanish government sources asserted tonight that Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco was concentrating troops, artillery and aircraft to launch a major offensive against Madrid Thursday.

Rafael Henchen, Mayor of Madrid, said 56 air-raid shelters, capable of protecting 27,000 persons, had been completed and work was being rushed on 12 additional shelters to accommodate 23,000. Plans were made to evacuate noncombatants by the Madrid-Valencia railway.

France Abandons Threat.

Paris, Oct. 26 (U.P.).—The French government tonight abandoned its threat to resort to force of arms in reprisal for yesterday's "pirate" attack on the French air-mail base at Minorca and announced that the attack was "one of those unavoidable incidents."

Minister of Navy Cesar Campinchi, asked whether the destroyer Mars, which arrived at the Spanish Balearic Islands today would take retaliatory measures, said: "It is our desire to avoid war."

Japanese Gains on Shanghai Front

Copyright by the Associated Press.

In addition to occupying Tazang (1), north of Shanghai, the invaders have pushed their way along the Shanghai-Nanking Railroad at approximate spot shown (2), with Chinese expected to form new defense lines on a triangle between the Shanghai-Nanking and Hangshow railroads at (3) near the International Settlement sector occupied by American Marines. Approximate position of Japanese line indicated by heavy lines.

the Japanese enveloping movement. They were expected to reorganize defenses quickly on the creek banks.

The majority of Chinese troops withdrew under cover of darkness, but spirited rearguard action was going on at the bottle-neck railway junction of the Shanghai-Nanking and Shanghai-Hangchow lines, which provided the only outlet for the Chinese west of Chapei.

A dozen Japanese planes bombed and machine gunned the retreating Chinese, attempting to cut off any remnants remaining in the Chapei and Kiangwan areas.

American Marines along Soochow Creek just south of Chapei reported no Chinese had attempted to cross the creek to the safety of the International Settlement.

Attempting to block Japanese forces moving southward to close the bottle-neck, Chinese blew up the Chungshan Road Bridge and sent out snipers to carry on delaying tactics.

Japan's capture of Tazang, key defense point five miles north of Shanghai yesterday after almost a week's heavy pounding, paved the way for the general Japanese advance.

An Italian grenadier, Antonio Padula, was added to the foreign casualty list when he was fatally injured by an antiaircraft shell. It was believed the shell had been fired at a Chinese plane that raided Japanese positions across from the Italian-guarded sector.

Even after the Japanese flag was hoisted over the North station terrific explosions resounded through the region. The Chinese were believed to have set off mines after the Japanese moved in.

Chapei was blanketed with smoke which spread along the International Settlement's borders. Observers from the Settlement saw hundreds of Chinese houses and shops being consumed by flames over 6 or 7 miles. Observers believed the Chinese were repeating tactics of their 1932 warfare with Japan by setting fire to the entire countryside behind them.

All available fire-fighting apparatus of the International Settlement was called out to prevent flames from spreading into the foreign-owned section.

TardieuAdmits Giving Aid to French Fascists

Former Premier Also Testifies Laval Helped La Rocque.

By the United Press

Lyons, France, Oct. 28.—Former Premier Andre Tardieu admitted from the witness stand today, amid cries of "liar!" that he financed the Fascist movement of Col. Francois de La Rocque from secret government funds for 18 months.

Tardieu's sensational admission came during a hearing of defamation charges brought by Duke Pozzo di Borgo against La Rocque, leader of the outlawed Croix de Feu (Cross of Fire) that once boasted 500,000 Rightest followers. Many of these now are enrolled in La Rocque's new French Social party.

The duke, formerly a La Rocque lieutenant, recently published charges the Croix de Feu had been financed by "a former premier" and La Rocque replied with the assertion that the duke had "disqualified himself as a patriot." The libel suit followed.

Tardieu, three times premier of France, not only involved himself in the Rightist conspiracy, but his successor, former Premier Pierre Laval, as well.

"I want to tell all the truth under oath . . . My testimony is that of a man voluntarily released from all political connections and all ambition," Tardieu said, and proceeded to recite how he passed out thousands of francs to La Rocque beginning in July, 1930, while he was serving as premier the second time.

"It is all false! All lies!" shouted La Rocque.

Laval, like Tardieu in retirement now, was cited as a witness for Duke Pozzo di Borgo, but declined to testify.

La Rocque's attorney, Maitre Oliver, who fought bitterly to prevent Tardieu from testifying in support of the duke's charges, was prevented from coming to blows with the former premier by other lawyers in the courtroom.

The verdict will be handed down Tuesday.

Britain Desires Peace Prepares For War, King Tells Parliament

By the United Press.

London, Oct. 28.—King George VI, faltering and struggling to overcome an old impediment of speech, told his Parliament today in an address from the throne that Great Britain strives for peace in Spain and the Far East, but is preparing hourly for war.

The 41-year-old monarch, coming before Parliament for the first time since his brother's abdication, appeared in the House of Lords in a mantel of red and black after a dazzling ceremonial ride down the mall from Buckingham Palace.

"My ministers," he said, reading haltingly from a gold-edged manuscript, "have followed with growing concern the continuance of the conflict in Spain. It is their aim to do everything that lies within their power to assist toward restoration of peace among the Spanish people.

"They believe that strict application of the international policy of nonintervention in Spain will materially contribute to this end.

"The position in the Far East will continue to engage the earnest attention of my government, who will persist in their policy of attempting in co-operation with other governments, whether members of the League of Nations or not, to mitigate the suffering caused by the conflict and bring it to a conclusion."

He referred to the United States, a non-League power, which will join Britain and other powers in a conference at Brussels next week in an effort to mediate an end of the Chinese-Japanese struggle.

The King's speech came jerkily. He bunched words, then took long nervous pauses. The peers of the House of Lords, gorgeous in their robes of state, coughed in embarrassment.

9-Power Parley Held Up 3 Days By Belgian Crisis

Brussels, Oct. 26 (AP).—The crisis precipitated by the resignation of the government of Premier Paul Van Zeeland forced postponement today of the Brussels Nine-Power conference summoned to find an "amicable" solution to the Sino-Japanese conflict.

The foreign office announced the conference will be convened November 3 instead of October 30.

King Leopold, meanwhile, interviewed 12 political leaders in a search for a premier to replace Van Zeeland, who resigned yesterday to fight the charges of Rexist (Fascist) opponents that he was mixed up in a "national bank scandal."

Blast Traps Miners.

Anchorage, Alaska, Oct. 26 (AP).—An explosion in the Evan Jones Coal Mine, 80 miles from here, trapped an unknown number of men of the day shift today. Three injured men were rescued by the night shift.

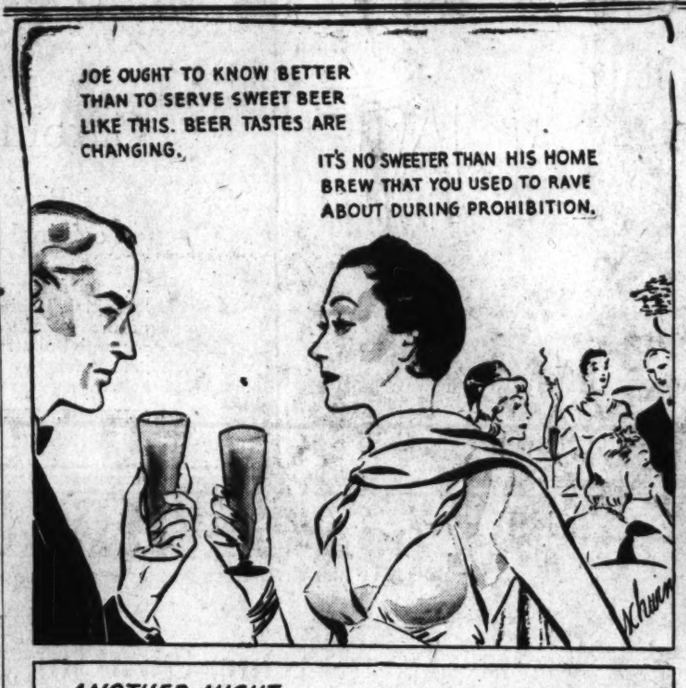
90 PROOF



JOE OUGHT TO KNOW BETTER THAN TO SERVE SWEET BEER LIKE THIS. BEER TASTES ARE CHANGING.

THAT WAS DIFFERENT. YOU COULDN'T GET ANYTHING ELSE AND HIS WAS BETTER THAN MOST.
WELL, GRACE IS PRETTY UPSET ABOUT THESE DULL PARTIES. I THINK I'LL TELL HER.

NEXT DAY
I GUESS WE'RE GETTING OLD AND SEDATE, ANNE. THE GANG HARDLY TOUCHED THEIR BEER LAST NIGHT AND THEY ACTUALLY SEEMED BORED.
NONSENSE, GRACE. PEOPLE'S BEER TASTE HAS CHANGED, THAT'S ALL. NEXT TIME SERVE GUNTHER'S DRY BEERY BEER AND IT WILL BE JUST LIKE OLD TIMES. AGAIN.

STOP
At Philadelphia's Foremost Hotel
The Benjamin Franklin—where tired travelers refresh themselves. Large comfortable, modern rooms, excellent service, delicious food, and a convenient location are a few reasons so many travelers choose the Benjamin Franklin. Yet you'll be surprised at the reasonable rates...many of the 1200 rooms are as low as $3.50 a day.
BENJAMIN FRANKLIN

ANOTHER NIGHT
EVERYBODY SEEMS TO BE HAVING A SWELL TIME, GRACE.
YOU WERE CERTAINLY RIGHT. ABOUT GUNTHER'S, ANNE. AND THE NEW BOTTLES LOOK SO NICE YOU CAN BE PROUD TO SERVE THEM ANYWHERE.

AT LAST... BEER BOTTLES AS GOOD LOOKING AS CHAMPAGNE OR IMPORTED WINE BOTTLES!

THE SAME FINE OLD BEER IN THE FINER PACKAGE IT DESERVED. Now you can get your favorite brew, Gunther's dry beery beer, in a bottle you will be proud to serve to anybody, anywhere. The new Gunther bottles are as good looking as champagne or imported wine bottles. New York and Baltimore designers and art critics have pronounced them masterpieces, a fitting tribute to the largest-selling beer in the Baltimore-Washington market.

Gunther's dry beery beer is made from the best imported hops, after the manner of the finest Bohemian or Pilsener brews. For years its dry beery tang has made it a favorite with real beer drinkers. Recently the overwhelming switch to dry beer has increased sales until we have broken all records established since the brewery was founded in 1881.

To our old customers, to those thousands who have come to know us recently, and to any who have not yet tried Gunther's, may we say that in its beautiful new bottle Gunther's dry beery beer now looks as good as it tastes. Gunther Brewing Company, Baltimore, Md.

Pleas to Go Slow On Czech Trade Pact Nettle Hull

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Hull told his press conference yesterday the State Department intended neither to bluff nor to be bluffed by special interests in negotiating a reciprocal trade agreement with Czechoslovakia.

In response to questions about current hearings before the committee on reciprocity information, Hull stressed that no negotiations actually have started. He contended that objections thus far of shoe and textile manufacturers to lowered tariffs were theoretical.

The Secretary said if the department undertook to satisfy advance complaints of those who he asserted would be satisfied with nothing less than an air-tight embargo of certain imports, it would have to close up shop and turn the negotiations over to lobbyists.

Two witnesses before the reciprocity information committee asserted yesterday the American shoe industry was threatened by a Czechoslovakian competitor, the Bata Shoe Co.

They were Jay O. Ball, of New York, president of the Natoinal Association of Boot and Shoe Manufacturers, and Charles F. Johnson, jr., shoe manufacturer of Endicott, N. Y.

Johnson asserted his company, the Endicott-Johnson Corporation, would be forced "to reduce wages and lower standards of living" if the proposed treaty with Czechoslovakia includes footwear.

The Federal Diary

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Scott Hart.

The Real Gulf

There has been all maner of good-tempered speculation on what might happen under the Feredal union roof should the A. F. L. and C. I. O. adjust their differences—for the sake of a united labor front—and resolve the A. F. G. E. and the U. F. W. A. into one sweet family again.

It is to be sure, a very lush topic to think on, what with all the nice names that have been exchanged by the two; and it makes you think that the spirit of forgiveness must be a very compelling one in human nature if any of them can break bread together again and regard their embattled yesterdays as just cute little strange interludes in the march of labor.

They are wondering about the hoped-for-reconciliation—but few, apparently, have given thought on the real gulf between them. The cleavage is the matter of temperament, something that individuals can't shake off everytime their leaders (or powerful outside influences) say "get together boys; we're all taking geds in the same house again."

Anyone (even the youngest) who sat for just one session in the A. F. G. E. District Department before the expulsion of the seven lodges that formed the U. F. W. A. nucelus, will show that the two groups can never be at peace—unless the laws of temperament have changed by some special dispensation to suit the ends of labor.

To put the thing viry mildly, they fought like cats on a back fence; and it required no insight to know that the whole trouble was seated in temperament. It was the time-old difficulty of conservative natures clashing with aggressive natures. The final break came, as you remember, over the holding of a monster meeting in protest against governmental economy, as this economy would effect employes.

But a break would have come, soon or late, over anything. It would have flared up at a fish party, because the aggressive would have chosen to use a sein while the conservatives would fish with a pole.

And if anyone doesn't believe some sweet words were passed, he may consult our files.

The question, it seems to us, is not whether they can reunite, but whether they could live ogether under one roof; or if not under one roof, could they be agreeable even as brothers with a common aim. They have not even accomplished the latter, to date.

Art Dept.

If you admired the cover design for the I. D. R. A. News, you will be interested to know that it is the work of Lee Warthen, of the museum division. Warthen is the artist who did those marvellous backgrounds in the pioramas, which will be opened to the public soon in the New Interior Building.

The Farm Credit Club has changed the time of its French class meetings to Wednesday evenings, from 5 to 6 p. m. . . . C. C. Stotler, instructor of the Farm Credit Club course in art and appreciation, has included a class in sketching with the course of ten appreciation lectures. The class is open to beginners; no previous training is required or even desired.

Thirty-one members of the I. D. R. A. enjoyed a recent overnight camping experience at the Chopawampsic Recreational Demonstration Area in Virginia. The crowd occupied four of the new unit lodges, had their meals in the central dining hall, staged a hike and reported a very nice time. The leaders were Matt C. Huppuck, Ian Forbes and James F. Kieley.

Among those on the trip were Mr. and Mrs. Mr. and Mrs. Julia Salomon, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Berrall, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Shapiro, Miss Fannie Rubin, William Hill, Mrs. Elizabeth Hughes, Mrs. Nettie R. Niehaus, Marjorie Murphy, Laura M. Dixon, Merel Sager, C. E. Bandy, William B. Roeca, Adelaide Walton, Bertha K. DeLucia, Philip N. Vassill, Virginia E. Ayres, Mary Parks, Ruth Bohne, Irene Roche, Velma Carter, Katherine E. Kerley, David M. Church and Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Billings. William Hall, project manager, and Mrs. Hall were guests of the Interior group.

Error in List Omits Certified Hospitals

An error in the Chicago headquarters of the American College of Surgeons resulted in seven certified hospitals being omitted from the District "approved" list published yesterday in The Post.

Those that should have been included but were not are the following local institutions:

St. Elizabeths, Sibley, Naval, Soldiers' Home, Mount Alto, Walter Reed and the Washington Sanitarium and Hospital at Takoma Park. Together with Emergency, Children's, Columbia, Episcopal, Freedmen's, Gallinger, Garfield, Georgetown, George Washington, National Homeopathic and Providence, they are among the 2,621 hospitals in the United States and Canada, which have the medical group's 1937 approval.

Outwit Criminals, Slogan of Hoover

Montreal, Oct. 26 (Canadian Press).—J. Edgar Hoover told the international world police convention today that the law must keep one jump ahead of the criminal.

"It is our duty to prepare our traps before the vicious animals of depredation establish their game trails," said the chief of the United States Bureau of Investigation in a paper prepared for delivery before law enforcement chiefs from many countries.

Hoover declared it was up to the policeman to out-distance criminals both in crime's scientific aspects and the business of handling a gun. His special agents, he said, only shoot when necessary, but when they do it is "with the knowledge that the job will not be attempted in vain."

A Very Large Order.

Relatively little has been heard of Gen. Sadao Araki during recent years. War minister at the time of the conquest of Manchuria, he then walked across Japan's stage as the potential dictator of the island empire. But his influence appeared to wane after the wave of "patriotic" assassinations that swept Japan in 1934, and particularly after the abortive military putsch of February, 1936, which represented the most extreme case of direct action by the militarists.

That Baron Araki is not yet entirely out of the picture was seen in his recent appointment as a member of Premier Konoye's high advisory council, named to direct Japan's policies during the present crisis. And in stating that "it probably is necessary for Japan to strike directly at Russia," Araki is now revealing the crass ignorance of realities which for long has characterized the thinking of the Japanese militarists.

There is no doubt that Japanese fear of Russia has grown recently, and with it the belief that a showdown with the Soviet union must not too long be postponed. If the ostensible reasons for Japan's conquest of China are economic the dominant motives, so far as the army is concerned, are strategic and fundamentally directed against Russia.

Certainly Manchuria has proved anything but the bonanza it was expected to be. More liability than asset, it has increased rather than diminished the economic stress and strain within the island empire. But the Japanese war lords, including Araki, have never counted the financial and economic cost of their military ventures. That problem they have left to harassed civilians.

Gen. Araki's statement now shows that they may be ignoring military realities as well. Certainly the situation is not such as to justify Japan in taking on at this time another and even more formidable opponent than China. Excellent as their defense has been, the Chinese, after all, are in no position to carry the war to their enemy. But the Russians, who have assembled a very formidable air force in Eastern Siberia, are in a position to give tit for tat.

It would seem to be the counsel of wisdom for the Japanese war lords to soft-pedal the Russian issue at this time. That some of them, like Araki, are pursuing a directly contrary course is an ominous sign. It recalls the old saying that whom the gods would destroy they first make mad.

A Nation Of Robots.

From the age of 8, when they are compelled to join the "Sons of the Wolf," until they reach manhood the youth of Italy are being subjected to military training.

After the "Sons of the Wolf" comes the "Balilla," which trains the adolescents. There follows graduation into the Fascist militia and the regular conscript army. During recent years the Duce has generously provided his followers, willing and unwilling, with postgraduate opportunities in Ethiopia and Spain. From the cradle to the grave armsbearing is a vital part of life in Italy.

But apparently even this extensive military training is not deemed to be sufficient. The government at Rome has now announced that henceforth the entire educational system of Italy is to be made an adjunct of the war machine. The purpose of every course taught in the schools is to be primarily one of feeding, reinforcing and rendering conscious in youth "the military spirit which today is one of its best characteristics." An attempt will be made to arouse the "warrior spirit," even among "the youngest children." And to facilitate this task military training will be made not only instructive but delightful as well.

By and large, human beings have an instinct for liberty which no amount of regimentation can permanently crush. On the very same day that the announcement concerning development of "citizen soldiers" was made it was reported that 26 youngsters had been sent to prison in Italy for a plot against the Fascist regime.

Apparently the government encountered no difficulty in ferreting out the conspirators. Mussolini appears to be in no immediate danger of overthrow. Yet it is significant, nonetheless, that those implicated in the plot were young men who, presumably, for a good part of their lives had been subjected to incessant Fascist propaganda.

In their cases such propaganda encountered the law of diminishing returns which operates in the realm of psychology as well as in economics. And where a score were apprehended there may be hundreds who felt the same way as did the conspirators.

Mussolini's ambition to make one huge barracks out of Italy may outwardly have achieved a large measure of success. But behind the facade of uniformity, beneath the superstructure of the slave state which he has erected, the forces of discontent remain. They may not amount to much now nor for a long time to come. But there is no safe reckoning on the permanence of regimentation.

Mr. Hoover's Speech.

It was the development of a political philosophy, not the immediate construction of a political platform, for which former President Hoover called in his speech before the Republican Club of Massachusetts, in Boston, last night. The approach was well advised. To write a program before the group attitude has crystallized is to put the cart before the horse, whether politics or any other form of human association is in question.

The Republican Party is now experiencing the salutary lessons of adversity. When these have clarified its purpose the definitive program will follow almost automatically. But, as Mr. Hoover says, "if a party should come into power without such definite purpose it would be of little good to the Nation." He might have added that without definite purpose, clearly expressed and sincerely held, an opposition party is very unlikely to command the adherence of a majority of the electorate.

The political philosophy which Mr. Hoover advocates as the "fighting cause" of the G. O. P. is logical both from the viewpoint of theory and circumstance. That is to say, it seeks to reanimate the body of Republicanism with the intelligence and idealism which gave it widespread appeal in bygone years. And at the same time Mr. Hoover would take the fullest legitimate advantage of the mistakes and difficulties of the Administration. He recognizes, however, that no positive policy can be developed out of criticism alone, no matter how well justified.

The former President's attack on "gradual collectivism" will find a responsive echo in the minds of millions of Americans.

Realization of the dangers in the drift toward centralization grows with the accumulating evidence that the Federal Government cannot successfully administer the controls which it is establishing in such quantities. But opposition to the trend will be futile unless it does more than attack the New Deal procedure. Opposition must also show how it proposes to attain the objective of the greatest good to the greatest number, and how it will apply the regulations "to prevent special privilege, or coercion" without itself becoming collectivist.

In other words, much hard thinking will be necessary before the Republicans can again enter the political arena with any assurance of Nation-wide success. And this Mr. Hoover realizes, as shown by his anxiety for "the formulation of constructive convictions and positive purposes," well in advance of the 1938 elections.

In this effort there must be an outstanding leader and the leader should be one who is, as Mr. Hoover says of himself, "interested in building up the Republican Party not as a partisan but as a citizen." Success for the opposition's effort in regeneration will in large part be measured by public confidence in the politically disinterested character of those who lead it.

For that reason it is unfortunate that Mr. Hoover did not find stronger words in which to deny that he himself is open to conscription as a candidate. There is something which may be regarded as equivocal in his statement that "I do not want any public office." The man needed by the Republicans to direct their effort at reconstruction must be above the battle of politics. If Mr. Hoover is to be this leader he must make clear not merely that he does not want office, but also that under no circumstances would he permit his name to be offered as a candidate.

Raring To Go.

It's getting so that feminine millinery is far more a matter of courage than of chic. Five or six seasons ago women bought beplumed atrocities called hats and laid the responsibility on the Empress Eugenie. Several seasons later, when girls took to the pillbox turban, they blamed the Princess Marina. But, as yet, no one has had the nerve to cite the source for this winter's crop of skimmers. Apparently, like Topsy, they just grew. And, unfortunately, like Jack's beanstalk, it looks as if there's to be no end to their growing.

Hats have long since ceased to be a mere protection for the head. Last summer the Great Uncovered held the spotlight, and headgear was only a brim and a promise. This fall the brim has disappeared, and crowns en masse resemble the New York skyline. Timid souls, making a last brave stand against the lopsided lids, might as well succumb. For the choice is not between an honest-to-goodness hat and a towering toque. It's narrowed down to whether one wishes to emulate the Eiffel Tower or imitate the Empire State Building.

The paradox is that the more modernistic the hats, the more old-fashioned the gadgets which they're working to revive. Veils are already as thick on the streets as autumn leaves in Vallombrosa, and hatpins are also rearing their ugly heads. But you ain't heard nothing yet. A part of this high-hat trend is for the hair to be brushed upward, too, leaving the neck and ears al fresco. In this case, if winter comes, can earmuffs be far behind?

Another Boost In Order.

The disappointing response of railway issues to the announcement that the Interstate Commerce Commission had granted freight rate increases expected to yield about $47,500,000 per annum was due, no doubt, to the limited extent of the relief afforded compared with the revenue needs of the carriers.

The refusal of the I. C. C. to extend so-called surcharges into the present year has resulted in a heavy loss of potential revenues, as these emergency rates yielded about $120,000,000 during 1936. On the other hand, expenditures have been rapidly rising in recent months. Wage increases, for example, have added about $135,000,000 to the annual pay roll of the roads, while pay roll taxes and higher prices of supplies have also substantially increased costs. As a result of this combination of unfavorable factors the roads have suffered a severe shrinkage of net operating income which makes further increases in freight rates urgent.

The tone and tenor of the commission's decision indicate that it will give prompt and sympathetic consideration to another rate petition. The stress laid upon the necessity of permitting the roads to earn a reasonable return on the fair value of their properties is particularly significant. "The record," it was stated, "amply justifies the conclusion that in the aggregate the railroads are earning very materially less" than this fair return. Quoting from one of its own previous decisions, the commission noted that an adequate railway system, "so long as it is privately owned, obviously cannot be provided and maintained without a continuous inflow of capital." "Obviously, also," it continued, "such an inflow of capital can only be assured by treatment of capital already invested which will invite and encourage further investment."

Elaborating upon this thesis, the commission stated that railroads must have opportunity to earn more than a normal return in prosperous years, since they cannot hope to earn normal returns in years of depression. It also pointed out that "in the long run no private corporation can continue to attract private capital unless it is able to market stock as well as bonds, which means that it must, at least in times of prosperity, be able to pay dividends."

Thus there is abundant inferential evidence that the I. C. C. majority members are at last awake to the dangers of the short-sighted regulatory policies they have followed in trying to keep down charges while costs have been rapidly rising. This changed attitude is distinctly encouraging to those who take a long-range view of the position and prospects of the country's railways. Despite the inadequacy of the relief afforded by the announced rate increases, therefore, many railway executives are highly gratified with the decision. It seems to foreshadow a fairer and more realistic regulatory policy in the future.

The Assets Of Sickness.

A connection between physical debility and genius has long been recognized. The names of Steinmetz with his crooked back. Pasteur and his apoplexy, Beethoven and his deafness, rise immediately to mind. In the field of literature, the relation of ill health to success is particularly evident. Stevenson was tubercular, Heine syphilitic, Parkman nearly blind and horribly rheumatic—and so the list runs, without omitting the case of George Delacroix whose newly published journal is currently stirring the literary world to forgotten admiration.

But the ability of the average man to turn casual sickness to advantage is not generally appreciated. The suggestion is raised by Dr. Louis E. Bisch, writing in the current Reader's Digest. Dr. Bisch is no Pollyanna or disciple of Job. He simply has observed during a long practice that a period in bed—if not a lifetime sentence—can often work wonders on patients.

He reasons that a respite from the responsibilities of everyday life has a welcome effect on most people. Perhaps for the first time in their lives, they have an opportunity to examine themselves—their weaknesses and mistakes, their assets and potentialities. In addition, fear gives them a new frankness, while pain often inspires them to a tolerance and serenity which abides by them ever after.

It is an arresting idea and one that carries much reassurance to those whose somewhat nervous boast is that they have never spent a day in bed.

If a person is especially proud of knowing a certain thing, it is one of few things that he knows, or he has only recently learned it.

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

George Creel's blithe prediction that for every pound of top soil blown off a Dust Bowl farm there will be a Dust Bowl refugee blown into California, must be heard with mixed emotions. We have no inhumane lack of commiseration for those whose struggle on the border line of poverty has been frustrated by a trick of fate. Neither are we without pride that California has the lure of a Promised Land. But we do have problems and serious ones of looking after our people, and they are heavy ones.

The Dust Bowl refugees are Americans and entitled to cross State boundaries, carrying their troubles and necessities with them. But they are a national problem, certainly not California's. Perhaps, since Mr. Creel is understood to have Washington's confidence, he might tell us, while in prophetic mood, how California may be expected to digest this national problem and what the Federal Administration may be expected to do meanwhile.

Letters to the Editor

All communications must carry the writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the Editor's discretion. In fairness to other correspondents, brevity is requested. Letters are subject to condensation.

From A Howard Alumnus.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to commend your editorial in The Post of October 25 entitled "Two Howard Alumni Charges." I have been actively interested in the university since my graduation in 1906.

Today I wrote the General Alumni Association and quote below a part of that letter:

I recall that shortly after Dr. Johnson came to Howard University as its president he was presented to the General Alumni Association at its annual meeting. In the brief address which he then made he offered certain suggestions, one of which was that the General Alumni Association foster a revolving student loan fund to be used to aid students about to graduate and who found themselves direfully in need of small sums of money to enable them to finish. At that meeting he made certain other constructive suggestions, but for the purpose of this letter the one mentioned is sufficient.

Before giving ear to these numerous charges made against Dr. Johnson in your document I am moved to ask:

1. What has the General Alumni Association done by way of providing the suggested student loan fund?

2. What constructive thing or things has the association done for Howard University during the period covered by your "Case Against President Mordecai W. Johnson?"

I shall await a reply with interest for I have no knowledge of the first thing which has been done constructively for the university during the period. A. S. PINKETT.

The Tipping Practice.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Recently The Post reprinted editorial comment by the esteemed Memphis Commercial Appeal upon the reaction of a Mr. Victor Dessert to the "tipping" practice, denounced by that gentleman as "the most detestable, contemptible and embarrassing practice in the world." Quoth the Commercial Appeal:

If tipping can't be put out of business many of us would prefer the system that prevails in many places on the continent in Europe of just adding 10 per cent to the bill and being done with it.

That suggested remedy at least concedes the fact of the so-called tip being substantially an element of wages in payment for work done (production) and recognizes the worth of the tippee at not less than 10 per cent of the face value of the bill paid.

If the District of Columbia minimum wage board could adapt the same method for determining lowest wages of saleswomen in Washington the result would be more nearly equitable than could be possible from fixing such a wage on "cost of living—plus" basis. Of course, the ratio would not be 10 per cent. Partly "tip-compensated" workers usually receive a nominal wage.

Incidentally, a tip is not a gratuity for a nominally waged servant; nor for well salaried headwaiters, etc. In the first instance it's part wage; in the second a "bribe."

President And 'Algic.'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: How doth a presidential precedent affect each agitator, great and small. The President attacked the Supreme Court, demanding the removal of those men who did not agree with the New Deal and intended to replace those removed with men who would support the New Deal. The idea abhorrent to the just was received with joy by the lawless.

When the chairman of the U. S. Maritime Commission gave orders to have mutineers aboard the Algic put in irons, labor agitators growled in ominous tone and today we read in the paper that the men of the C. I. O. Maritime Union have directed a resolution to the President requesting that he remove Kennedy forthwith, as not treating the men with that tender regard the Administration insists shall be meted out to lawbreakers.

The President is in a fix. He knows that the demand is based upon his own action toward the Supreme Court. If he was right then, are the striking seamen not right now?

Dr. Wang A Rotarian.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the interesting article by Gerald G. Gross in The Post of October 24 regarding Dr. Wang, Chinese Ambassador to Washington, the following statement is made: "In the same year he journeyed to Atlantic City for the International Convention of Kiwanis as governor and representative of the China-Philippine District.

Dr. Wang is not a member of Kiwanis International but is a member of Rotary International of which organization he was a governor. The convention in Atlantic City in June, 1936, which was attended by Dr. Wang, was, of course, the Rotary International Convention and not the Kiwanis Convention. Yours very truly,

GEORGE N. MATHEWS,
Governor, 187th District, Rhode Island, Rotary International.

The Rattlesnake.

The rattlesnake is probably the most numerous, most widely distributed and best-known of North American venomous serpents. It is the best-known and most greatly feared. Because of that fact, perhaps, reports of rattlesnake bite are comparatively few. And fatalities resulting are fewer. The death of Dr. Paul D. Emerson, noted soil scientist, from that cause is both a shocking and an unusual accident.

Deaths from rattlesnake bite are so comparatively few in number that the National Safety Council does not list them in its reports under a distinct classification. They are lumped together with other similar causes of death under the classification of "attack by venomous animal." Only 211 such deaths were listed in 1935 out of a total of approximately 100,000 accidental deaths. The year before there were only 147.

Dr. Emerson was evidently familiar with the rattlesnake and first-aid treatment for its bite. He had applied a tourniquet and had slashed the wound to drain out the poison, but had been unable to use a suction pump which he carried in his first-aid kit. Ordinarily prompt application of first-aid treatment is efficacious against rattlesnake bite. The presumption is that he had had to walk some distance before being able to apply it. The time lost and the exertion required had been too much for him.

A Seaman On Marine Labor.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Concerning the double streamer lead on the story concerning the S. S. Algic in The Post of October 21, may I make the following comment:

Labor's fight for better working conditions undoubtedly has included instances of regrettable excesses. Further, it is admirable, in my opinion, that The Post should seek to affect a balanced ration in the disseminating of news. But how many of your non-seagoing readers are acquainted with the appalling conditions under which those who "go down to the sea in ships" must live and work? Even in the traditionally higher standard brackets of the United States Merchant Marine (as contrasted with those of some other countries) the lives of those who make up a ship's crew are difficult for landsmen to imagine.

Space is never adequate for even what would be called sub-standard living. Sanitation in some instances does not exist. Let those who doubt that statement visit the fo'c'sle or glory-hole of any steamer without previously notifying the lines. Men who must work long hours in restricted spaces do not have the initiative left to keep their own quarters clean. Those who might frequently fall victim to the spirit of inertia of the dominant mass-psychology-of-fatigue.

Food for the crew, in the mate's department, is atrocious. It is served at mess like prison fare in prison style. Men are normally addressed by some types of officers precisely as convicts might be addressed. It is common knowledge even among "landlubbers" that a marlin-spike or belaying-pin is a disciplinary weapon at times. This is called discipline. It is unnecessary, whatever its rightful name. Most of the men who go to sea do so for love of the romantic in some form or other. If these men were treated humanly, there would be human response from most of them. Exceptions exist at sea as well as on land. The connection between food and discipline is this: Any woman (or what used to pass for a woman) or competent chef knows that a well-fed man is a more tractable man than a poorly fed derelict. If mess were different, what is called discipline would also be different.

The steward's department fares better than the mate's department. This, of course, refers to passenger vessels. On passenger vessels other factors more than equalize this discrepancy. Since the Algic is a freighter, I shall not include the steward's department in this diatribe.

Surely none can doubt that a wage of $45 per month (base rate) is inadequate. Where it is higher, the reason is union pressure. Strikes, however deplorable, have been the only means of getting results.

I have personally experienced life before the mast and in the steward's department as well. My knowledge of shipboard conditions extends to every type of vessel afloat and my present contacts involve men sailing under the colors of 11 flags. The startling thing is this: Men are as one in placing most American officers at the bottom of the heap in intelligent handling of men. This is disgraceful. The many exceptions, the honorable, sympathetic officers who are conscientiously humane do not excuse the condition which many a. b.'s can verify.

I suggest any doubting Thomas consult John Dos Passos for the most informed advice which can be had from a well-known personality. FRANK HARRISON.

The Post Impressionist

PERHAPS you've been in there for something quick like a sandwich and a bottle of beer. If you have you know Gaston. He owns the place, he's the hardest worker in it and he dominates it. He's a short, rather heavy man in a white apron, with an oval face and thinning lightish hair. You can hardly ever catch him when he isn't smiling.

He speaks English with an accent that's difficult to place. Because it might be Teutonic or Gallic or even Latin, I compromised and guessed that he is from Alsace-Lorraine. I was wrong, but it was a long time before I found it out. And then I think he told me, as he rocked back on his heels late one afternoon in the lull that comes to restaurants and eating houses before dinnertime, without really meaning to.

"Have you ever been to Switzerland?" I asked. He smiled broadly.

"Ah—many time have I been to Switzerland. I use' to go to Switzerland almost every week-end. I lived near Stresa, across the border in Italy. We use' to go to Switzerland for chocolate."

* * *

All day he moves back and forth, stepping lively between a small soda fountain, a cash register and a glass and porcelain refrigerated counter. Now and then he turns his head and, ignoring the little microphone and loud speaker set (which he would have bought only in America, never in Stresa) he calls to a colored waitress:

"Blates, Et'el!"

He wants plates for the sandwiches he is making. Her name is Ethel.

A large majority of his customers he greets by name. Perhaps that is one of the reasons that his sandwich shop reminds me of a description I remember once having read of the "chop houses" in New York during O. Henry's day. The "four million" do not go to Gaston's, nor the "four hundred" either, and yet sometimes one will see a gentleman with a pince nez and white piping on his vest sipping his chicken broth at the same table with a laborer in overalls noisily eating bean soup.

The conversation in Gaston's may not be—indeed, is not—as erudite as one likes to believe the conversation in London's Cheshire Cheese must always be. There is no place at table once reserved for Mr. Dickens. The conversation in Gaston's is as American as the loud speaker in Gaston's narrow little kitchen. It runs through the topics of the day. Will there be a war? Did you hear the President last night? What did you think of that for a football game? There are always newspapers lying on the tables, which one customer has left behind for another. During the world series a radio is the center of attraction.

* * *

Gaston has a sense of humor and I have never known him to lack an answer. Sometimes one or another of his patrons, not too long out of college, will call him "Monsieur Gaston" and refer to the sandwich shop as the "Maison Gaston" or "Chez Gaston." He beams then and will likely say:

"It's a service that we do here for humanity. Food goes up, but do we raise our prices? No!" He will shrug his shoulders. "What you have now? We got an-yt'ing you want. Yessir, Chez Gaston it is."

"Steak sandwich."

"You mean one of those nice, delicious, juicy, tender filet mignon—chust 10 cents? Minnie, steak on roll! An' what else, sir?"

If you want to wait you can carry your own food to your table. Or if you pass on into the back room it will be brought you. In the back room the table tops are painted green and there is a large skylight in the ceiling. Sometimes Gaston will say:

"Where you sit? In the palm garden? Ah, to be sure, I send it to you there. Swiss on rye and——"

The back room, which has never contained a plant of any kind, is the "palm garden." And once I even heard him go so far as to call the alley behind the shop "the terrace." The palm garden and the terrace became quite a joke because Mr. Gaston was shrugging his shoulders and smiling when he named them.

He was rocking back on his heels. The afternoon sun had disappeared from the old-fashioned glass jars with large circular tops in which he still keeps chewing gum on the soda fountain.

"How am I going to write you up," I asked, "when you won't tell me anything about yourself? Just think, if you lived in Italy now, you could join the army."

"Army! What do I want with army? I got too many army here. America's my country, an', course, while I like to make just a leetle profit sometimes, America's good enough for me. See?" His voice died away. I waited for him to say, "Blates, Et'el!"

A Lottery Here?

THE UNITED STATES last week successfully defended her dubious honor as champion of the Irish Hospitals Sweep, contributing $7,000,000, more than half of the Cesarewitch Pool, which fell just a little short of $13,500,000. The investment undoubtedly was much greater, because, invariably, a number of phony issues are sold to our gullibles and because, invariably, a proportion of the genuine tickets retailed here are duds whose owners do not get a run for their money. That happens when the agent decides to keep the purchase price of $2.50 for himself instead of remitting it to Dublin.

The agent is under a strong temptation to do this, because the victim, even if he is of a mind to have the law on the agent, cannot come into court with clean hands, being involved in an illegal transaction himself. Moreover, most Americans are unaware that the deal is incomplete unless they receive from the Irish Hospitals Fund in Dublin, well in advance of the race, a formal receipt acknowledging that the agent has sent in the money and the stub. An agent, who peddles 100 or 1,000 tickets for cash has only his conscience for a policeman to make him do the right thing, and most of his clients would not even know they had been swindled.

UP TO 18 months ago the Irish Hospitals Fund had reached $46,000,000, a little more than $15 for public hospitalization for every man, woman and child in the Irish Free State. President Eamon de Valera about that time, nevertheless, thought it best to go to Switzerland for a little trouble with his eyes. The money was then accumulating in such bulk that the Free State government decided to cut itself a neat slice of cake out of the hospital's share.

The Fund receives one-fourth of the gross, and the government, possibly foreseeing a day when the people would be overcrowded with pills and vaccines and unable to hoe potatoes for their incisions and splints, decided to help abate the perils by helping itself to one-fourth of this one-fourth. There have been six pools since then, so, even allowing for the government's kitty, there must be a per capita fund of about $17 or $18 for the very good health of the Irish.

The Honorable Edward A. Kenny, member of Congress from New Jersey, has been active several years in the agitation to legalize a Federal lottery here. Notwithstanding any suggestion which might be seen in his name, he deplores the drift of American money to all foreign lotteries, including the Irish, which is the American favorite.

• • • • •

THE GERMAN, French, Italian and Cuban lotteries receive small play from this country, but the Germans, French and Italians, on their part, send practically nothing to Dublin. The Germans and Italians are not allowed to send money out of their countries, and the French just don't. Maybe the Cubans and other Latin Americans buy a few tickets, but if so, not enough to raise them above the miscellaneous group of customers.

Mr. Kenny once startled his colleagues in Congress with the assertion that New York City alone had bought $16,000,000 worth of tickets on a single pool of the Irish Sweep and brought them up with their ears funneling when he declared that by his reckoning, as an expert on the subject, the United States Treasury could clear a billion dollars a year with a Federal lottery. He runs a very high fever on the subject and may exaggerate the American capacity to absorb lottery tickets.

• • • • •

IT WAS his plan to take down 40 per cent of the gross for the Government, which would mean that the people would have to buy $2,500,000,000 worth a year. That would come to about $48,000,000 a week—not too high a figure of itself. But, considering the competition of the slot machines, the horse tracks, the numbers racket and the inevitable rival, minor league lotteries which would be started by the States, counties and municipalities, Mr. Kenny had better not promise to stand on his head until the Federal kitty hits that billion should his bill become law.

Mr. Kenny certainly dreams a pretty dream though, and far be it from these dispatches to roll a man over when he is tossing billions around in his mind. He told his colleagues that in 35 years his lottery would pay off the whole national debt to date—Wilson's debt, Mr. Big's debt and all—and that would be very nice indeed.

The Once Over

H. I. Phillips

Those 1938 Autos.

The thirty-eighth annual national automobile show is on in New York, and again it is a big disappointment to people who have been predicting that some day the designers would run out of ideas.

• • • •

Not so much has been done to the general shape of a motor car this time, but it is still different enough to make any owner of a 1937 car wish he had waited.

• • • •

So much attention has been paid to radio perfection in the 1938 models that the passenger will wonder whether he is out riding in a radio or back home tuning into an automobile ride.

• • • •

The first question the 1938 buyer asks is whether the car gives good reception, and the only control he gets excited over is volume control.

• • • •

Can you remember away back when every prospective purchaser of a horseless carriage worried over such trivial matters as whether the brakes were good, where the carburetors were located and whether anybody could get her started on a cold morning?

• • • •

Today all they want to know is whether she can take any broadcast without trouble, how soon an auto will be equipped for television and if she has a throttle to regulate fireside chats.

• • • •

The more you consider this radio motif in automobiles the more it puzzles you. For 25 years the automobile builders struggled to take the noise out of their cars.

• • • •

• • • •

From a mechanical standpoint, there are few marked changes in the 1938 cars, and the only one that has the public talking is the transfer of the gear-shift lever from the floor to the steering wheel on some models.

• • • •

The old excuse, "I was reaching for the gear shift, honey," is expected to be useless after January 1.

• • • •

Among other innovations are larger compartments in the dash for stowing wrong road maps, and roomier luggage compartments. Nothing has yet been done (and it's 38 years) about providing an adequate tire jack.

• • • •

And Mr. Kettering is still to provide for interior refrigeration that will keep the driver cool in all emergencies, up to and including the moment when you strike the third stop-light in a row on a five-block trip.

Navy Needs Sailors

Admirals, With Vital Merchant Marine Ships Assured, Are Greatly Concerned Over Lack Of Discipline Among Crews of Vessels.

By Edward T. Folliard

Navy Day finds America's admirals proud of the growing battle fleet, but seriously alarmed over this country's second line of defense, the Merchant Marine.

They are not concerned about ships. Uncle Sam now is committed to a $500,000,000 program of subsidizing and modernizing the merchant marine: first, to provide ships for the Nation's domestic and foreign water-borne commerce, and, second, to provide an auxiliary to the Navy "in time of war or emergency." The ships will be built; already are being designed.

What is bothering high-ranking Navy officers is the turmoil among the men who are expected to sail those ships; the wave of strikes and the charges of widespread lack of discipline. They are not concerned about who is right in the quarrel between ship owners and seamen; they are only concerned with the value of the merchant marine as an auxiliary to the Navy, as a source of supply ships, troop transports and converted aircraft carriers or raiders.

Officers Concerned By Ship Situation.

Navy officers don't talk about such matters for publication. They can't. The way many of them feel, however, is pretty well summed up by Joseph B. Weaver, former director of the Federal Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation.

Weaver says:

"The merchant marine, which should play a most important part in the national defense, has become a liability rather than an asset.

"It is not a pleasant picture to contemplate, particularly in view of the fact that we seem to be gravitating gradually toward a participation in world events which may demand all our resources.

"If this catastrophe overtakes us soon, there will not be time to build up a morale on our ships, because this collapse has been long in the making. It will be too late.

"Troops must be transported without interruption, ammunition and supplies must move on scheduled time, fuel for the fleet must make its rendezvous in accordance with prearranged plans. This cannot be done if the total irresponsibility of the various labor leaders and their underlings, and the total lack of restraint and discipline on the part of the men themselves continue."

The Navy's plans with respect to the merchant marine were revealed to the House Merchant Marine Committee at a hearing last March by Capt. W. O. Spears, then director of naval personnel and now skipper of the battleship West Virginia.

40,000 Men Needed For Maritime Shipping.

"In case of war or national emergency," Capt. Spears said, "the Navy would require approximately 1,200 merchant vessels as naval auxiliaries. A minimum of 5,000 officers and 35,000 seamen would be necessary to operate these vessels. Additional personnel would be necessary to convert them to naval use. We naturally expect this personnel to come from the merchant marine."

Capt Spears said that 3,400 licensed officers of the merchant marine had been enrolled in the Naval Reserve, but no enlisted men. The reason for this, he said, was "lack of appropriations and the unsettled conditions in the merchant marine."

American merchant marine officers and sailors played an important and gallant part in the World War. This country's merchant marine was so small then, however, that there were not enough officers and men to handle the tasks that arose.

When this country converted the interned German liners into troop transports, it was necessary to draw thousands of sailors from the battle fleet to man them. Bluejacks also were taken from the fleet to form gun crews on merchant ships.

The Navy was able to do this in the World War, naval authorities point out, only because the British fleet had the German fleet bottled up in the North Sea. Had this this not been so, had the American Navy been obliged to fight a major sea battle, every man would have been needed in the fleet, and none could have been spared for transports or supply ships.

That is why, in planning for another emergency, the Navy counts so heavily on the personnel of the merchant marine.

Communist Control Of Unions Denied.

That there are Communists in the merchant marine is not denied. The Daily Worker, official organ of the Communist Party in this country, recently carried an article which told how fo'csle Soviets were being formed. Representatives of the unions admit that there are Communists aboard the ships. They insist, however, that these Communists don't dominate the maritime unions.

If the sailors appear to be radical today, these union spokesmen told the House Merchant Marine Committee last March, it is because they are determined to better "intolerable conditions" aboard American ships.

Ship captains and others who appeared before the committee to complain about the seagoing Communists paid tribute to most of the merchant sailors, saying they were good American citizens. But a handful of radical agitators, they said, was capable of great evil.

Listening to one such witness, Representative Francis D. Culkin, of New York, observed that only 100,000 Communists in Russia had established that doctrine throughout an empire and applied it to more than 150,000,000 people.

The question of the merchant marine in the national defense picture came up at that House hearing while Mervyn Rathborne, head of a union of maritime radio operators, was testifying. He was reminded that the 1936 merchant marine act, with its subsidy feature, was passed with the idea that the ships and the men would be available in time of war.

"Are you in sympathy with that phase of it, personally?" he was asked.

"Personally," Rathborne replied, "I am in sympathy with the defense of this country. I am not in sympathy with the United States entering any wars of aggression, however."

"Well, you would be in favor of making these ships and crews available for purposes of national defense?"

"For purposes of national defense, yes."

Nobody asked him who was to decide whether it was a war of defense or aggression. Neither did anybody ask what he would do if he were a naval reserve and this country got into a war he didn't like.

CCC Boys Credited With Curbing Fires In National Parks

The co-operation of CCC enrollees is largely responsible for the 50 per cent reduction in fires in the national parks this year, National Park Service officials said yesterday. From January 1 to September 30, 1936, 767 fires laid waste to 15,312 acres in the parks. For the same period in 1937, only 346 fires were reported and 1,512 acres damaged.

CCC boys act as lookouts in the park system and help combat the fires. "Both enrollees and foremen are becoming more fire-conscious," according to the park service report, "and it is apparent that their reaction even has had a bearing upon influencing the general visiting public to be more conscious of existing fire danger and more cautious in their activities where fire hazards exist."

Park officials expressed their satisfaction with the results of the fire training schools established in CCC camps last spring under the jurisdiction of the National Park Service.

Giorgione.

IN THE PREFACE to his book, "Giorgione," Mr. Phillips touches with a modest eloquence upon some of the influences that have gone into the shaping of his beautiful book—a book which is as obviously a labor of love as it is of scholarship.

The task which Mr. Phillips has set for himself is an exacting one. He would sift thoroughly the grist of Venetian Renaissance painting and separate the chaff, erroneously called "Giorgionesque" from the pure grain of Giorgione's creative genius. This entails a loving patience, a never-ending comparison of examples, a sound critical philosophy and a sure esthetic judgment. All these Mr. Phillips brings to his task, aided by a strong literary gift.

• • • •

WITH PENETRANT sensibility, the author analyzes the genius of Giorgione, pointing out the temperamental sources of his exquisite lyricism, building an appreciation for the soundness and depth of his plastic design, proving his mastery of the techniques of his chosen medium. At length, there emerges a personality that is significant in an almost cosmic sense—an artist in whom the forces of the real and the ideal are so blended that he is at once the victim and victor of his time and his environment, and hence the creator of an art, both timely and timeless. His denials become affirmations; his dreams, realizations—his restraints become releases, and his revolts, tradition.

With an engaging willingness to share his adventure with his reader, Mr. Phillips leads us through the mazes of biographical detail and opens to us the pages of Giorgio Vasari and Marcantonio Michiel. Only four Giorgiones which can be confidently assumed as originals emerge from this study. They are the "Tempesta," tardily rescued from an American purchaser and treasured today in Venice's Academia, "The Three Wise Men," now in Vienna; "The Sleeping Venus," in Dresden, and "Christ and His Cross," in San Rocco, Venice. The succeeding chapter discusses the "Tempesta" as the one autograph Giorgione, clarifying the whole problem of authenticity and augmenting the discussion with a sound and poetic evaluation of that great painting.

From this time on, the moods and substances and technique of Giorgione are played against those of other Venetian painters until the whole period comes alive. We see the artist in relation to his masters, his pupils, his patrons—at work on cassone, on frescoes, on altarpieces and on portraits, until at length Giorgione's genius flowers mysteriously but surely, under the left and sensitive literary touch of Mr. Phillips.

• • • •

THE VOLUME is profusely illustrated with many full-page plates that allow a careful study. Lists and indices are arranged and compiled to supplement the text, and the care and precision with which this illustrative and tabulated material is set forth, testifies to the exhaustive but inexhaustible character of the whole study. The book's format deserves especial comment, not alone for its clarity but for its sheer beauty.

The Washington public has for years owed Mr. Phillips a deep debt of gratitude for his generosity in sharing with them the substance of his important collection of paintings in the Phillips Memorial Gallery. It must now widen the bounds of that gratitude to include a richly deserved praise for Mr. Phillips' distinguished contribution to the literature of art.

THE PERSON who would write seriously about art has a grave responsibility. To avoid the pitfalls that reduce so much art-talk to mere twaddle, he must be greatly gifted and surely guided. He must have a seeing eye; his heart must not rule his head, nor his head, his heart, for esthetic concepts must be molded by sound philosophies and warmth of feeling. Such a person is Hannah Priebsch Closs, whose book, "Art and Life," published by Frederick Stokes, has just come from the press. It is a book at once stimulating and satisfying, for it has emanated from a mind and spirit supremely fitted for its task.

• • • •

MRS. CLOSS' book recalls Roger Fry at his best, although it is tempered by a distinctly feminine touch. Fry comes at once to mind because Mrs. Closs is concerned with his enunciated principle "significant form," but where he was at times vaguely articulate as to the specific meanings attached to his term, she has ceased to see through a glass darkly and is seeing face to face. Convincingly she shows how form is determined by changing needs and purposes, and with a sure sense she guides us through the byways of the long past and through the intricate mazes of the present, showing how "Form" adapting itself to altering needs and purposes, is ever-changing and at the same time ever the same. Her examination of art entails a penetrating analysis of man's spiritual gropings and man's practical needs, and she so surely develops their relations to one another that one closes the book feeling very strongly the continuity that holds together all art and all humanity.

• • • •

NOT THE LEAST attractive thing about this book is the collection of 59 plates, beautifully reproduced and printed at the back of the text. These illustrations not only delight the eye, but they are chosen with the same rare discernment that makes the reading so worth while. Here is nothing hackneyed—nothing outworn, but a collection of varied and beautiful examples of great works of art, so arranged as to prove, by contrast and analogy, the shallowness of certain sentimental concepts and the depth of other human and formal values. Never, however, is the author doctrinaire in her attitude. "Art and Life" is a book to be read and reread, to be contemplated, enjoyed and treasured.

It seems to me that this is a matter which can only be of interest to another termite.

SUSAN ERTZ was just as charming and unaffected as I had hoped she would be . . . She said that English people are fully cognizant of the fact that America has by far the best playwrights . . . I asked her about Noel Coward . . . She seemed to think he would improve with the years . . . Willa Cather, in her opinion, outranks all our other women writers . . . Miss Ertz's sister-in-law, who lives here, set next to me at the luncheon and I found to my delight that she is a greatniece of Elizabeth Barrett Browning . . . While the rest of us were discussing books, Mrs. Ertz was discussing babies . . . I think her great-aunt Ba would have liked that.

EDWIN MUIR, who wrote "We Moderns" which was prefaced by H. L. Mencken, has finished his second book and called it "Scott and Scotland" . . . He wrote it in a clay-walled cottage in the Orkney Islands where the fishing and peasant folk dispense with the use of knives and forks as in the days of good Queen Bess . . (Funk and Wagnall take note: think how many copies of Emily Post's new book you could sell there) . . Or could you?

Tom McCarthy

Learns Capital Guides Have A Grievance.

FAME MAY be fleeting, but the kids are still asking to see the "Spirit of St. Louis." The Capital's sightseeing guides are unanimous on that point. They all agree that for the 12-year-olds, Lindbergh's plane over in the Smithsonian Institution is the biggest thrill the Capital has to offer. The G-Men are a close second.

TOM McCARTHY.

Information is their business, but when it comes to speaking for publication they insist that Mr. Jones take the floor. Mr. Leslie Jones is definitely the No. 1 man. That's his license badge number. And when I asked the guides congregated in front of the White House for a little information about their profession they turned me over to Mr. Jones. A middle-aged gentleman of soldierly bearing, he has been a guide for more than 26 years.

"And I consider it a respectable position," Mr. Jones told me, "but sometimes people confuse the 'bootleg' guides with licensed ones."

I didn't know much about 'bootleg' guides, but Mr. Jones was eager to clear up that point, so he went right ahead.

"Down around the Monument or the Lincoln Memorial you'll find that kind of guide," he said. "In fact they'd probably hang out here if they didn't know that we'd run them in. They operate wherever large groups of tourists congregate.

"Now, there are only about 25 of us licensed guides, and we pay for our licenses, take strict examinations and have a responsibility to the District police. These 'bootleggers' on the other hand aren't responsible to anyone. They just walk up to tourist cars, introduce themselves as guides. And get paid for showing people the city. Even though they don't know anything about it.

"It's against the law to act as 'guide or escort' without a license," Mr. Jones said. "But it's hard to catch those fellows. And sometimes we take the rap for their actions. We get blamed for their unsatisfactory service."

But if the 'bootleg' guide is a thorn in the collective side of the licensed ones, and a particular burden to Mr. Jones, he has no idea of turning to other pursuits.

"I LIKE this business," he said. "It never gets tiresome. We're dealing with a different set of people every day. And in my 26 years of experience I've found that the tourist is a pretty good person. I've never met a bad one!"

But if Mr. Jones has never met a bad tourist, he has met some famous ones.

"Take this fellow Lloyd George—the great British statesman," Mr. Jones said. "I showed him around the town when he was here years ago, and then I took him out to Gettysburg. You couldn't ask for a nicer kind of fellow. As easy to talk to as the fellow in the corner grocery.

"I know Englishmen aren't supposed to have a sense of humor, but Mr. Lloyd George sure had one. I never laughed so hard in my life. He had a funny remark for everything. In fact, I had such a good time listening to him, I almost forgot about my pay."

That admission really clinched Mr. Jones' claims about Mr. Lloyd George's humor, because Mr. Jones receives $10 for six hours of showing visitors the town. In fact, he has been known to pass up a two-hour job, paying only $3.

He explains, "If I take the little ones I may lose the big ones. If I miss a big one I'm out $10. If I pass up a little one on the chance of getting a big one, and then don't get a job, I'm only out $3."

"He doesn't look at all like his pictures," Mr. Jones said, "and the first time I showed him around, not 1 out of 100 people would have recognized him. He was wearing a panama hat, light suit, regular collar and tie and sport shoes."

Mr. Jones admitted that he didn't discuss politics with the radio priest, because he never discusses politics with his customers. He's discovered through 26 years that politics is the one subject guides should avoid in talking with their customers.

"I just tell them that we don't have the vote down here, and that I'm not interested," he said. "Personally, I don't agree with a lot of Father Coughlin's theories, so I just steered clear of that. And found him to be a splendid gentleman."

When Fr. Coughlin saw the town under Mr. Jones' guidance, he made a tour of the churches rather than the District's great public buildings.

"He was putting up his church out in Royal Oak then," Mr. Jones said, "so he went around to every church in the District I could find. He went to Protestant churches and Jewish synagogues and he carried two architects with him. He wanted to get ideas for his own building.

"He seemed to know his architecture," Mr. Jones said, "and he told me something I never knew." When Mr. Jones admits there is something about the Capital which his 26 years of guide service haven't uncovered, then it is indeed an abstruse point.

"He told me," Mr. Jones said, "that the roof of the Supreme Court Building isn't white tile, as most people think. It's individually cut pieces of white marble. I think he said that it was the only one of its kind in this country."

Father Coughlin, with his tour of the churches, isn't a unique customer in the records of Mr. Jones. He says that he often has travelers who concentrate on just one point.

"I had one man from Vermont who made me take him to every marble building in town. He was in the business, and he wanted to study the way the marble had been used."

BUT FOR the-run-of-the-mine tourists Mr. Jones can tell pretty much in advance just what they want to see.

"The ladies like the wax models of the First Ladies over in the Smithsonian. You know the models wear the dresses used by the First Ladies at the inaugurations. The men and youngsters like the trip through the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Businessmen seem to have a hankering to get a close-up of the Supreme Court Building.

"Yes, sir," said Mr. Jones, "they want to see the Supreme Court Building, now. And they look at it almost reverently."

Dr. Schacht Insists He Has Quit But Hitler Asks Him to Remain

Economics Minister, Urged to Stay Without Portfolio to Show Loyalty, Expected Also to Drop Presidency of Reichsbank.

Berlin, Oct. 26 (AP).—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht announced informally today his resignation as minister of economics had been accepted by Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, but Nazi officials stanchly denied any decision concerning him had been reached.

Dr. Schacht told a group of guests at a farewell party to Douglas Jenkins, American consul general, who is leaving shortly for London, that he considered himself discharged from his duties in the ministry since yesterday.

Dr. Schacht said, whimsically:

"The official announcement of my resignation will be made yesterday, today or tomorrow. I am not breaking my head about my successor. That is for others to worry about."

Dr. Schacht's desire to resign also as president of the Reichsbank was indicated by his statement that he would remain in that capacity "for the present." (The Reichsbank is the central bank which issues German currency. It also is the government agency for control of German banking.)

Hitler Wants Him to Stay.

One of Germany's best known private bankers said the financier had been requested by Hitler to remain as minister without portfolio to demonstrate to the world he was loyal to the Nazi government, although he differed over methods of administering Germany's economic affairs.

Reports Dr. Schacht would be removed from the cabinet first arose in March, 1936, as result of a four-point program he announced.

The program proposed:

1. A sharp reduction in the cost of government.
2. Drastic curtailment of party apparatus.
3. Reduction of the gestapo (secret police) and its functions.
4. Stoppage of the armament race.

The Nazi movement from then on, informed sources said, was solidly against him.

Never in Nazi Party.

In August, 1934, he was named minister of economics and given almost dictatorial powers to restore the economy of the Reich to a sound basis.

Dr. Schacht was never a member of any Nazi organization and up to that time had confined his activities strictly to banking.

He immediately threw an economic wall around Germany by announcing as his policy that the Reich would buy from a given country only as much as that country would buy from Germany.

He ran into continual difficulties with Nazi leaders. In 1935 he severely criticized Jew-baiters in a speech. The propaganda ministry saw to it that sections of the speech referring to Jews were not published in the newspapers but he distributed it privately as a pamphlet.

Archbishop Defied By 'Social Justice'

Detroit, Oct. 26 (AP).—The recently sold Social Justice Publishing Co., whose weekly newspaper has been an organ for the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin's National Union for Social Justice, declined today to follow "directions" from Archbishop Edward Mooney of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Detroit.

Through its attorney, Prewitt Semmes, the company stated it would "continue to edit and publish Social Justice without supervision of anyone except its own officers."

House Hearing Opens Today to Draft Farm Bill

zations, and with Chairman Smith of the Senate group reputedly still hostile to control features, a rocky special session road lay ahead of the farm legislation.

Similar rough going appeared in store for the wages and hours bill, No. 2 measure on the special session agenda. Although Chairman John J. O'Connor continued confident of breaking his Rules Committee deadlock, renewed criticism was coming from organized labor.

Early Hearings Aim.

Of the five bills listed by the President—farm, wages and hours, Government reorganization, regional planning and antitrust law tightening—Government reorganization alone is now ready to move when Congress assembles. Yet both Houses are under formal pledge to consider the unprepared farm bill first.

Administration strategy appeared aimed at whipping a House farm bill into shape first, as nearly as possible acceptable to all interests concerned, and proceeding immediately thereafter with House hearings. Jones, whose revised farm bill dropped into the hopper near the close of last session most nearly bridged conflicting farm viewpoints, apparently can count this session on the backing of Wallace.

Immediate difficulties included means of financing the program through taxes, methods of controlling crop surpluses and enactment of the program in time for next year's crop. The President has made clear that new revenue must be provided to finance the program. But revival of processing taxes, once invalidated by the Supreme Court, was certain to head into controversy.

The Farm Bureau Federation bill proposed last session, indorsed in principle by Wallace, provided for compulsory marketing quotas and penalties if voluntary co-operation failed and provided for a referendum among farmers before rigid control methods were invoked.

Referendum Possible.

Wallace never has directly favored compulsory production control, but at a recent press conference indorsed "surplus control," which implies production restrictions following years of bumper crops.

Any plan agreed on may be put directly up to the farmers before compulsory compliance measures are invoked. The Administration has been highly successful in farm referendums. Approximately 82 per cent of the commercial potato growers voted for control of the 1938 potato crop under the soil conservation program, and 18 per cent against. Only one State, Texas, went on record against.

A primary obstacle was seen in the failure of leading farm organizations to agree on common objectives and methods. Much may depend on the stand taken by the National Grange convention opening in Harrisburg, Pa., five days before Congress convenes.

Taber believes the plan should be "largely in the hands of the farmers themselves," that it should have a "minimum of regulation and domination," but that it should provide for "the occasional storage of periodical or seasonal surpluses, and for a fair carryover, so that drought and shortage would not penalize the consumer on the one hand, or stimulate overproduction on the other."

Two Senate subcommittees which have been touring the South and West will return to Washington the week of November 1 to begin work on a Senate bill. They will bring back with them data collected from farmers at representative farm centers. A factional committee fight may develop between Chairman Smith, who opposed the program last session, and ardent Administration supporters on the committee.

White House Road Improvement Ends

One way of characterizing the latest improvement at the White House is to say that it will be quite safe for a fire to break out there now.

C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of National Capital Parks, yesterday said that road rehabilitation in the south grounds and construction of new gates on both the east and west sides has been completed and that fire engines can enter the preserve now.

"The old roadways in the south grounds were built for horse and buggy traffic," said Finnan.

Plot to Kill Children For Insurance Is Denied

Media, Pa., Oct. 26 (AP).—Albert R. Knight denied today in Delaware County court he set fire to his Lansdowne home in an arson-murder attempt to collect $120,000 insurance on the lives of his children.

He said he had stuffed kerosene-soaked papers and oakum into cracks and around joists in the cellar to stop migrating insects.

Post Staff Photos.

BACKACHE

Look To Your Kidneys
They May Need Attention

It's an old saying that "thousands have kidney weakness and don't know it."

Backache may or may not come from bad functioning kidneys, but it often does.

Much of the waste, excess acids and poisons are drawn from the blood and expelled thru the kidneys and bladder—if the kidneys become inactive and do not work naturally they need flushing just as do the bowels.

So if your back aches—if your bladder is irritable—if passage is difficult or scanty and ofttimes smarts and burns—if you have to break your refreshing sleep by getting up often at night—if you are continually nervous or irritable, it may be that your kidneys need attention.

One good and effective Kidney diuretic and stimulant that brings gratifying results is GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—it's safe—it's harmless—and has been helping people with weak kidneys for scores of years.

But be sure it's GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—right from Haarlem in Holland—ask for and get GOLD MEDAL—the original—the genuine—Be smart enough not to accept a counterfeit.

A.F.L. Drafts Rejection of Plan Giving C.I.O. Labor Dominance

row at 10 o'clock, at which time the committee representing the A. F. of L. states it will have a proposal to submit. We had expected a proposal from them this morning. We, of course, carried out our promise to have a proposal ready."

It was immediately apparent that acceptance of the C. I. O. plan in full was impossible.

If membership claims of the two organizations are approximately correct, the proposed C. I. O. department of the federation could outvote the members of the parent organization, dominate the entire setup and establish its own officers over all. In addition, the C. I. O. demand for organization on industrial lines solely within the industries it listed, would wipe out entirely the existing A. F. of L. unions in those industries and increase the disparity in voting strength between the two factions in the revamped federation.

The C. I. O. now claims about 3,800,000 workers in its unions, the A. F. of L. says it has something over 3,600,000.

Should the industries mentioned be set aside for industrial unionization exclusively, large sections of the federation craft unions, in those industries, presumably would have to be given to the C. I. O. forces. In fact the federation's loyal International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the International Longshoremen's Association and the International Seamen's Union would have to be given over bodily to the C. I. O. unions in those fields. Even should the federation heads be willing to make such a sacrifice, it is extremely unlikely that all of the federation unions involved would consent to their absorption by the Lewis unions which have been competing with them.

Such industries as steel, automobiles and radio would, as well be barred to federation craft unions, machinists, electricians and others.

Federation officials have indicated they would insist that their craft unions, in any peace negotiations, retain their A. F. of L. identities and affiliations.

Lewis, on the other hand, has promised his C. I. O. unions that in the negotiations here they would not be sacrificed to the federation groups.

The tranquillity, the apparent spirit of conciliation, that marked the opening day's sessions were missing yesterday. There had crept in, instead, a touch of the hostility and grim taunting more familiar in C. I. O.-A. F. L. relations.

Joseph Curran, aggressive head of the C. I. O.'s National Maritime Union, was the first to emerge from the hotel conference room after the C. I. O. had presented its demands. Asked how Harrison, leader of the federation committee, had received the proposals, he replied:

"He's still quivering."

To a question whether there would be an afternoon session, he said:

"No. You can't expect people to come out of a dead faint and go right on negotiating!

Following adjournment for the day the C. I. O. committee conferred again with Lewis, who had a prominent hand in drafting the peace proposal, but none would disclose the nature of the talk.

The C. I. O. department in the federation, if it were created, would be along the lines, but with vastly more power, than the existing departments for unions in the metal trades, building trades, railway labor and union label trades.

Hope for peace between the two factions was expressed by Secretary of Labor Perkins, who has been accused by the A. F. of L. of partiality toward the C. I. O.

"I am very hopeful," she said at a press conference, "they will find a method of accommodating their views. I am sure they will find a basis for discussion. I don't know anything we desire more profoundly than a molding and blending of the issues between the two sides."

Declaring the strife had complicated her department's program she continued:

"We have, however, kept a middle ground, painful as it has been to us. Whenever it has been necessary, such as on matters of legislation, we have consulted both sides and have tried to slight neither one."

She said that James L. Dewey, conciliator for the department, was not serving as an Administration emissary in seeking to bring the two factions together.

As the dispute stood last night, there was considerably less prospect of peace than there had been 24 hours earlier. There was little belief that the C. I. O. chiefs expected their suggestions to be adopted. But the reply of the federation and some indication of the extent to which the Lewis forces were willing to compromise, was eagerly awaited.

A visitor from Mars might have been astounded yesterday at the sight of men, women and children playing postoffice with thousands of buzzing insects.

Taking as their excuse the International Beekeepers' Congress, which is being held at the Hotel Washington, a band who think nothing of gargling bees (stingers and all) and making them do most everything but yodel, put on a show just south of the White House.

Nominal headliner of the demonstration was 75-year-old E. R. Root from Medina, Ohio—"eatin' honey makes me stay so young"—but every one of the 400 or so spectators was a member of the cast long before the performance ended, what with bees strolling up their arms, across their faces and even down their necks.

"Never strike a bee," advised Mr. Root, up there on a platform in the Ellipse, his voice scarcely audible through the buzz of 50,000 of his playmates, "and a bee will never sting you."

"Bees," he continued as he proudly went through his look-they're-all-over-my-head stunt, "are just like folks. Some types are mean, others are gentle. Half-breeds are the worst."

On first mounting the platform, Ross apologized that he hadn't exhibited his repertoire of bee tricks for ten years, but his production came off without a hitch. He kissed the little rascals and loaded them into a hat and then put the hat on and presented six little girls and a little boy, who did more tricks.

The show, however, was stolen by Henry Brown, of Cape May Courthouse, N. J., whose winged workers produce "the best Spanish needle honey in all South Jersey." If you didn't believe him you could stick your finger into the comb he passed around and find out for yourself.

Inventor of a new kind of stingless bee, Brown took 50,000 of them out of their hives and literally used them to give himself a shower bath. He dumped them into a pasteboard box, which he then inverted over his head.

He put handfuls of his pets in his mouth, allowed them to cluster on his brow and scooped them out of the box with his bare hands as though they were so many lima beans. If he ever got stung, he never let on.

Russians Doom 4 Men In Plot to Poison Cows

Moscow, Oct. 26 (AP).—Four men today were sentenced at Archangel to death on charges of bribing milkmaids to poison prize dairy cows and of "other anti-Soviet wrecking" in the cattle-breeding industry. A fifth defendant was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment.

Four other death sentences were imposed in eastern Siberia for alleged wrecking of state farms and a co-operative organization. One death sentence at Dagestan, for spoiling grain, also was reported.

Bulk Whiskies

Among the barraled whiskies now in our own U. S. Customs Bonded Warehouse are two of exceptional character. Like all our wines and liquors, they are direct purchases from reliable distillers or their accredited agents.

One is a Scotch Blended Malt Whisky of rare flavor, 116 proof, and ten years old.

The other is a rich, mild Canadian Straight Whiskey, 123 proof, and eight years old.

In an Internal Revenue Bonded Warehouse, we also have a Maryland straight rye, distilled in July 1933, 105 proof. In bottling, all will be brought down to usual proof, or as desired.

Czarist Prince, Popular Here, Is Dead at 77

Serge Wolkonsky Funeral Set Tomorrow at Hot Springs.

By the Associated Press.

Hot Springs, Va., Oct. 26.—Prince Serge Wolkonsky, whose family traced its descent from the Imperial Russian House of Romanoff, died here yesterday after an illness of six days. He was 77.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 9:30 a. m. at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church. The body will be interred in Hollywood Cemetery, Richmond, in the afternoon.

Prince Wolkonsky is survived by his wife, the former Mrs. Seth Barton French, of New York and Hot Springs.

Widely Known in U. S.

For his part in this affair, Prince Sergius was condemned by the imperial courts of Russia to penal servitude in Siberia. After 30 years he was pardoned and allowed to return to Russia.

The present Prince Wolkonsky was widely known in the United States. He represented Russia at the Chicago World's Fair in 1893.

Later he was appointed superintendent of the old Imperial Theater in St. Petersburg, Russia, long before the outbreak of the World War. He was a Czarist of the old school, when the Romanoffs were at the height of their autocratic power.

The Prince and Mrs. French became engaged in London July 14, 1936.

She was the widow of Seth Barton French, of Virginia and New York, and the daughter of J. Walker Fearn, of the Diplomatic Corps.

During the World War she won great distinction. Having lived many years in Paris, she offered France her services as a nurse. She also promoted aid for American hospitals and ambulance work, and went frequently to the front.

Published Memoirs.

Once, while on duty with one of the American hospitals, she stood on the banks of the Aisne River, with shells bursting around her, and watched an artillery duel between British and German batteries.

Later, she took up relief work and in 1916 she toured the United States and gave lectures to enlist the aid of the country for the Red Cross and Serbian relief funds.

When she was in service behind the lines she cared for French, British, Americans and Germans. She once told how she stole food to give to Germans who were hungry and wounded.

Her father was U. S. Minister to Rumania, later to Greece and Serbia. She spent much of her childhood in the Balkan States.

A $10 note from the $50,000 bundle of currency paid in a vain attempt to obtain the release of the retired manufacturer was found by a railroad employe.

The finding of the bills tended to strengthen two theories: That the kidnaping was engineered by Chicago criminals, and that G-men are working against a cunning gang instead of a band of "amateur punks," as first deduced by police.

Brilliant Party Attends Ball to Aid Lunch Fund

Last night was free lunch night at the Mayflower Hotel. That does not mean, of course, that all arrivals were served refreshments gratis. It means that nearly 3,000 Washington social notables attended the ball held there for the benefit of the school free lunch fund.

Brooke Johns presided over the merriment as master of ceremonies. Entertainment included numbers by the Keller sisters, singers, and "Senator" Murphy, comedian, who are appearing at local theaters this week.

The ballroom was decorated with flags of all nations. A further international touch was added by the presence of members of the German, Russian and Swiss embassies.

Among the dancers were Admiral Cary T. Grayson, Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal, District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, Mrs. John Hay Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Sands, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Willard G. Barker, Dr. and Mrs. J. Breckenridge Bayne, the Misses Katherine Friant, Mary Agnes Young, Alice Clark, Ruth Quinn, Bradford Ross, James Brent Charles, jr., Charles Koester and John A. Sobotka, jr.

Next week the scene of the drive's activities will be shifted from the Mayflower to the Belasco Theater, where magic shows will be presented twice daily, 2:30 p. m. and 8:30 p. m., for the benefit of the lunch fund.

Hoover Calls for Coalition to Fight New Deal

not around political bargains or stratagems.

"If the Republican Party meets the needs and aspirations of the people who are opposed to the New Deal, they will fuse and coalesce, and not before. They only join in the march if they know where they are going."

Criticizing the Roosevelt regime, Hoover asserted that New Dealers "seek to make us believe that abuse cannot be cured without that creeping collectivism called planned economy."

"That 'gradual collectivism' is creeping upon us should be evident by this time to every thinking American," he said. "The Government manipulation of money and credit, Government restriction of production, Government control of hours and wages, the entry of the Government into competitive business on a large scale, Government coercion of upright citizens—these are but part of it. * * *

Middle Class "Forgotten."

"There cannot be a system part collectivist and part regulated private enterprise. The very conflict of the two systems creates one economic emergency after another. We witness that at this very hour."

Hoover made an apparent reference to the controversy about the appointment of Justice Black of the speech, warning Republicans to "make a distinction between true and pseudo" in using the word liberal.

"The term liberal," he said, "has now become the fashionable clothing of all collectivists, whether they be New Dealers, with creeping collectivism, or frank and open Socialists, or the unconscious Fascists. Its folds can apparently even be entered through the Ku Klux Klan."

Hoover asked why the members of the large economic middle class should be made "the forgotten men." He added:

"Their redemption must come through preserving the two-thirds, not by dragging them down. In all his long years Santa Claus never increased the standard of living of a nation."

In further urging a new declaration of party principles, he asserted that "the New Deal road to salvation is paved with objectives," and added that "the road badly needs repaving with practical methods."

Near the conclusion, he said:

"There is discussion in the Republican Party as to whether it should undertake to declare its position upon fundamental questions now or wait until 1940.

"I realize the theory of some political leaders is that most people vote against something. It is their further theory that you have only to stand by and criticize. Give the other fellow enough rope and he will hang himself, and thereby you win elections.

"That is an old belief. But I insist it is inadequate for the needs of this day."

Union Insists President Oust Maritime Head

C. I. O. Affiliate Calls for Action After Algic Mutiny Charge.

By Edward T. Folliard

The National Maritime Union, C. I. O. affiliate on the sea, yesterday telegraphed President Roosevelt in Hyde Park saying the resignations of Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the United States Maritime Commission, and Daniel Ring, a subordinate, were "in order at this time," as result of their action in the S. S. Algic case.

Joseph Curran, president pro-tem of the National Maritime Union, one of the telegram signers, had said that the union was "going to get the scalp" of Kennedy.

Ready For Voyage.

In Baltimore, the Algic, an 8,000-ton freighter, was ready to clear today on another voyage to South America with lumber. Its new crew, like the old one, are members of the National Maritime Union.

Fourteen members of the crew on a 13,000-mile cruise marked by a murder, a drowning, and three sit-down strikes, were in jail in that city on a charge of inciting a mutiny at Montevideo, Uruguay. The men said they would stay in jail until Government officials recognize "the injustice they are doing to us and all other seamen."

The Federal Government, as represented by the Maritime Commission and the Department of Justice, said the conduct of the crew smacked of mutiny, since they had signed articles to obey Capt. Joseph Gainard's lawful orders until the end of the voyage.

The National Maritime Union says it was "an ordinary labor dispute," one that should be settled, not in court, but by the National Labor Relations Board.

Therein lies the crux of the controversy.

Held Out of Harmony.

The union men say that Kennedy's attitude (which is really the attitude of the Maritime Commission) is out of harmony with the labor "policy of the Administration." Shipping men agree that if the union men have the case of the S. S. California in mind, their statement is correct.

About two years ago, the California sailed from New York to San Francisco. Higher wages were paid seamen on the West Coast. When the ship reached Los Angeles, the crew demanded West Coast wages and staged a sit-down strike, delaying the ship, 450 passengers and several thousand tons of freight.

The line owning the ship appealed to the Department of Commerce, and Joseph B. Weaver, then director of the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation, went to the Department of Justice with a view of prosecuting the crew on mutiny charges.

Not Mutiny Then.

The case was discussed at a meeting of the Roosevelt Cabinet, and Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, was reported to have insisted that it was not mutiny but an ordinary strike. She was further reported as having called Curran, union leader, and persuaded him to have the crew return to work pending a settlement. Many sit-down strikes followed.

In the Algic case, the Perkins philosophy has been discarded. The Federal Government says the Algic crew incited to mutiny, and the burden of proving the charge is on President Roosevelt's chief law officer, Attorney General Homer S. Cummings.

The telegram sent to Hyde Park yesterday by Curran and Ralph Emerson, legislative representative of the C. I. O.'s maritime unions, said:

"On behalf of the membership of the National Maritime Union comprising an overwhelming majority on the merchant marine seamen on the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts and the Great Lakes, we request that you use your good offices in seeing that justice is procured for the 14 members of the crew of the S. S. Algic, who are now wrongfully incarcerated in a Federal jail in Baltimore on trumped-up charges of insubordination instigated by certain government officials, the shipping interests and the Maritime Commission.

Hearing on Tuesday.

"We also request that you condemn the action of the Maritime Commission, particularly that part taken by Chairman Joseph Kennedy and one of his subordinates, Daniel Ring, whose action in this case we feel violates every principle and right of labor guaranteed to us by your liberal administration.

"We further feel in view of the action taken by Mr. Kennedy and Ring that their resignations would be in order at this time."

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Eugene Ormandy conducts the Philadelphia Orchestra in Constitution Hall Tuesday night, with Fritz Kreisler as soloist. Program: Organ Prelude and Fugue in B minor (Bach-Caillet), Violin Concerto in E major (Bach), Violin Concerto in E minor (Mendelssohn), Excerpts from "Siegfried" (Wagner-Caillet).

Whether the cause was the joy of concert-goers over the coming of the Philadelphia Orchestra to open its thirty-fifth season here, or the spontaneous spirit of welcome directed at Fritz Kreisler, there was a great release of enthusiasm last evening in Constitution Hall, which was filled to capacity with an eager and demonstrative assemblage. If the periods of applause had been measured in meters and decibels, the record would have shown that Mr. Kreisler received the major portion. After each of the concertos, he was recalled to the stage so many times that one lost count of his comings and goings.

His playing had the elan and the sparkle of a musician 62 years young. Musical vitality such as his knows no age, preserved from waning by the perpetual service to art. One could, if one wished, take note of an occasional slip in his fine technique, but there was no reason why one's attention should be fixed upon such trivial matters while a master of the violin was making its strings sing with eloquence. Technique is only the servant of interpretation, and in the readings of a Kreisler sounds as moving a poesy as one will hear anywhere.

The association of Bach and Mendelssohn on the program was a happy reminder of the debt that the former owes the latter. There is no pleasanter page in musical history than the one that tells of the kindling of zeal in young Felix Mendelssohn when he studied the St. Matthew Passion with Zelter, and of his determination that the world should hear again a masterpiece that had been forgotten. It was his undeviating and selfless devotion that ultimately resulted in the revival of Bach.

Last night's concert offered Johann Sebastian's great prelude and fugue for organ in an excellent transcription by Louis Cailliet, and the sturdy E major violin concerto, so contagiously joyful in the first and last movements and so surcharged with spirituality in the adagio. In the performance of both there were moments of supreme enjoyment, of absorption in pure music. And the Mendelssohn concerto, disparate from Bach as it is in romantic exuberance and emotional excitement, was a fitting companion piece.

Much as one admired the adroitness of Mr. Cailliet in his instrumentation of the Bach prelude and fugue and the resplendent performance by the remarkable Philadelphians under the persuasive hands of Eugene Ormandy, one questions the need for more transcriptions as long as there are unnumbered works for orchestra gathering dust on library shelves. Bach's organ compositions are, after all, heard as they were intended when coming from the pipes of that instrument, and the iridescent colors of the orchestra are strange to their nature.

For Mr. Cailliet's arrangement of passages from "Siegfried," on the other hand, one has no word but praise for an expert concert piece, which is virtually an epitome of the music drama, with the vocal parts incorporated in the texture. Such a condensation of the significant sections of the opera is infinitely preferable to the isolated segments which ordinarily appear in our concert halls.

Funeral Set Today For Mrs. McClesky

Funeral services for Mrs. Elsie Thompson McCleskey, for 25 years a teacher in Washington public schools, 16 of them as a member of the Petworth School staff, will be held at 2 p. m. today at her home, 5464 Thirty-first street northwest. Mrs. McCleskey, who died Monday at Sibley Hospital, will be buried in Greenwood Cemetery.

A native of Washington, Mrs. McCleskey was graduated from Central High School and Wilson Normal School, now Wilson Teachers College. She was appointed a teachers in the Adams School April 16, 1912. Mrs. McCleskey always was interested in the problem of the underprivileged child and did a great deal of research work in this field of education.

Her mother, Mrs. Marie L. Thompson; a sister, Miss Mabel Thompson, and he rhusband, Milton A. McCleskey, survive. The Petworth School teachers will attend the funeral in a body.

Burial will be in West Virginia. H had been ill about two months.

Knott was born in Shepherdstown and came to Washington during the World War to serve in the naval intelligence office. He was manager of the Washington office for G. Washington Coff at the time of his death. He was a member of the Takoma Park Lions Club, the Holy Name Society and vice president of the Bowling League of Our Lady of Sorrows Church.

Beside a wife, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Knott, and a daughter, Miss Charlotte Knott, Knott leaves three sisters, Mrs. Mary K. Moler, Mrs. Victor B. Dayber, of Washington, and Mrs. Irene Argenbright, of Staunton, Va.

Third Wife Wins Reno Decree From Col. Guggenheim

Reno, Nev., Oct. 26 (AP).—Mrs. Elizabeth Eaton Guggenheim, prominent in Long Island, N. Y., society, won a private-trial divorce decree on grounds of cruelty here today from Col. M. Robert Guggenheim, one of the heirs to the vast Guggenheim mining fortune.

Harry Swanson, attorney for Mrs. Guggenheim, the colonel's third wife, declined to discuss terms of a property settlement. Mrs. Guggenheim boarded an eastbound plane, saying she had "nothing at all" to say.

Guggenheim settled $1,000,000 on each of his previous wives, the former Peggy Weyner and the former Grace Bernheimer, when they divorced him.

Pat Luber, Immigrant Newsie Always on Job, Is Dead at 57

Camme to Capital From Russia at 15; Hawked Papers at Seventh and E, Ninth and G Streets; Funeral Set for Today.

Pat Luber, 57, who came to Washington as an immigrant of 15, when he began a career as a newspaper boy, died yesterday at Gallinger Hospital after a week's illness.

Pat's "corners" were Seventh and E streets and Ninth and G streets. He never missed a day at his job until last week.

Pat was not partial to any particular newspaper. He sold them all. At his Seventh street stand he peddled the afternoon dailies and at the Ninth street corner he sold the morning papers.

He was born in Russia in 1880. When Pat landed in the Capital he decided to sell newspapers. He couldn't speak a word of English, but this did not bother Pat. He picked up a phrase here and there.

He lived with his wife, Anna, at 736 Sixth street northwest. Besides his wife, he is survived by two brothers, Adam Luber and Robert Luber, both of Washington.

Funeral services will be held this morning at 11 o'clock at the Danzansky funeral home, 3501 Fourteenth street. Burial will be in the Ohev Sholom Cemetery.

Mrs. Sherman, 91, Is Survived by 17

Funeral services were held yesterday at 1:30 p. m. for Mrs. Dora Sherman, 91, at the chapel of Bernard Danzansky, 3501 Fourteenth street northwest. She was buried in Ohev Sholom Cemetery.

Mother of Benjamin Sherman, with whom she lived at 3239 Davenport street northwest, and Mrs. Harris Cornfield, of 817 Delafield place northwest, Mrs. Sherman is also survived by her brother, Haskell Silversmith, of Brookline, Mass.; eight grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Born in the Ukraine, Mrs. Sherman came to the United States 50 years ago and settled in Hartford, Conn., After death of her husband, Simon, in 1909, she moved to Washington.

In her childhood days in Russia, Mrs. Sherman experienced at first hand tyranny of the czarist regime. She vividly recalled how, in the Crimean War, boys in their early 'teens were dragged off to fight, despite frantic opposition of their parents who clung to wheels of carts carrying the children away. One of Mrs. Sherman's brothers was saved from this fate, she said, by hiding in a chimney, where drafting officers were unable to find him.

Ex-Greek Attache In Capital Is Dead

New York, Oct. 26 (AP).—Nicholas S. Kaltchas, 42, former director of the Greek Legation Press Bureau in Washington and political science instructor at Sarah Lawrence College in Bronxville, N. Y., died yesterday of a lung ailment.

Miss Mary Gibson, U.S. Worker, Dead

Miss Mary Florence Gibson, of 1445 Ogden street northwest, employed in the Treasury Department for more than 20 years, died here Monday. Services will be held at the home of her sister, Mrs. W. C. Thom, 1346 Hemlock street northwest, and at St. Patrick's Church. Interment will be in the family plot at Congressional Cemetery.

Third generation Washington, Miss Gibson had lived in the shadow of the Capitol nearly all her life. It was only after the death of her mother, Mrs. Emma Gibson, in July, that she moved from her East Capitol street home.

Mrs. Lusk Rites To Be Tomorrow

Mrs. Mary Webster Lusk, widow of Lieut. Col. James Loring Lusk, Corps of Engineers, U. S. A., died yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital. Burial will be at West Point, N. Y., tomorrow at 3:30 p. m. with services at the graveside.

A native of Buffalo, N. Y., Mrs. Lusk was a daughter of the late Erastus D. Webster, who was private secretary to William H. Seward, Secretary of State in Lincoln's Cabinet.

Mrs. Lusk is survived by a granddaughter, Mrs. Charles J. Kenny, of Mansfield, Ohio.

Funeral Is Held For Mrs. Houser

Funeral services for Mrs. Minnie V. Houser, 58, who died here Sunday, were held yesterday at 12:30 p. m. from her late residence, 3210 Ninth place southeast.

Church services followed at the Congress Heights Baptist Church at 1 p. m. Burial was in Leesburg, Va.

A native of Oak Grove, Va., Mrs. Houser had been a resident of Washington for more than 50 years and was an active member of the Anacostia Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star.

Surviving Mrs. Houser is her husband, Hugh P. Houser.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Washington's theater lobby crowds strike me as the handsomest, most imposing between-the-acts crowds I have ever seen anywhere; even when Congress is not in session . . . Even in London or Paris . . . The average Washingtonian, male or female, is a rather presentable package.

* * * *

After smoking several cigarettes in New York and Washington theater lobbies in the same week, I conclude that the Capital's theater-goers are the most distinguished lot, by several white ties.

* * * *

You see more of the "pure intellectual" type in the New York lobbies, perhaps, despite the immigration of masterminds to the Capital. But the hawk-nosed aristocrats are proportionately more numerous on the Potomac.

"—so I told the President."

Apparently the true aristocrats have a strong tendency to flock to the Capital once they have run through the fleshpots and the bicarbonates of the metropolis . . . The town is full of colonels and generals and admirals who have acquired a fairly princely and commanding bearing while nose-wiping and dispersing a regiment or a fleet.

* * * *

Further, those who regard "society" as the loftiest flowering of human endeavor find Washington society less cluttered and confused with former prize fighters, clever women and bohemians.

* * * *

They relish also the foreign flavor of Washington society. The chaos into which New York "society" has fallen makes it pleasanter for the "American nobility" to have their foreign-born playmates handpicked for them by foreign governments.

* * * *

* * * *

Also, there's too much intelligenzia about New York after dark [illegible] for the true aristocratic taste; Washington isn't so soft-collar highbrow.

* * * *

And it's easier to get acquainted with a certain number of titles in Washington than it is to chase them all over Europe, when you're middle-aged and the glamour of travel has worn off.

* * * *

So the dowagers give their daughters coming-out parties in Washington as a sort of sequel to a Newport or New York debut; it's an easy springboard into the "international set."

"—dance before the steam roller"

Maybe that's why you see so many patrician faces around Washington; high arched noses and delicate quivering nostrils, strong chins on the daughters of strong men, and a more uniformly high quality of tailoring and haberdashery and frocks and millinery than anywhere in the world.

* * * *

All this is highly important to people who happen to think it is . . . And there seem to be quite a few of them . . . The Capital draws them like a magnet . . . There is a deep allure about a place near the seats of the mighty—even when the mighty happen to be kicking you in the shins.

* * * *

The presence of a Supreme Court Justice at a party excites a warm glow in an aristocrat—even if the Justice renders no important decision all evening . . . And it's stimulating to hear someone saying over the coffee, "So I told the President ——"—even when it isn't possible to tell the President anything.

* * * *

But I seem to have wandered away from my basic original premise—that there are a lot of decorative faces in a Washington crowd—regardless of what brings them here.

* * * *

To a plain yokel from the hinterland (I can tell you confidentially), the scene is a gaudy and exhilarating one, the aristocrats dancing in front of the steam roller, with well-poised heads on lovely supple spines of arrogant rigid ones, and the happy onlooker is agog almost half the time.

Exhibits Heighten Interest at Welfare Meeting

Problem Child Not Hopeless, Crime Clinic Session Is Told

"The case of the problem child is not hopeless, but its solution now will demand new policies in the schools and closer co-operation between all the agencies of society," Dr. John E. Bentley, professor of psychology at American University, said last night in a Crime Clinic lecture at the Wardman Park Theater.

Dr. Bentley emphasized approaching the problem through prevention rather than correction after the problem child has been allowed to become a social menace.

He outlined the work of authorities in Jersey City, N. J., in setting up a child clinic under direction of Dr. Thomas W. Hopkins, assistant superintendent of schools. Under the title of Bureau of Special Service, the clinic has co-ordinated the efforts of teachers, parents, doctors, psychiatrists and social workers in caring for the problem child, he said.

"Throughout their work, they have avoided creating a feeling on the part of children and their parents that consulting the bureau implies delinquency. Social defects are treated in the same atmosphere as physical defects, because the two are often closely associated, and because this practice makes possible close co-operation between all the agencies concerned.

"To prevent the problem child from becoming a delinquent, we must study the child directly through the best scientific, social and educational methods," he said.

Following Dr. Bentley's lecture, a brief panel discussion was held, including Mrs. J. W. Anderson, chairman of the parent education committee of the District P.-T. A., Dr. David L. Weinstein, and Mrs. Lenore Bartlett, teacher at Green Acre School, Silver Spring, Md.

S. & W. Robber Guilty; Mental Test Is Ordered

Harry G. Smith, alleged "trigger man" in the holdup of the S. & W. Cafeteria last summer, was found guilty of looting the establishment of $1,312.50 by a jury in District Court yesterday after five minutes of deliberation.

Smith's two confederates, Alfred H. Brauer, former university student, and William P. Allen, cab driver, had previously entered pleas of guilty and are in jail awaiting sentence.

Taking the stand in his own defense, Smith, brought here from Miami, Fla., admitted he had held up the cafeteria in the presence of some 75 patrons, but, he insisted, he had been drinking and was delirious at the time.

All three of the men are to be sentenced next week. Sentence of Smith will be delayed at insistence of his attorneys that he be submitted to a mental examination, to which Justice Joseph W. Cox agreed.

Jealousy Murder Denied by Janitor

Pleading he was "so drunk" he had no recollection of events leading to the slaying of Mrs. Henrietta Anderson, 36, of 1633 L street northwest, William (Major) McAfee, 61-year-old colored janitor, yesterday in District Court took the witness stand to deny he had murdered the woman in a fit of jealousy.

Shortly after McAfee had concluded testimony, presentation of evidence was shut down by Justice Jesse C. Adkins and attorneys began arguement on jury instructions. The case will go to the jury today and, before nightfall, McAfee, diminutive and meek-appearing, may know if he is to face the chair or go free.

The charge against him is that he seized a 10-pound furnace shaker and beat Mrs. Anderson to death with it on August 22. According to a statement by him which was admitted as evidence, he claimed he was jealous of a "heavy white man" who had been calling on Mrs. Anderson.

Logan-Thomas Circle Citizens Urge Sales Tax

The business privilege tax again was attacked when members of the Logan-Thomas Circle Citizens Association last night adopted a report of a special tax committee recommending substitution of a general sales tax.

Branding the business privilege tax as "inequitable and unjust," members went on record as favoring a sales tax only is the event it excluded such necessities as food, clothing, etc.

Members also approved the special tax committee's report opposing the new system of taxing autos according to weight and recommended in its stead an increase in gasoline taxes.

Southeast Citizens.

William A. Maio last night was re-elected president of the Southeast Citizens Association at its meeting in the Fifth Precinct station house.

Other officers chosen for the coming year included Vernis Abasher, who was re-elected vice president; William Carey, who was elected second vice president; Orrin Davey, who was re-elected executive secretary; Dr. H. K. Butler, who was re-elected corresponding secretary; Mrs. Morgan Otterback, who was re-elected treasurer, and J. V. Schmidt, who was named sergeant-at-arms.

The association went on record as asking the Fine Arts Commission to locate a proposed memorial to Marconi, the inventor of radio, in Southeast Washington.

North Capitol Citizens.

Support for the eight-point tax program advanced last week by the Chevy Chase Citizens Association has been voted by more than 50 members of the North Capitol Citizens Association, at McKinley High School.

The program includes recommendations for a general survey of the entire District tax structure, repeal of the business privilege tax and possible substitution of either an income tax or sales tax. It opposes increase in the 1939 budget over the 1938 level, and asks that in 1939 any revenue receipts in excess of needs be applied to tax reduction.

The association also favored representation in both houses of Congress and the electoral college for citizens of the District. The question of local self-government was tabled.

Bandits Get $95 And Automobile In Two Holdups

Armed bandits collected $95 and an automobile in two holdups in the District area last night.

Herman Weisblatt, proprietor of Herman's Liquor Store, 3712 Fourteenth street northwest, was relieved of $90 by a white man who entered the store about 9:30 p. m. and locked Weisblatt and a clerk into a basement, then rifled the cash register.

Dr. F. J. McClure, of Alexandria, was robbed by a white youth who forced his way into the car when Dr. McClure entered it after leaving the George Mason Hotel, where he lives.

He said the bandit drove to desolate Jones Point, where he took $5 and drove off with the automobile. Dr. McClure made his way on foot to police headquarters and reported the holdup.

Street Finds D. C. Alone in Refusing Aid

Failure to Provide Relief for Employables to Be Costly, He Warns.

Institutions Held Overcrowded, Under-Staffed, Under-Equipped.

Washington is the only city in the country that is providing no relief for needy employables unable to find work, Elwood Street, Director of Public Welfare, declared last night at the annual meeting of his department.

This lack of aid is an omission which eventually will cost the District much more than the money now needed to meet the problem, he asserted.

"The effect of this situation on the social health of the city is unestimable, not to mention the actual physical suffering it entails," he warned.

"Children growing up in homes of employables unable to get either work or relief will provide the city with a problem bigger than that posed by their parent today."

Institutions Overcrowded.

While lack of an appropriation for employables is the most serious welfare problem in the District, according to Director Street, there are many others.

Institutions generally are overcrowded, underequipped and understaffed, he declared.

"But within our limitations," he added, "we have done a good job in the last year. We have made progress in the co-ordination of our efforts, in working out the routine of our program, and in planning a five-year schedule of growth."

Miss Jane M. Hoey, director of the Bureau of Public Assistance of the Social Security Board, was another speaker, talking on "The Dependent Child in Social Security."

Harm to Children Stressed.

Devastating effect on young children of unemployment in a family was stressed by Miss Hoey, who declared that a feeling of security which comes from parents is more important to the child than money spent for food and clothing.

She said all States now have provisions for old-age assistance, but that many still are lagging in adequate child welfare programs. Aged, she declared, make an articulate group. Children need welfare workers to "speak out for them."

"We are spending a great deal of money at the end of the road," she continued. "Cities and States are slow to spend for prevention. Americans rally to the cause of disaster, but have not yet learned to spend for preventive reasons."

Need for highly trained social workers with "the plus quality which enables them to get along with people" was stressed by Miss Hoey, who said such persons should be the most highly paid in the welfare field.

Welfare Work Shown.

"All over the country we are suffering from the tendency to advance successful persons to administrative positions because that is the only way they can be given a raise in salary," she declared.

"Another need I would point out is the necessity for seeing that no rigid rules are set up to prevent persons from getting assistance if they need it, regardless of whether they happen to have some little money in the bank or some property."

An exhibit of work in various welfare institutions of the District was on display in halls of the Department of Commerce auditorium, where the meeting was held. Edgar Morris, chairman of the committee on exhibits, presided. He was introduced by Frederick W. McReynolds, chairman of the Board of Public Welfare. Music was furnished by groups under supervision of the Welfare Department.

'Y' Enrolls 1,107 New Members

Ending a membership drive that surpassed all previous records, officials of the Y. M. C. A. last night announced that 1,107 new members have been added to the rolls since the campaign began, October 11.

Obtaining 307 more members than the original goal of 800, officials said approximately 450 of the new memberships were recorded since last Friday.

More than 500 legionnaires participated in the surprise welcome given Fraser, who lives at 78 K street. He left for France immediately after the legion convention, where he was elected to his high office, and returned to New York yesterday aboard the Ile de France.

Failure of Plea For More Relief Here Forecast

Budget Bureau Asked to Hold Allotment to $1,411,500.

Failure of the Board of Public Welfare's attempt to secure additional relief funds for next year was forecast yesterday when the District Commissioners, it was learned, requested the Budget Bureau to limit relief expenditures to $1,411,500, last year's appropriation.

Recently the Welfare Board requested an additional amount of $1,225,000, over and above last year's appropriation. This sum, the board stated, would be used for jobless employables—those able to work if jobs are available.

At the last session of Congress when the appropriation for relief expenditures was approved, no specifications were made as to the expenditure of the $1,411,500. It was available to either employables or unemployables.

The bare necessities of the unemployables alone, can hardly be met with less than $1,411,500, officials of the Board of Public Welfare declared.

More than 10,000 persons in the District, representing the families of 3,000 jobless employables will probably go without public aid next year it is feared. In the past, it has been the policy of the Welfare Board to provide for all unemployables, including the sick and the aged, before others were aided.

The District Commissioners in its action of deleting the request for additional funds would have the $1,411,500 used for both employables and unemployables, the usage being guided by the most destitute cases in either group.

The remaining hope of the Welfare Board now rests with Congress. Here again, reliable reports indicate, the hope is very meager.

Morton L. Bundy Dies; Brother of Army General

Morton L. Bundy, 86, elder brother of Maj. Gen. Omar Bundy, U. S. A., retired, and James P. Bundy, of Washington, died yesterday at the home of his nephew, Maj. Robert Ransom, U. S. A., at Fort Benning, Ga. Funeral arrangements were not completed yesterday, but the body will be brought to Washington for burial in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. Bundy, who was born in New Castle, Ind., had lived in Washington for 40 years, retiring some years ago as a clerk in the Department of the Interior. Since the death of his wife ten years ago he had lived part of each year with Gen. Bundy and part with Maj. Ransom.

'Finney' Kelly Killed, 2 Hurt In Auto Crash

Ex-Policeman's Car Misses Good Hope Road Turn, Cuts Pole, Hits House.

One man was killed instantly and two were injured seriously last night when the automobile in which they were riding failed to make a turn and clipped a pole in two, ricocheted off a tree and crashed into a house. This death brought the 1937 District traffic toll to 87 as compared with 70 for the same date last year.

Charles Elmer Kelly, 42, of 435 Fifteenth street southeast, was killed when the car in which he was a passenger failed to make a turn at Good Hope road and Eighteenth street southeast and tore through the veranda and, into the home of William J. Canning at 1736 Good Hope road.

Kelly, a retired District policeman, was known widely as "Finney" Kelly, organizer of the Washington Police Baseball Club and its pitcher for many years. He became a member of the department about 15 years ago, retiring six years ago. It was reported he had several offers from professional baseball clubs.

A lot of baseball equipment in the rear of the automobile in which Kelly was killed indicated he had been playing his favorite game with friends he visited during the day on Good Hope road.

Edward D. Williams, 37, of 1360 North Carolina avenue northeast, the driver, and George Dougherty, 38, of Upper Marlboro, Md., a passenger, were taken to Casualty Hospital, where they were said to be in serious condition with head injuries. Williams later was removed to Gallinger Hospital.

James Huff, 28, of 916 Duke street, Alexandria, Va., was seriously injured early yesterday when an automobile he was driving plunged down a 30-foot embankment on River road as he fell asleep at the wheel. At Alexandria Hospital he was said to be suffering from cuts and bruises about the head and possible internal injuries.

2 Men Held In Attacks on School Girls

Sixth Person Questioned for Park Slashing of Miss McMillen.

Two white men were held last night in connection with Washington's two recent attacks on school girls.

Under questioning at the Twelfth Precinct was a man Capt. Bernard W. Thompson, chief of detectives, described as "the best suspect yet" in the attempted assault Monday night on 18-year-old Nancy Lee Summers of the 3900 block Seventh street northeast. Miss Summers was held up at Tenth street and Michigan avenue when she was on her way home from business college but beat off her assailant.

At Gallinger Hospital it was said she had not been assaulted. The suspect was arrested near the scene of the attack by Detective Sergt. George Thornton.

A sixth suspect in the knife attack on Miss Ruth McMillen, 19-year-old George Washington honor student, was held for investigation at the Second Precinct after he was arrested yesterday afternoon in Meridian Park by Private Richard Livingston, of Park Police. Livingston said he was "chasing young girls" and complaints of annoying women previously had been lodged against him.

Police said he answered closely the description of the white man who brutally slashed Miss McMillen in Rock Creek Park October 17 after beating her into insensibility.

Another suspect in the attack on Miss Summers, arrested early yesterday, was released after an effort to have him identified failed. A young woman and a young man whom he named in his alibi were arrested later and questioned.

Pair Held to Jury In Blackmail Case

A man and woman were held to the grand jury yesterday in connection with attempted blackmail of Mrs. Clarinda Coffey, 1828 Irving street northwest.

The suspects, Joe Malone, 36, former prizefighter, and Mrs. Aloma Wood, 30, 2121 First street northwest, both pleaded not guilty. Malone was held under $1,000 bail, while $500 was set for the woman.

Malone was arrested at Twelfth and F streets northwest last week after he attempted to obtain $200 from Mrs. Coffey, it is charged, in exchange for letters supposed to belong to her husband, F. M. Coffey, screen manufacturer. Mrs. Wood was taken into custody a short time after Malone's arrest.

Charles Cogswell, D.C. Boatman, Dies

Charles H. Cogswell, 61, one-time chief engineer on the yacht of the Larz Anderson, former Ambassador to Japan, died yesterday at his home, 2 I street northwest.

Mr. Cogswell had worked on Potomac River boats since he was 14. Born in Alexandria, he had made his home in Washington for more than 40 years. During the war he was engineer on a Government supply boat to Fort Washington, Md.

He leaves a son, William Cogswell, and three brothers, John, Walter and Benjamin Cogswell, all of Washington.

Funeral services will be at 9:30 a. m. Friday at the residence, with requiem mass at 10 a. m. in St. James' Episcopal Church, 224 Eighth street northeast. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Anna Sten Will BeComedienne In Next Films

By the United Press.

Hollywood, Oct. 26.—Anna Sten, the European comedienne imported by Hollywood—to play in tragedies—thanked her lucky stars today that the master thinkers have changed their minds.

They're going to let her laugh again, after a series of the most dismal screen dramas ever to give the customers the woozy-willies. These same films, which squirted imitation tears from the silver sheets of theaters all over the land, also gave Miss Sten a reputation she did not deserve and nearly ruined her American career before it was started.

Miss Sten, who is blonde and slender and smokes denicotinized cigarettes, performed in some of the gayest comedies ever produced by Mejabrabpom, the Soviet film company. Then she played in light and frothy films in London and Paris, whereupon Sam Goldwyn brought her to Hollywood.

For reasons which still have her guessing, she immediately was starred in "Nana," "We Live Tonight" and "The Wedding Night," all of which were so sad that the public stayed away in droves.

Is Peculiar Place.

"Hollywood is a peculiar place," she said, puffing on her peculiar cigarette. "But now I'm going to sing and dance and laugh again, just as I did before I came to Hollywood.

"I never could understand why my American debut should have been in such pictures as 'Nana.' Whatever success I had gained abroad was due to light and frivolous stories."

Miss Sten, having left the tears behind, has signed a contract with Grand National Studios. Her first two pictures, soon to go into production, are entitled "Love Me Again" and "Don't Lead With Your Heart." She guarantees that neither contains a single sniffle and she hopes that audiences—which used to come from her pictures with handkerchiefs cold and damp—will give her another chance.

When we talked to her in her Beverly Hills home, she was recovering from such a siege as no native-born American ever has experienced. She had just taken the examination for United States citizenship, which consists of 125 of the toughest questions we ever saw. Whereas few Americans know how many amendments to the Constitution, she had to name and describe them all. She had to list the nine justices of the Supreme Court—including their first names. She had to know the history of the country.

Feels Topsy-Turvy.

She had to know so much, in fact, that she still feels a little topsy-turvy.

"But it was a wonderful experience," she added. "It was hard and concentrated study, but it really was fascinating. I got interested in this country and what it had done and that, of course, was what the examination was intended to do.

"I felt frightened a little when I went down town to take the test, but the officials of the Labor Department were so kind and so gracious that I soon lost my fear. It was a far different experience than it would have been, say, in my native Russia.

"Here everybody took an interest in me and actually seemed as though they were glad and happy that I wanted to be an American."

Options Exercised On Three Players

Miss Gibson last played the feminine lead in "Behind the Headlines." Miss Westlake is now on location with the unit filming Ginger Rogers' new solo starring vehicle, "Having Wonderful Time."

Bawling Babies Benchley Idea

Robert Benchley is having difficulty finding a baby to play a role in his new miniature, "Night at the Movies." Claims that Hollywood babies are so well-trained they never cry. He wants a bawling baby.

Shirley Temple's True Metier at Last Is Hit Upon In 'Heidi,' Film Version of the Juvenile Classic

Twentieth Century-Fox Has Given Famous Story Production of the First Rank With Strong Cast; Charlotte Greenwood to Continue Songs; New Howard Play Here Next Month; Rialto's New Booking.

BACK in the remote days—it must have been all of two or three years ago—of "Little Miss Barker" and "Now and Forever," this column seems to recall having gone on at some length in deprecation of the then prevalent habit of casting the diminutive Miss Shirley Temple as the central figure in stories that were completely backgrounded by crooks and their devious enterprises. To be sure, these celluloid fables all more or less established Miss Temple, in the last reel, as the juvenile symbol of rectitude that brought about the redemption of her evil associates, but the environment seemed to be all wrong for one of her years.

BELL.

That unhappy situation gradually has been overcome as the years have gone on and the pendulum now has swung to the opposite extreme. In "Heidi," opening on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater this Friday and previewed yesterday afternoon by the boys and girls of the so-called Fourth Estate, Twentieth Century-Fox has equipped the cinema's ranking box-office star with a vehicle that is in every sense appropriate to her age and talents. There is, of course, a sinister touch of villainy and a considerable threat to Heidi's happiness in this film translation of one of the world's classics of youthful fiction, but, in the main, the narrative is ideally adapted to the uses of its star.

The basis of the drama is of adult appeal; its development such as to charm all spectators of Miss Temple's age. It embodies humor, pathos, suspense and thrills and follows a progressive course of intensified interest that reaches its high point of climacteric melodrama in a logical application of that ancient device of the screen, "The Chase." It also emphasizes the fact that was made clear in "Wee Willie Winkie," that its star has reached a point in her interpretative growth where it is the essential thing to cast her in roles that are distinctly out of the "baby class." Her work in her present subject embodies much that marks this extraordinary child as an actress who comprehends more of the requirements of the task in hand than merely reciting lines and singing occasional songs.

Despite this further revelation of precisely how precocious a youngster Shirley Temple really is, "Heidi" is a screen play of odd fabrication. It betrays a lethargic inclination to get into the gist of its story by presenting a repetitive and static series of introductory sequences that are lovely to look at, but a little too phlegmatic in movement to do more than charm the eye. Once the action moves to the palatial home of Herr Sesemann, in Frankfort, the piece strikes its true pace and sustains that accelerated tempo to the end.

Visually, "Heidi" is a thing of great beauty, whether the scene is indoors or out. The exteriors are representative, in large part, of the exalted beauty of the Alps and are executed in sepia and rose tints that lend them added magnificence. This tinting process, by the way, is not to be confused with natural color photography. It is merely a solid film treatment that was in use long before Technicolor and similar processes ever became an active factor in production. The effect is no less impressive on that account.

Something might be set down concerning the excellence of the cast with which Twentieth Century-Fox has surrounded its miniature Duse, but that can wait until Saturday's more formal and particularized review. However, I suggest that you do not hold your breath until then. The cast might be worth it, but Saturday, after all, is a long way off.

To reassure the many anxious inquirers who keep calling up about the matter, it should be said at once that Charlotte Greenwood will perform her humorously tuneful epilogue to "Leaning on Letty" at every performance of the melodramatic comedy at the National this week. It definitely was not a one-time compliment to Monday night's audience, but, at least during the local engagement, will be a component part of each performance, both nights and matinees. The matinees today and Saturday, incidentally, are being presented at a popular scale of prices. Those who entertain enthusiastic recollections of Miss Greenwood will find her at her best in this inconsequential vehicle. Those who see her for the first time will make the acquaintance of a distinctive and an unctuous comedienne.

Yesterday's announcement from the Rialto Theater was to the effect that, beginning Saturday morning of this week, "Damaged Lives" will inaugurate an indifinite engagement on the screen of that that versatile playhouse.

"Damaged Lives" is one of the most widely discussed and most vital motion pictures of recent release, dealing, as it does, with social problems that have been much in the public prints of late months. It has the indorsement of the leading newspapers of the country as well as the United States Public Health authorities.

Showings will be continuous on a time schedule to be announced later.

Falling in line with an annual custom, Halloween costume parties will be held in all the Warner Brothers neighborhood theaters this Saturday afternoon. Cash prizes will be awarded in three classes—a special kiddies' class, prettiest and funniest. The hours will vary in all the 11 theaters observing this event, but all of these performances extraordinary will be paid at some time between the hours of 2:45 and 3:45 p. m. Specific information had best be obtained from the management of the theater in which the prospective patron is immediately interested.

Our good friend Howard Herrick, that veteran stentor of the drama last here as avant courier for the Lunts' production of "Amphitryon 38," drops a line to say that when "The Ghost of Yankee Doodle" comes to the National the week of Monday, November 15, with Ethel Barrymore and Dudley Digges in the stellar rolese, Washington theatergoes also will be regaled by the performances of a supporting cast that includes many popular players of both stage and screen.

Among the names best known to picture-gazers may be mentioned Frank Conroy and Russell Hardie. The director, John Cromwell, also will be recognized as one of the theater's most competent practitioners who divides his time between the living stage and the gelatins. Then there will be Eliot Cabot, Kathleen Comegys, Elizabeth Young, George Nash, Kendall Clark, Franklin Downing, Don Costello and Ethel Intropodi.

This will be the fourth Guild subscription play of the season. As regards the plot, Mr. Herrick drops the hint that its period is placed 18 months after the beginning of the next World War. "The Ghost of Yankee Doodle" was written by Sidney Howard.

And for those who attempt to keep abreast of the stage shows coming to the Capital's foremost picture theaters, it should be of interest that Phil Spitalny and his "Hour of Charm," all-feminine orchestra are booked for the Earle the week of Friday, November 5. That is by way of being only a little over a week away. Phil is bringing his accomplished specialists along on this trip, as usual—Maxine, the deep-throated song stylist; Evelyn and her magic violin, the Three Iittle Words and all the rest. Always a superlative program, this band's.

Stanley Karmazin, the Mr. Fitchel of the Washington Civic Theater's production of "Excursion," at Wardman Park, received his stage training in Russia, where he was a monologist specializing in the lugubrious business of "tear jerking." Upon his arrival in this country, he was quick to catch on that American audiences would rather laugh than cry, so switched to comedy. It was a very lucky switch, for Mr. Karmazin is a very funny fellow with that dialect. "Excursion" is being presented for the last time tonight.

In passing, Charles Dillon has agreed to conduct the rehearsals of "Noah," by Andre Obey, in order to aid the civic group in keeping up with an exhausting production schedule that necessitatees two plays being in rehearsal at the same time. Tryouts for this cast will be held in Wardman on Thursday and Friday nights of this week.

"Sunshine"-Sammy-and-Farina Note.

There used to be an old one—and probably still is—about "Did you say 'Noah? Yeah'"—but do you think I'd stoop to pull it? No-o-o-o!

Reconciliation—Russian Style!

This, it seems, is the first step in the formality of a maid's apology to a butler, when both are employed "in service." It is one of the amusing scenes in "Tovarich," the comedy of Russian emigres, coming to the National Theater next week. Those who remember Rachel Crothers' "As Husbands Go" will recognize the butler as that eminent actor, Jay Fassett. The maid is Marta Abba, appearing in her original role in this Gilbert Miller production.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, Oct. 26.—Personal observations: I always thought Ginger Rogers would look better if she put on a bit more weight—and she does. A screen star "disguised" in dark glasses is at least twice as conspicuous as she is without them — maybe that is the why in the equation. Lew Ayres has a kindly disposition—but he has the "cruelest" mouth of any screen star. Any actor can make-up for a "great gentleman" role, but Lewis Stone, unlike most, needs no make-up to play the part. In a town where sloppy clothes are the rule, Irene Dunne is always immaculately groomed.

JAMES CAGNEY.

Makes me nervous to talk with James Cagney—his voice is so low that I have to strain in order to hear him. Katharine Hepburn always makes me think of a Benda mask. Lee Tracy, ashore, is a bundle of nerves; at sea, on his yacht, he is the most restful of personalities. Most actorish-looking of all Hollywood actors is John Carradine. What a shame Gloria Stuart never plays chorus girl roles—no femme in Filmville has shaplier lines.

Nelson Eddy is the screen's most self-satisfied star—mention his talent and his voice takes on a purring sound. You never feel the full power of Carole Lombard's personality until she bursts into that braying laugh. Never knew a screen child as shy as Jackie Searl—when talking with a stranger, he squirms like an eel. Hate to think how lost Bill Powell would be without a trouser pocket to cradle his left hand. Loretta Young's manner, when talking with anyone, vests every statement, no matter how casual, with the weight of a great confidence. Warner Baxter is one star who is never too busy to sign an autograph.

I never take an outlander stargazing without hearing a surprised comment on the emaciated appearance of our glamour gals. And, really, it is no wonder, for nine out of ten of the screen's younger sirens are so streamlined that one would think they have not eaten a full meal for months. As the cereal people say, "there is a reason." The screen has only two dimensions, height and width. Lacking perspective, it makes the human body look heavier—often adding as much as 20 per cent to the bulk of the person photographed. In order to look "just right" in pictures, Hollywood's stars must look half-starved off-screen. Some do it by dieting; some by massage—but, one way or the other, it is a painful process. You should see the longing expression of a $5,000-a-week star when the waiter brings her escort that big cube of cake!

Wonder what those 2,000 hysterical women who swarmed over the Berengaria to see Bob Taylor would think if they could hear his mother, Mrs. Brugh, discussing her son's fame. Not long ago I asked her what she thought of Bob's astonishing success. She said nothing for a moment and then smiled gently. "Well," she replied, hesitantly, "his father was a simple country doctor—a man who devoted his life to a great work. I only hope that Bob, some day, can be as great a success—and as great a man—as his father."

Hollywood has laughed now and then at Grace Moore's pretensions to be a connoisseur of fine food—but Gracie has the last laugh. The other day she and her husband were camped in their trailer near a rocky strip of sea coast. Grace, wandering around on the shell-encrusted rocks, suddenly spied a cluster of small shellfish and sent Val Parera back for a pail. For an hour or two they gathered the crustaceans and then, with a gallon or two to show for their work, returned to the trailer and put them on to boil. Their fellow campers examined the pot and told Grace that the shellfish were deadly poison. She calmly went on cooking them. And while a growing audience waited for them to fall in convulsions, Grace and Val dined like kings. The shellfish, commonly considered deadly by Californians, are really a variety known to gourmets along the Mediterranean as the rarest and most delicious of delicacies.

Gable Is Groom To Taylor Plugs

When Taylor planned to buy ponies for his San Fernando ranch last year, Gable, who has always been a lover of horses, helped him pick them out. After that he often visited the ranch.

When the younger Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star left for London several weks ago, Gable volunteered to care for the Taylor steeds, a task which he calls a labor of love.

Star Harvests Huge Nut Crop

So large is Wallace Beery's walnut crop on the San Fernando ranch that it was necessary to hire 26 men to harvest it. The star has 40 acres of walnut trees.

Simone Pianist.

Other musical accomplishments of Simone Simon besides singing are coming to light since the petite French star was cast for a singing role in "Love and Hisses." She is a finished pianist, her friends report, and practices assiduously in the hope that she will be given a chance to play in her next film as well as sing.

Former Model.

Alan Curtis, who has the second lead in "Mannequin," was once a model in a Chicago department store.

"Another man has beaten you to that already." . . . "Really?" Ryskind asked. "Who is he?" . . . Golden drew a tax statement from his pocket and explained: "A man named Roosevelt."

WHEN LEW BROWN was producing "Strike Me Pink," he phoned Leo McCarey, producer of the forthcoming movie, "The Awful Truth," and invited him to come to the theater and meet Waxey Gordon, who still is serving time for his bootlegging enterprises. Meeting notorious figures was a custom of that prohibition day and so McCarey rushed to the theater and was introduced to a "Mr. Gordon" . . . A few months later, in Hollywood, McCarey spied "Mr. Gordon" on the Paramount lot, winked knowingly, and asked: "What are you doing here?" . . . "Writing lyrics," Gordon informed. McCarey winked again and whispered: "A swell way to hide out" . . . Not for months afterwards did McCarey learn that he never had met Waxey—who left the theater early that day. The Gordon he did meet was Mack Gordon, of the songwriting team, Gordon and Revel.

Eyes Cause Of Rider Faint

Your eyes account for that sinking sensation in the pit of your stomach when you ride a roller coaster.

Pete Smith proves this in the second edition of "Audioscopiks" which he is making at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

One of the scenes in the third dimensional film calls for a breath-taking ride in a roller-coaster car. Persons sitting in theaters and watching the scene all get the sensation of sweeping and dipping through space, it is announced.

Text of Herbert Hoover's Call for Coalition to Fight New Deal in Address to Massachusetts Republican Club at Boston

Boston, Oct. 26 (AP).—The text of former President Herbert Hoover's speech before the Republican Club of Massachusetts tonight follows:

This club has made this evening an especial occasion for the younger Republican leaders. It is a happy participation. The same spirit should be extended over the country. The party must have new faces and new blood. It must incorporate more youth, both men and women, in its councils. The party needs the sincerity, the undaunted courage of youth. It is the idealism and virility of youth which brings forward motion.

The rumor has been going about for the past five years that opportunity for youth is gone in American life. We hear of a lost generation. I said once that for 150 years God-fearing people under the blessings of freedom have built up quite a plant and equipment on this continent.

The Nation teems with millions of farms and homes and cattle and pigs, despite the AAA. There are railroads, highways, power plants and factories, stores and banks, and economic royalists. There are towns and magnificent cities. There are newspapers, colleges, libraries, orchestras, bands, radios, and other noises.

It is very sad to contemplate but it has probably occurred to you that all the people who live in these houses and all those who run this complicated machine are going to pass into the next world. Just as sure as death the job of running it is yours. And there are increasing opportunities in every inch of it. Furthermore, science and invention yearly give to us further mighty powers of progress. They create a thousand new frontiers of opportunity for youth.

Affirmative Program Held a Necessity.

But over this world have come vast problems in government which are the challenge to youth. Unless they be rightly solved there will be less opportunity.

One phase of these solutions is political party organization. So I propose to talk to you as Republicans about the Republican Party and the service it can offer in these days of national perplexity.

I am interested in building up the Republican Party not as a partisan but as a citizen. So let us look at it as citizens and not as politicians. We are concerned now with something greater than a game or securing public office.

The Republican Party even out of office is a national necessity as a unified opposition party to check excesses and protect minorities. But it has a mission far greater than just being against. Nor can it be built solely from a collection of politicians and a mass of committees, no matter how earnest and self-sacrificing they may be.

This party must have a fighting cause; it must have an affirmative program; it must present effective methods; it must have a forward purpose; it must have idealism, and it must be responsive to the needs and crises of the people. If a party should come into power without such definite purpose it would be of little good to the Nation. It would mean only that a few new people have got up to the public trough.

Moral Degeneracy Laid to Government.

We are concerned with service in a national crisis. Our country must have emancipation from the moral degeneration of current Government methods. It must have emancipation from what Walter Lippmann so aptly calls "gradual collectivism." It must bring sanity and reform to destructive fiscal policies which undermine the standards of living of the great economic middle class. It must make possible humanitarian objectives which are otherwise wrecked by wrongful and ineffective methods. Peace must be made more secure.

If that be so, all the wiles, the tricks and the petty artfulness of politics are of minor moment.

Before I go further (not that it is of any importance but just to keep the air clean) let me repeat once again that I do not want any public office. I shall keep on fighting for those things vital to the American people. There is no form of words that will convince a suspicious politician that any man under 85 can have any other purpose of interesting himself in public affairs. The accusation of seeking office seems to be the highest intellectual level to which the opposition can rise when they are made uncomfortable by argument and new proposals.

States Question: Where Do We Want to Go?

There are five great categories of national issues today. The first are issues of moral integrity in Government. The second are the vital issues of personal liberty and its safeguards. The third are those financial and economic policies which affect the standards of living of the people. The fourth are the humane issues of security and of aid for the less fortunate. The fifth are our relations to other nations.

Some of these issues are new in the last five years. Some have developod since the election. All of them are becoming increasingly vivid to the people.

The time has come when the Republican Party should be reoriented to these fundamental issues. No civilization is static. It must move forward or die. Therefore, no party can be static. It must move forward with the times.

Our national question is not alone Where are we going? but even more Where do we want to go?

A group of important Republican leaders of all shades of thought have put forward a proposal that the party should select a policy committee of its most distinguished men and women to draft an honest, courageous declaration of convictions, of positive principles and forward action. It is proposed that this draft should be submitted to a general conference of party leaders prior to the Congressional election.

Wants Policy Framed for 1940 Convention.

I support that suggestion. Such a policy committee could well be continued to work out methods within those principles and convictions for solution of many national problems to be presented later on or to the 1940 convention. I am not concerned over details. I am deeply concerned that people who are losing their way shall be given a banner of moral and intellectual leadership around which they can rally as the inevitable day of disillusionment comes to them.

In the meantime, no greater service can be given than discussion and debate of these fundamental questions. Gov. Landon, a few nights ago, made a notable contribution to such discussion. Our Senators and Congressmen in their daily battles contribute to the formulation of ideas. Nothing could be more helpful than the formulation of constructive convictions and positive purposes by our State and local organizations and our Republican clubs and the press. The ideas of the Democratic Party are made by one man. We want to develop Republican ideas from the party. In the face of this crisis, there is an ample area of ideas upon which to build unity.

Questions "New Deal In Public Honor."

My purpose tonight is not to forecast such a declaration. It is to urge that it be undertaken by the party and to outline something of the attitude or the point of view that could be considered in formulating it.

Today, as never before, we are faced with moral questions in public life. We have had a New Deal in public honor. To indicate its significance, let me ask you a few questions.

The first of these questions involves intellectual honesty in officials and in government.

Can your Government broadcast half-truths and expect the citizen to tell the whole truth?

Do you think you can pollute thought with framed government propaganda and maintain honest thinking in the citizen?

Do you think the Government, which engages hundreds of paid publicity agents daily and hourly to eulogize its official acts, can hold the faith of the citizen in what his Government says?

Is it honest or sportsmanlike to answer the argument, protest or appeal of the citizen by smearing him as the enemy of the people?

Do you believe all the official statements today?

Do you think you can let down intellectual honesty in high officials and hold up conscience in citizens?

Attacks Morality of Return to Spoils.

And there are questions relating to public administration.

Does not the wholesale appointment of Government officials by politics and not by merit mean a decadence in public morals? What is the morality of the recent return to the spoils system?

And there are questions involving commercial honesty.

Can your Government repudiate the covenant of its bonds and expect citizens to hold to their obligations?

Can the Government ruthlessly crush competition and hold the businessman to fair play?

Can the Treasury deliberately manipulate the market in Government bonds and expect the citizen not to do the same in stocks?

Is it moral for the Government to collect hundreds of millions from the wages of workmen, under the promise that they are to be kept in a fund for their security, and then spend the fund on its current expenses and extravagances?

Is it moral to evade the corrupt practices act by selling books to corporations for political funds?

What happens to the morals of a people when the Federal Government connives at lawlessness? What of governors who obstruct the courts and refuse to maintain public order? Do not all moral restraints disappear and the ugly specters vigilance arise?

When the public purse is used to subsidize, threaten and cajole Congressmen and the local communities, are you not corrupting the people?

When you direct the mind of the citizen to what he can abstract from the Treasury, are you building for self-reliance and stamina in the citizen?

Is it moral for high Government officials to stir hate of group against group of workman against workman?

What does the common expression—"You cannot beat Santa Claus"—mean in public morals?

Can democracy survive with more and more of its cities in the hands of corrupt political machines?

Is the Government not abetting these machines when it places enormous sums of public money directly and indirectly at their disposal—too often just prior to elections?

Can we hope for self-government when these city political machines regularly manipulate the vote? Does not this influence not alone municipal but State and Federal elections?

Do you think you can maintain confidence in our institutions and continually pollute the ballot box?

A nation is great not through dams in its rivers or its ships on the sea or the deposits in its banks. It is great by the moral fiber and character of its citizens. Nations die when these weaken.

Is it not the duty of the Republican Party to raise the banner of emancipation of the American people from this degradation, both national and local?

Huxley said the first need of debate is definitions. By collectivism" we mean any system where the tendency is to make the people the servants of the government or personal power as opposed to the government being the servant of the people. That is a complicated idea, but it is the age-long fight of human liberty. We certainly do not mean collective bargaining or co-operative marketing. They begin and end among people and are democratic processes.

Liberalism Distinguished From Collectivism.

I have used the term "true liberalism." I would prefer to use the more direct term of "Americanism." The term liberal has now become the fashionable clothing of all collectivists, whether they be New Dealers, with creeping collectivism, or frank and open Socialists, or the unconscious Fascists. Its folds can apparently even be entered through the Ku Klux Klan.

Our Republicans should not use this term without distinction between true and pseudo. Gradually the public is learning that liberal spelled with a capital L means New Deal collectivism.

True liberalism is liberty organized under law. It everlastingly reacts to one test: does this or that act make for the freedom of mind and spirit of men? Does it make for the dignity of all men? And let no man tell you that intellectual and spiritual liberty is not the sole anchor of American civilization.

It is the most difficult of all philosophies to realize in government, because the very freedom which fertilizes the soil of progress sprouts also the weeds of selfishness and sordid ambition. It can only be realized through prohibitions and protections which prevent invasion of the freedom of others. And it rests greatly upon responsibility and self-restraint by the individual.

True liberalism does not start as an economic system. An economic system flows from it. The only economic system which will not destroy intellectual and spiritual freedom is private enterprise, regulated to prevent special privilege, or coercion.

Claims Reforms Urged By G. O. P. First.

Every new scientific discovery, every new invention introduces new possibilities of privilege, as well as progress. Reform must be ever in motion. We agree with the New Deal objectives in removal of abuses. Many abuses were cured, and these objectives were advocated by Republicans long before the New Deal was born. But the cure is not by their method of government by men in the place of government by law. Moreover, they seek to make us believe that abuse cannot be cured without that creeping collectivism called planned economy.

That "gradual collectivism" is creeping upon us should be evident by this time to any understanding American. The Government manipulation of money and credit, Government restriction of production, Government control of hours and wages, the entry of the Government into competitive business on a large scale, Government coercion of upright citizens—these are but part of it. The conflict of the two systems creates at once attack on constitutional government.

Sees Enterprise "Chilled to the Bone."

Undermining the independence of Congress, packing the Supreme Court, the weakening of local and State government, the new proposals to invade judicial authority under the guise of administrative reorganization are but part of the centralization of government and the increase in personal government.

Once economic life is started in this direction it creates its own demand for more personal power. And one of its results is a Frankenstein of hate and national disunity. There cannot be a system part collective and part regulated private enterprise. The very conflict of the two systems creates one economic emergency after another. We witness that at this very hour. Do you think the confidence of men, the enterprise of men, is not today chilled to the bone?

The Republican Party can declare the principles of free enterprise regulated to prevent abuse and it can set these principles against all forms of collectivism. It can do still more.

It can declare the principles for cure of abuse which will not shackle the enterprise and initiative of men. It can do still more.

It can declare the principles upon which alone a progressive economic system can produce increasing standards of living and security. It can do more.

It can declare the principles that will emancipate the American people from the collectivism which has already crept over us. It can do still more.

Balanced Abundance "Recalls the Trapeze."

It can propose the principles of justice that will stamp out the fires of hate and cure the wounds of class conflict. It can do more.

It can declare its convictions on the rights and responsibilities of free men. That is the spirit of constitutional government. In those ramparts it can hold against every assault on human liberty.

Incidentally a new form of planned economy has been announced from Washington. That is to be a balanced abundance. It seems to recall the trapeze.

What of the attitude toward humanitarian or social problems? After five years of New Deal remedies Mr. Roosevelt has said one-third of the people are still underclad, underfed, or underhoused. One could debate that figure as too high, but our purpose is not a statistical discussion. Whether it is one-fifth or one-fourth or one-tenth it is too high for America.

We have all of us tried to picture the kind of America we would wish to see. I pray the day will come in America when it cannot be said with truth that any one who will work shall be underclad or underfed or underhoused. We want more for our people than a minimum of food, shelter and clothing.

Middle Class Called The Forgotten Men.

But America must think also of the other nine-tenths or two-thirds, or whatever it is, which are mostly the great economic middle class. I am not thinking of the drones, either rich or poor.

It is the great economic middle class who have spent years learning to do their job skillfully who must carry these burdens. The skilled workers, the farmers, the professional people, the small merchants, and manufacturers—they need to be remembered. Why should they be the forgotten men? They have worked and saved to secure the homes, farms, insurance policies, and savings, which build and sustain the productivity of this country.

Government policies which tax, harry and demoralize the productivity of the great economic middle class are the greatest catastrophe which can come to the one-third of underclad, underhoused, underfed. Their redemption must come by preserving the two-thirds, not by dragging them down. In all his long years Santa Claus never increased the standard of living of a nation.

Our people want jobs. They want a just return for their labor. They want opportunity to rise in their jobs. They want security on the job. They want security from want in old age. They want collective bargaining by labor, free from coercion. They want decent returns from the farm. They want education, health and recreation. These and many others are the vital things which our civilization must produce.

New Deal Discovery Of Objectives Denied.

They are the objectives and the hopes of every decent man and woman. They are the righteous objectives of civilization itself. The New Deal did not discover these objectives. No person or party ever had a self-righteous monopoly of them.

The bright colors of wordy objectives are being used to camouflage failure. Samuel Johnson said the road to the hot place was paved with good intentions. Truly it can be said that the New Deal road to salvation is paved with objectives. That road badly needs repaving with practical methods.

The Republican Party can declare the same principles under which we can reach our social goals and not destroy them.

And there is the point of view of the Republican Party toward budget deficits, debts, taxes, currency inflation. When you deal with other people's money, the word is conservative not liberal, especially with a capital L.

The Republican Party can declare the principles of economy which will lift a burden from all who toil. It can declare principles of taxation that will not choke enterprise and destroy men's jobs.

There is discussion in the Republican Party as to whether it should undertake to declare its position upon these fundamental questions now or wait until 1940.

I realize the theory of some political leaders is that most people vote against something. It is their further theory that you only have to stand by and criticize. Give the other fellow enough rope and he will hang himself, and thereby you win elections. That is an old belief. But I insist it is inadequate for the needs of this day.

Declares Coalition "Devoutly to Be Wished."

If the Republican Party has not learned the lesson that it must produce principles and program besides being against and joy-riding on mistakes it has not read history.

You do not long hold the goal and devotion of men and women without definite purpose and principle. The Whig Party tried all that.

There is talk of fusion and coalition. Let me make but one remark on that. It is a result devoutly to be wished for. But the people fuse or coalesce around ideas and ideals, not around political bargains or stratagems. If the Republican Party meets the needs and aspirations of the people who are opposed to the New Deal, they will fuse and coalesce and not before. They only join in the march if they know where we are going.

And again I return to my opening.

There is a mighty service to be performed. This party must make the humanitarian objectives of the Nation possible which are otherwise wrecked by wrongful and ineffective methods. It must reform destructive economic policies which undermine the standards of living of the economic middle class and thus all the people. It must emancipate the people from this creeping collectivism and restore true liberalism. It must emancipate them from the moral degeneration in government.

The interest of the Nation requires that the Republican Party shall provide the country with positive and affirmative principles and proposals that will meet these yearnings of the people today for a way out and forward. It is a gigantic task. But should we not make a beginning?

That is a task in which youth must join.

You have the blood and the urge of your American forebears. You are as good stuff as they. You are better trained and equipped than they were. I have no doubt of your character and your resolution.

55 Mins. to Newark, New Plane Record

New York, Oct. 26 (AP).—A new Lockheed air liner, claimed to be the world's fastest transport ship, flew from Washington to Newark Airport in 55 minutes today on an experimental flight. Liners on regular schedule cover the distance of 203 miles in 80 minutes.

Highest speed reached on today's flight, with a 30-mile tail wind, Pilot Leslie Smith said, was 256 miles an hour between Washington and Philadelphia.

Next Big Event At Night Clubs Is Halloween

Many Observances Are Set for Saturday, Others Monday.

By Chanticleer.

Halloween night is the next big event on the fall calendar of what to do and where to go around the town. In metropolitan Washington, Halloween will be celebrated Saturday night with special noise-makers, confetti and all the popular and accepted additions to nightery props. That is, with one exception, Brinkley's, down Southeast Washington way.

Four of the popular Virginia gathering places also will celebrate the holiday Monday night, with Brinkley's. They are Boulevard Farms, River Bend, Stone Villa Inn and Nightingale.

• • • •

Speaking of Boulevard Farms, Assistant Manager King has produced a new drink, called the Dutch highball, which fits the alcoholic habits of all good Virginians. It is a long drink, of course, using wine instead of whisky, which is not for sale in Old Dominion after-darkeries. Faith Mower, now singing at Boulevard Farms, never before has appeared professionally. She's brand new from church benefits.

Johnny Shaw, maestro at the Madrillon, celebrated his birthday anniversary this week, with many nice presents and flowers all about the place . . . Jimmy Byrd, your host at the Mayfair, has gone in for horseback riding, which may answer the question of what does a night-spot proprietor do all day long . . . Stone Villa Inn, also on the Memorial highway, inaugurates its fall season tomorrow night with two floor shows, at 8 and midnight. Motif will be Chinese, with Al Shea and his New Yorkers providing the music.

• • • •

Dans-Sing at the River Bend is proving popular. It's a new stunt with Ralph Cannon conducting from the bandstand. Slides are thrown on a screen, with lyrics to tunes played by George Stein and the orchestra. The dancers sing as they dance.

• • • •

Tucker and Sloan are appearing nightly at the Lafayette's new Checkerboard Room, just opened last week. They're veteran performers—vaudeville, nighteries and all around and about. Most recently from Glens Falls' Half Way House and Harry Bannister's "Murder in the Old Red Barn." Also Nut Club and others . . . Sonny Kendis and orchestra offer a way direct to your lady's heart. Except that sometimes the lady doesn't forget. The popular maestro at the Raleigh's Pall Mall Room had a call from a town in Michigan the other night. A fair damsel who had heard his music not so long ago asked that the telephone be placed close enough to the bandstand so she could hear the music.

• • • •

Alfred Latell, now at the Lotus, leads a dog's life. But by choice. You see he presents Bonzo, a dog. In fact, he is Bonzo. He has portrayed all sorts of animals on the stage, but likes Bonzo best. Once he played the lion in the stage version of Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion." Bill Strickland and his orchestra and other acts, three times daily.

The Shoreham has two special dinner and supper specialties these days—crepe suzettes and broiled lobster, with luscious sauces prepared by Robert, maitre d'hotel. Mildred and Maurice, dancers with an exotic flair; the Belgrade quartet and Albenice, the magician, head the floor show this week. . . . For Saturday night, the Shoreham will offer two bands—in two popular rooms. Barnee in the Blue room and Al Kamons and the swing band in the cocktail room.

Bamboo Gardens is busy preparing plans for Halloween night, but we learn that the Continental Revue is to be the high spot with eight lovely girls and many specialists, including the hit comedy team of Terry and Walker. Russ Cullen and his boys provide the music for your dancing. Bill McIntyre, Washington's own, is master of ceremonies.

Man and Girl Shot On Auto Ride After A 'Lovers' Quarrel'

Welch, W. Va., Oct. 26 (AP).—Ralph Barrett, 24, and Elizabeth Hawthorn, 23, were in a hospital tonight in serious conditions from bullet wounds police said had been inflicted by Barrett after a lovers' quarrel.

Police Corpl. Hampton said Edna Reese, 21, told him the shooting occurred on a lunch-hour ride today on which she accompanied Barrett and Miss Hawthorn, who, she said, had quarreled last night.

Arriving at the foot of a mountain, Barrett stopped the Reese girl said, according to Hampton, and at her suggestion that they turn back, said:

"Wouldn't it be funny if we never got back?"

Hampton said Miss Reese told him she suggested that Miss Hawthorn drive and that as they exchanged seats Barrett pulled a revolver from his sweater and fired at Miss Hawthorn. She said both she and the Hawthorn girl ran in opposite directions and that they heard other shots fired. They later met, she said, and Miss Hawthorn was wounded. A bus picked her up and took her to Coalwood, from where she was brought to a hospital here. Hampton said a motorist found Barrett beside the parked automobile and brought him to Welch.

On the Night Club Floors This Week

Songstress Faith Mower has come to grace the floor at Boulevard Farms, the popular gathering place "just down the Memorial highway from Washington." Al Spieldock is the ace drummer familiar to every patron of the Madrillon.

2 'Fired' Workers To Get Jobs Back

Two of the six employes in the Baltimore Social Security Office who were dismissed for alleged union activity have been recommended for reinstatement by William Savin, who arbitrated the issue at request of the National Labor Relations Board, it was learned yesterday. The other four previously were reinstated.

The employes, William Sumf and Bernard Schultz, were recommended for re-employment in the Baltimore office at Grade 2 work of a routine character similar to that performed by other employes of comparable qualifications.

There were six dismissals by the office last May and the United Federal Workers of America challenged these as prejudicial. Two employes were immediately reinstated, two were returned in July and the cases of Sumf and Schultz were referred to Savin.

U. S. Favoring Spanish Rebels, Lawyers Assert

By the Associated Press.

A committee of the National Lawyers Guild charged yesterday that the United States Government has violated treaty obligations toward the Spanish republic and has failed to enforce laws which would operate against the Spanish insurgents.

The accusations were made by the committee on international law.

The treaty-breaking, the report asserted, has "done grave injury to the cause of the Spanish republic in its death-struggle with Fascism."

Specifically, the committee charged that the resolution adopted by Congress, establishing an arms embargo against both sides in Spain's civil war, violated a 1902 treaty with Spain in which this country guaranteed "full, entire and reciprocal liberty of commerce and navigation."

The group said the embargo resolution was a reversal of United States policy toward governments threatened by insurrection.

The committee recommended that the United States Ambassador to Spain, Claude G. Bowers, be ordered to return to Spanish territory.

The guild committee is composed of Abraham H. Feller, Harvard Law School; Felix S. Cohen, New York; Jacob Karro, Washington; Charles Recht, New York; David Barr, Washington; Rella Shwartz, Boston; Joseph Rosenfarb, Pittsburgh; Louis Baruch Rubenstein, Providence, R. I., and Jacob Schalet, Takoma Park, Md.

Diplomat Suggests Solution for War

New York, Oct. 26 (AP).—The establishment of institutions to discuss international controversies "sanely" was suggested today by Dr. Halvdan Koht, Norwegian foreign minister, as a possible preventive of war.

Dr. Koht, arriving aboard the Stavangerfjord for conferences with President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull, said the League of Nations had failed to prevent war because it tried to "do too much at once."

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Man She's to Marry 'Puts Women on Pedestal;' Should She Tell Him of Past Mistake?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Your opinions and advice are sincerely respected and valued by me. Therefore, I would like your suggestions on my current problem. First, I must confess that several years ago, when I was 26 years of age, I had an unhappy love affair. To be exact, one wouldn't call it a love affair, for while I knew the man for some time, we were intimate only once.

* * * *

Now I plan to be married to a man who is several years older than I am, who belongs to a fine old family. I have known him and gone out with him for the past five years, and he is the type of man who places a woman on a pedestal. Would you advise me to tell him of this unhappy experience of several years back? And if so, when should I tell him—before or after marriage? Thanking you for your advice, I am, sincerely, H. C.

* * * *

DEAR H. C.: That long since out-lived, unhappy incident in your past is best forgotten entirely by you and should by no means be told to the man you are planning to marry. In telling him, you just might be spoiling the beautiful image of you he holds in his mind, and which may much more nearly represent the woman you really are than would the substitute image you might create by confessing the foolish mistake of your youth. As he visualizes you today, basing his evaluation on his own tested knowledge of you, he probably regards you as a well-nigh perfect woman; certainly a woman he is proud to honor with his name, and in whom he can place implicit confidence as his wife.

Since he is something of a romantic idealist where women are concerned, he might not be able to understand how you—whom he esteems as all that is fine, good, untouched and unspoiled—could have stooped to a purely human frailty. His faith in you might be tainted with mistrust; his pride in you might be shriveled. The telling might cast a blight over your mutual love that no amount of explaining could ever dispel. Therefore, don't tell him. If you feel this mistake must still be atoned for, atone by dedicating yourself to the task of being to this man the finest possible wife a woman can be. M. H.

Gives Parties for Lonely.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: The letter published in your column two Sundays ago from a young widow who lamented her difficulty in making friends in Washington, reminded me of a conversation I had with you three years ago—when I told you of my avocational interest in bringing lonely men and women together and helping them find congenial friends. Since talking with you, I have carried my ideas into practice. For a long time now I have been doing this work which, in my opinion, so greatly needs to be done.

* * * *

As a woman of integrity, happily married, with educational and cultural background, my method is to introduce to each other certain well-referenced persons, at parties sometimes given at hotels, and other times given in my home. We attend the theater in groups, have dinners and dances, Sunday afternoon teas, card parties, etc. Book reviews and talks by worthwhile speakers add variety.

* * * *

I have on file the names of persons who are interested in being asked to these parties. Each person gives me three references which are investigated before his or her name is placed on file. At each party, some of these persons are invited, along with friends of my own, so that nobody knows—except the person himself—just how he came to be a guest. Among those who mingle at these parties are persons from Washington's diplomatic, business, professional and Government circles.

* * * *

Everything is "dutch treat," each person giving me in advance what the amount of individual entertainment cost. Frequently an evening costs as little as 50 cents per person; other times it may cost $1. I ask a small monthly fee for my services as "social secretary;" but the major payment I receive is the pleasure I am able to give.

I should be so happy if you would print this in your column for the benefit of your readers who might like to know about it. My name need not appear in the paper, but can be on file for any who inquire. With kind regards, I am, very sincerely yours. MRS. P. A. D.

She Offers to 'Listen.'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: As a mother and a worker with people, I have long been impressed with the number of lonely persons who have need of a sympathetic listener; one to whom they may "think out loud" and from whom they may receive understanding and sympathy. I am employed during the day but would like to devote one evening each week to "listening."

I am particularly interested in young persons between the ages of 17 and 25, and I believe I know something of their problems, for I have a 17-year-old youngster of my own. If, in your work, you come in contact with any who might have need of a sympathetic audience, you are at liberty to give my telephone number, so that a convenient appointment may be made.

FRIENDLY LISTENER.

Many Paris Styles Start in Hollywood

Travel Coat Designed for Star Goes to France.

Although Paris is still acclaimed the fashion center of the world, often Hollywood styles find their way to Paris and then back again to America as a new fashion, according to Ernest Dryden, internationally noted designer. An example of this, claims Dryden, are the clothes he created for Madeleine Carroll and Mary Astor for "The Prisoner of Zenda." In working on a motion picture wardrobe, he sometimes finds inspiration for a design which he considers worthy of Paris, as in the case of a travel coat he designed for Miss Carroll. Dryden thought well enough of the outfit to send his sketches back to the Paris connections which he still retains, and it will be featured in next year's styles.

Both the fabric pattern and styling of this coat were created by Dryden. It is honey beige with a painted plaid design in a deeper beige, fastened at the throat with a bow of foulard print taffeta. Another interesting feature is the double-breasted closure with large brown bone buttons. The same styling in a modernized adaptation (being a costume picture) will influence winter coats for 1939, Dryden says.

Party Cakes and Cookies

RICH, crunchy cookies, fancy cakes or petits fours with fondant icing—they always make a hit at big parties and little ones.

½ cup butter or other shortening
2 cups brown sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt

Cream shortening and sugar, add well-beaten eggs and vanilla, blend in the sifted dry ingredients. Make a fat roll or dough, wrap in waxed paper, place in a refrigerator overnight. Cut into thin slices, bake on greased cooky sheets about 12 minutes in a moderate oven—350 to 375 degrees F.

The delicate fondant frosting for fancy cakes is really no trick at all.

Bring to a boil 2½ cups of sugar, ¼ cup light corn sirup, ½ cup water. Cook to soft-ball stage, 238 degrees F.—stirring only until sugar is dissolved.

Pour out on a moistened platter, add 1 teaspoon vanilla, cool slightly and cream with a broad spatula until you have a solid mass. Then knead with the hands until creamy. Remelt by heating in a double boiler, stir frequently.

To frost the cakes dip them one by one—stuck on a fork—in the melted fondant.

Recipes for the little cakes—you can use either a cup cake batter or the delicious Almond Genoese for petits fours—are given in our 40-page booklet, "Cakes and Cookies," along with dozens of other recipes for layer cakes, cookies, fancy cakes, frostings and fillings—delicious, simple, inexpensive.

Send 15c for our booklet, "Cakes and Cookies," to The Washington Post Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

They Learn Music by Playing 'Train'

Preschool children derive real pleasure as well as great benefit from their study of music under the direction of Mrs. Laura Pendleton MacCartney at the National Child's Research Center. Here, six children develop tones by imitating train whistles. This movement also emphasizes rhythm.

Imitations of Pigs and Trains Instill Music, Teacher Says

Mothers Told to Start Singing to Babies Soon After Birth to Develop Appreciation and Talent by Consistent Training.

By Genevieve Reynolds.

IF YOU would have your child appreciate music and develop a talent for it, start singing to the baby shortly after birth, advises Mrs. Laura Pendleton MacCartney, who is teaching a class of professional women and mothers in "Music for the Nursery," each Tuesday at the Y. W. C. A.

"A child is never too young to be exposed to music," said Mrs. MacCartney. "Music should be a part of its daily life, so that it will become an instinctive reaction or subconscious response."

She maintains that if a baby gets consistent musical training, the mother can expect a definite response by time the child reaches the age of 18 months or 2 years. This response is manifested by smiling, cooing, chanting and moving the hands, feet or some other part of the body.

Hum at 2 Years.

"At the age of 2," she says, "some children begin singing or humming a measure of two of the scale. Then other measures are slowly added until they instinctively build up the scale with perfect tonal quality.

Early training prepares the children for participation in rhythmic bands at the age of 4, when they begin to analyze music, recognize tones and play an instrument or become the leader of the band, according to Miss MacCartney, who has had a varied experience in dealing with children as a teacher and as a director of plans for the National Child Bureau Research Center here.

For the very young child, Mrs. MacCartney suggests simple songs about the child and its environment that can be understood easily by the listener. Her first choice of songs includes nursery rhymes of animals and other simple ballads dealing with stars, moon, sun or trees.

For ear training, she advises imitation of sounds, such as bird calls, squealing of pigs, galloping of horses and the puff, puff of machinery. The best results, she thinks, can be obtained by encouraging a child to dramatize sounds and movements. Mothers themselves should dramatize for the children.

Imitate Animals.

Mrs. MacCartney says: "Mothers and teachers should not feel self-conscious about acting like ducks, geese, steam shovels, trains or anything that will simplify and visualize song to develop creative ability in a child." She places great emphasis upon freedom of creative impulse for the young child.

The mother who can neither sing nor play the piano need not feel that she cannot develop appreciation in her children, points out Mrs. MacCartney.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, Oct. 26.

STRIKES and the attendant picketing continue to harass, congest and sometimes horrify our civic existence. Sometimes there are as many pickets as shoppers on Fifth avenue, seems like. But the latest and strangest strike sent me scurrying down to our lovely little city hall to see what the strikers would do to our peppery mayor, "Little Flower" LaGuardia!

ALICE HUGHES.

This latest revolt did not break out in a store or factory, but in the noisy, smelly, crowded side streets of our infamous East Side, and it is a rebellion of slum mothers. "We refuse to achieve any more children until these hovels are torn down and decent housing provided," they shout, in effect. The obvious answer to this is that the East Side already has too many babies, but this is begging the issue. The strike has been fomented and led by Mrs. Yetta Rothman, dubbed "the Lysistrata of Henry Street" by an inspired reporter.

She's vigorous and militant and loud, and soon had an army of 200 East Side mothers to parade, demonstrate and picket—some bearing signs reading "Slums Make Bums." She and her battalion have been chasing the little mayor here and there, demanding a lot of action. I saw a delegation marching around the city hall, with its placards. "We'll bring all the babies from the slums and leave them on the city hall's doorstep," Mrs. Rothman threatened. And would that be a sight, and a problem—even for a Solomon.

And so the technique of the strike and the mass demonstration spreads to every field of human activity—including childbearing. At least, the Henry Street Lysistrata has kicked up a lot of dust, which was her purpose! Slums can't be rooted out over night—but this town is making masterful strides at present!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—The Week-End in Paris Club I started in July now has a big membership here. Among the newer members are Eleanor Lemaire, grand interior designer; Lily Dache, ace milliner; Cora Scovil, mannequin maker; Tobe, the famed fashionist; Beatrice Aue back, Hartford store-owner. All for a fast but thrilling look at the Paris County Fair—and well worth the time, expense and trouble.

Tobe tells me that she crossed with Roger Babson, the noted business diagnostician, and that Mrs. Babson is an extraordinarily smart and wise woman. No doubt another case of "cherchacy la femmy."

* * * *

John Rockefeller is getting ready to install his Radio City Plaza skating rink for the season of graceful gliding and heavy thumps on the posterior. Any time it freezes, Jack, I'm your girl, right there on Fifth Avenue—as long as the poor old ankles hold out!

* * * *

Jean Muir, the pretty movie girl, who perhaps has too many brains for big Hollywood success, has been trying to find a good Broadway play—but with no luck. So she's sailed away for England to appear in a new J. B. Priestley show—leaving our dramatic critic Dick Watts lone, lorn and lamenting. He's had a case on her for ages.

* * * *

Among our interesting newcomers is pretty Hermione Gingold, European big girl in stage, screen, radio. Her first trip our way. "If I were to advise a beginner on how to learn to act for the stage, films or radio, I'd urge her to study Shakespeare," she told me the other day. Very nice, too, and I shall write to Bing Crosby and Charlie McCarthy at once.

YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!

Filling Food Essential to Feel Well Fed When Dieting.

By Ida Jean Kain.

DIETING takes off pounds, and exercise takes down inches, but what builds will power for diet and exercise? Food!

A judicious choice of foods inserted into the menu reinforces the willpower. Without satiety, a reducing menu is no more than an appetizer, and the art in planning a with vitamins and calories. It is with viatamins and calories. It is necessary to recognize the foods that impart a sense of being well fed when, ordinarily, according to your caloric cut, you should be hungry.

You do not feel penalized by a reducing menu consisting of some foods which give an immediate sense of fullness in combination with other foods which digest slowly and therefore stay by you.

There is nothing like hot soup, broth or a hot beverage to appease an unleashed appetite. These foods, however, would leave you hungry long before the next meal unless combined with foods of a higher satiety value.

Meat heads the list of foods which "stick to the ribs." When a large percentage of your protein requirement is supplied in meat, you do not get hungry as quickly. You may have meat twice a day if you trim off the fat. Meat soups are an excellent item in the reducer's menu.

Hard-boiled eggs and soft-boiled eggs have the same calorie value, but since the hard-boiled eggs are more slowly digested, they are higher in satiety. On the other hand, raw cabbage is more filling than cooked cabbage for the simple reason that it must be thoroughly chewed. You can chew coleslaw until your jaws are weary and you won't get any appreciable number of calories.

Cheese is another food which is slow to digest, and 150 calories of cheese and crackers with a hot beverage puts a period to your meal.

When dieting, select filling foods.

This is less true of cottage cheese than of other varieties, since it contains so little fat.

Potatoes have filling qualities. Whoever started the idea that potatoes are fattening did the reducer a bad turn, since the filling qualities of the spud are all out of proportion to its calorie content. For 100 calories you can have a medium size baked potato, eight pieces of fried potato, or one-half cup of mashed potato—and there is nothing like meat and potatoes to make you think you are having a regular meal!

A small serving of dessert at the end of the meal is a great source of satisfaction to the reducer. It appeases that feeling of injustice that one must diet. For this reason, I sometime squander 300 calories in one fell swoop on pie for your menu. Pastries stay by you because of their fat content and the fact that the digestive juices cannot get at them easily. Desserts are not fattening if they are not in excess of your day's calorie needs.

In reducing you must cope with appetite and will power. You cannot ignore them. And the way to do it is to eat foods with a high satiety value.

REDUCER'S SALAD DRESSING.
Mineral Oil Mayonnaise.

2 egg yolks
½-teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1¼ cups mineral oil.

Add the salt to the egg yolks, blend thoroughly. Add the lemon juice. Then add the oil in quantities of a tablespoon or more, being sure that all the oil has been completely combined with the egg yolks before more is added. Continue beating all the time with rotary beater. Toward the last larger quantities of the oil may be added at the time. Have all ingredients cold. If a more acid dressing is desired, add more lemon juice or add the juice from sweet pickles.

Use purified mineral oil; heavy oil is best. This oil has no nutritive value and is also laxative. 1½ cups dressing contain 57 calories. 1 tablespoon contains 3 calories.

Story Telling Is Home Art Needing Study

Tale Should Interest Both Children and Teller; Naturalness Urged.

GOOD STORY TELLERS are made as well as born, and every home should have one, maintains Anne Majette Grant, author of a booklet on story telling for children recently issued by the Westchester County Recreation Association.

Proceeding on the theory that no child's education is well rounded without a knowledge of fairy tales, local history and folk lore, Mrs. Grant has prepared for mothers and recreation leaders suggestions on the art of story telling.

Through the medium of story telling much can be done to develop the child's imagination and character, Mrs. Grant points out. Stories also develop a sense of humor or proportion in the children and correct wrong tendencies and inculcate worthy ideals.

Story telling Mrs. Grant divides into two methods, formal and informal. Of these she thinks the informal, casual method the more effective.

Story Should Interest Teller.

A story is a good story and well told if "it interests the teller and enthralls the listener," Mrs. Grant points out. She gives this advice concerning selections of stories:

"The story must be fitted to the type of group and to the age and experience of the listeners.

Begin on the level of the listeners, gain their confidence and gradually raise the level of their stories.

"Introduce stories that call forth love of beauty, that illustrate the importance of common sense and resourcefulness and that develop a sense of humor. Introduce a few purely grotesque stories which serve as an antidote to sentimentality or utilitarism, stories that savor of danger and blood which must be given to slake this universal appeal of childhood, stories that present romance and excitement in the saving as well as the taking of life, and a certain number of stories dealing with death (for children 6 to 9).

Mrs. Grant emphasizes that the first prerequisite for good story telling is a genuine appreciation of the story. You must believe in the story if you would give its meaning to others. She says, "learn it, love it and live it."

Always Be Natural.

Be natural. Use gesture or mimicry only when natural to you.

Speak clearly, distinctly and smoothly. No "sugary voice" or "talking down."

"Use pauses to gain effects and allow things to sink in.

"Use direct rather than indirect discourse.

"Do not tag a moral on your story. If the story is worth telling it will stand alone.

"Avoid loudness.

"Speak more slowly than usual—even when you want to give the sense of hurry. Emphasize important works, but pronounce all words.

"Never interrupt your story if you can possibly help it. (Usually a long pause will correct any disciplinary problem because the nearby eager listeners will take care of the culprit.)"

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Early Vitamin History.

In 1905 Pekelharing, a Dutch physiologist, wrote, "Physiology has demonstrated that it is impossible to keep an animal alive by feeding it with protein, fat, carbohydrates and the necessary salts and water. If the food is to have its true value, something more than these must be present.

"When white mice are fed on bread baked with casein, albumin, rice flour, lard and a mixture of all the salts which ought to be found in their food, and given only water to drink, they starve to death. If, however, instead of water they are given milk to drink, they keep in good health. The element in the milk which keeps the animals alive occurs in the whey. There is an unknown substance in milk which, even in small quantities, is of paramount importance to nutrition."

This was one of the first statements and, I think, the first clear and definite statement about the substances we now call the vitamins. Investigation into their nature has gone ahead with great rapidity.

In 1912 Funk created the name "Vitamins" and thought that there were four—one was an anti-neuritic vitamin which we now call B1; one an anti-scurvy vitamin, one an anti-pellagra and, probably, he said, an anti-rickets.

I find in a late book on the subject by Leslie J. Harris that he is listing Vitamins A, B, B2, C, D, E, K, H and P, and also says that there are three B2 vitamins. (So when you say "Vitamin B" you have to specify whether you mean B1, B2, B3, B4 or B5.) Many of the new vitamins are not well enough established to have any particularly definite action. They simply contribute to general well being. Many of them also are perhaps linked with or a part of the molecule of other known vitamins. This is true of F, for instance, which seems to be found invariably in association with Vitamin B.

The existence of Vitamin K is postulated on the basis that some herbivorous foods, notably clover, will cure and prevent spontaneous hemorrhages, and it may be that we need the substances K in our diet in order that our small blood vessels, the capillaries, do not leak, producing hemorrhages under the skin, a disease known as purpura.

The interesting point about these new researches is that we are probably still largely in the dark as to all the elements that are required for a balanced diet.

GRAPEFRUIT ALMOND SALAD.

2 grapefruit
2 ounces of chopped blanched almonds
1 package of lemon-flavored gelatin
1 cup of grapefruit juice
1 tablespoon of sugar
¾ cup of boiling water

Peel and cut the grapefruit into sections. Add the chopped almonds to the segments. Dissolve the gelatin and sugar in boiling water, then add the grapefruit juice. When cool and beginning to thicken, add grapefruit and almond mixture. Pour into a mold and put in refrigerator to freeze. Serve on lettuce lined plates with mayonnaise.

Bowlegged Generation Feared From Tall Heels

Unless young girls give up the practice of wearing high-heeled shoes, America will develop a race of women with "cowboy legs," according to the prediction of an authority on orthopedic footwear.

"The cowboy legs or bowlegs about which we are speaking," he said, "are caused through wearing high-heeled shoes at an immature age, thus causing the outside leg muscles to stretch and the back leg muscles to contract."

Shoes for Shoppers.

"Shopping shoes" with flexible soles and medium built-up heels are a new variation of the spectator sports shoe designed to ease the pathway of bargain hunters. The eight-mile record made by a resolute Christmas shopper in tracking down her purchases last winter is said to have inspired this practical innovation.

D. C. League Year Opens At Luncheon

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

Smartly turned out in modish fall frocks and hats that for the most part either towered or swept back with a veil from the face, more than 200 members of the Junior League of Washington met in the west ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel for their annual opening luncheon of the season.

If all the silver fox neckpieces in the gathering were stretched end to end, they would probably reach from here to no telling where—which doesn't mean at all that yesterday's luncheon was a dress parade, and nothing else. Far from it. In fact, when ladies of the Junior League meet, whether at luncheon or in conference, there's usually welfare work afoot in a big way.

Evidence of this was borne out yesterday, not only in informal conversation before the luncheon began, but later on, when Dr. George Ruhland, D. C. health officer, was introduced as the speaker for the occasion. Discussing modern public health measures as contrasted with public health in the past, and ointing out current needs in the District, Dr. Ruhland appealed to his audience for help, pointing out ways and means that the league can support and improve the health program.

Speaker Introduced By Mrs. Sturdevant

The speaker was introduced by the Junior League president, Mrs. William North Sturdevant, who wores becoming off-the-face hat and a trim black crepe frock, set off with red buttons. Others at the speakers' table were either the current officers or past presidents, and included Mrs. Montgomery Blair, jr., first vice president; Miss Cecil Lester Jones, second vice president; Mrs. Bishop Hill, treasurer; Miss Helen Clifford, secretary; Miss Anne Carter Greene, Mrs. Cary T. Grayson, in a tall black hat with a veil and a semitailored frock; Mrs. Langhorne Bond, the former Miss Katherine Dunlop; Mrs. G. Howland Chase, Mrs. Sidney Thomas, Miss Helen Hunt and Miss Alice Downing.

The speakers' table, on a platform at one side of the ballroom, was decorated with bowls of yellow chrysanthemums and autumn leaves. Smaller bowls of the same flowers centered the other 20-odd tables arranged in rows the length of the room.

In little groups clustered at one end of the room before the luncheon began and all over the ballroom after it was over, some of the projects that will make up the league's work this winter were discussed. There were frequent references. For instance, there was frequent reference to the series of children's plays presented on Saturdays through December 4, the social service work at Children's Hospital, the league assistance to local activities of the Red Cross and the Girl Scouts, the marionette presentations at neighborhood centers, and the Thrift Shop, which is one of the league's most interesting projects.

Proof of the league's part in local welfare work was also borne out by the presence of another man, E. Frisbie, who represented a group of people who have been helped by the league's providing "talking books" and books in Braille for their entertainment.

Many League Members And Guests Present

Among the scores of those attending the luncheon were Mrs. Harry H. Woodring, wife of the Secretary of War, whose hunter's green wool dress was set off with a brown, brimmed hat; Mrs. Marshall Exnicios in a black ensemble, sitting with Mrs. Donald McKnew, who was smartly attired in gray; Mrs. McKenney Mallan, one of the most attractively attired women at the luncheon in a black frock, a high crowned black hat with a bow-effect piece jutting far out to the side and a silver fox neckpiece to finish off her ensemble; Mrs. Reginald Mead, whose black outfit was relieved by a trim white collar; Mrs. David Barry in brown, and Miss Frida Frazer in a blue pointed hat with a dress to match.

Also, Mrs. Millard West, Mrs. W. McClellan Ritter, Mrs. McCook Knox and her daughter, Miss Kathleen Knox. Mrs. Landra Platt and her daughter, Mrs. Donald Deveau, Mrs. Oscar Coolican, who had a hand in arranging the luncheon; Miss Phyllis Hight, who sold tickets at the door; Mrs. William H. Kerkam, jr., Mrs. Alfred Hand, Miss Betsy Burke, Miss Kate Hyde Scully, Mrs. Morris Clark, Mrs Dexter Bullard, whose red suede peaked hat was most becoming; Mrs. John B. Hyde, Mrs. Frederick Brooke, newly elected national president of the Girl Scouts; Miss Jane Culbertson, Miss Juliet Dulany, Miss Elizabeth Houghton, Miss Isabelle Ogilby and many more.

At Junior League Luncheon Yesterday

Harris & Ewing

The Junior League turned out full force for its annual fall luncheon at the Shoreham yesterday, and among those there and discussing league plans for the winter were (left to right), Mrs. Montgomery Blair, jr., Mrs. William Sturdevant and Mrs. Bishop Hill, all of whom are officers of the organization.

About the Town

With Dudley Harmon

LAURA DE LOS RIOS, daughter of the Spanish Ambassador and Senora de Los Rios, is writing her doctor's thesis on the subject, "The Dance in the Theater." At Columbia University, where she is studying this year, she is concentrating on plays of the sixteenth century, which includes works of Shakespeare, Corneille, Moliere, Racine and Lopez de Vega.

Pretty Senorita de Los Rios comes to Washington every Friday from New York and remains until Monday. The other day we saw her at a small party given by Mr. and Mrs. William Lacy at their new home, 2556 Massachusetts avenue. The affair was in honor of Mr. Lacy's father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Lacy, of Denver, Colo., and also for Philip Broad, Second Secretary of the British Embassy. The latter is leaving Washington on Friday to sail for his new post at Teheran, Persia.

Among the guests were several from the embassy, including the Commercial Secretary and Mrs. Heywood, and the Financial Counselor, E. N. R. Trentham. Others were Mr. and Mrs. Gore and Miss Willa Magee, who makes her home with the Canadian Minister and Lady Marler.

Mrs. Lacy, sr., comes originally from Chicago and is a sister-in-law of the glamorous Mrs. Howard Linn, who spends a lot of time in the Virginia hunting country and is coming in a few weeks to visit Mrs. Amory Perkins at her home in Middleburg. Mrs. Lacy likes the Capital and would like to settle here for the winter.

MARRIAGE MAY BE said to be endemic among members of the diplomatic corps. Within a month Dmitri Naoumoff, Bulgarian Minister, and Otakar Kabelac, Attache of the Czechoslovakian legation, took unto themselves brides somewhat to the surprise of their Washington friends. Mr. and Mme. Kabelac have returned to the Capital from Europe and are staying at the Wardman Park for the time being. Minister Naoumoff is en route from Bulgaria with his wife.

MRS. WILLIAM RHINELANDER STEWART was among prominent New Yorkers who took to the microphone the other day to say a good word for Mayor LaGuardia and Prosecutor Thomas Dewey in their campaign for Mayor and District Attorney. A New York columnist reports that at first the former Janet Newbold, of Washington, seemed to feel she was the Voice of Experience, owing to "mike fright," but soon overcame it and urged the voters to support LaGuardia.

MRS. RICHARD V. OULAHAN and Mrs. Frank Bohn are so busy with plans for the fourth season of Town Hall that they hardly have time to eat. Yesterday they were lunching off an apple apiece when encountered in their offices in the National Press Building. Mrs. Bohn is the daughter of the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper . . . Sibilla Skidelsky, daughter of Mme. de Bianchi, wife of the Portuguese Minister, is in New York for a while doing the art exhibits. Her family is not expected to return from Portugal until about the middle of November . . . This is an open season for Indian princesses. The latest to arrive is the Princess of Mysore, fabulously rich, and following closely on the heels of Princess Brinda, who has returned to New York. The other evening the Princess of Mysore was dancing at the Shoreham in a beautiful coral-colored sari banded in gold.

Envoy to Entertain Owen J. C. Norems

The Minister of Lithuania and Mme. Zadeikis will entertain at a dinner this evening at the legation in honor of Owen J. C. Norem, recently appointed United States Minister to that country, and Mrs. Norem.

Mr. and Mrs. Norem will leave on Saturday with their three children and a governess and will sail November 3 on the liner Northampton for their new post. This is Mr. Norem's first appointment. At present he and Mrs. Norem are staying at the Roosevelt.

Plans December Debut

Hessler-Henderson.

Miss Catherine Holloway Tilghman, whose mother, Mrs. Charles Tilghman, will present her at a tea at their home on Massachusetts avenue December 20. Miss Tilghman is attending the Manhattanville School in New York, but expects to return here during the Thanksgiving holidays to join in the festivities of the debutantes set at that time.

Apple Is Motif For Tacky Ball

Wishing Well of Cider, Canopy of Fruit to Be Arranged.

Mrs. William Laird Dunlop, jr., has thought up some ingenious decorations for the annual tacky ball which she sponsors, and which this year will take place on Saturday evening at the Mayflower. As the "big apple" is to be the featured event this year, there will be a canopy of apples stretched overhead in the ballroom, and small tables will be decorated with gayly striped covers and a bowl of ripe red apples.

In one corner a "wishing well" will be filled with cider, and the Halloween atmosphere will be further carried out with the serving of doughnuts and pumpkin pie.

The ball will begin at 10 o'clock. Among the post-debutantes assisting on the committee in charge are Miss Gertrude Pearson, Miss Martha Talley, Miss Bette Hartz, Miss Marbury Beall, Miss Alice Clarke, Miss Elizabeth Radeker, Miss Katharine McKane, Miss Virginia Glazebrook, Miss Mary Patterson, Miss Susan Kintner, Miss Virginia Randolph, Miss Nancy Harrison, Miss Kearsley Caldwell, Miss Helen Potts, Miss Mary Agnes Young, and Miss Lily Fleming.

Miss Betsy Rowan, Miss Henrietta Talbott, Miss Katherine Fuqua, Miss Carrie Roper Fulton, Miss Dorothy Gould Fowler, Miss Janet Harrison, Miss Reta Shea, Miss Lucille Elliott, Miss Fanella Castanedo, Miss Mary Powell Millott, Miss Beverley Lee, and Miss Mary Katherine Spinks also will assist.

Dr. Pedro Fraga To Leave Nov. 4 On Trip to Cuba

The Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Pedro Martinez Fraga, will leave Washington on November 4 for Havana, where he will spend several days. He plans to return November 12.

On Monday the Ambassador was host at a luncheon at the Embassy in honor of Gen. Rafael Montalvo, Secretary for Defense of Cuba, and Senora Montalvo. Other guests were the Undersecretary of State, Sumner Welles, and Mrs. Welles, and Dr. and Mrs. Antonio A. S. de Bustamente, who left that afternoon for Havana.

Alex Feinberg to Wed Miss Castleman Sunday

The marriage of Miss Rene Castleman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Castlema.., and Alex Feinberg, son of Mr and Mrs. Abraham Feinberg, will take place Sunday at 4 o'clock at the Beth-El Synagogue. Rabbi Aaron Volman and Rabbi Maurice Cohen will officiate.

Miss Eva Castleman, sister of the birde, will l maid of honor while Leon Smallwood will be best man.

A wedding of interest to St. Louis and Washington took place here yesterday morning at St. Paul's Church when Miss Katharine Egan Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Elmer Murphy, of this city, became the bride of John Edward Cramer, jr., son of John Edward Cramer and the late Mrs. Cramer, of St. Louis. The couple, after a wedding trip to the South, will make their home in St. Louis.

With the Rev. C. J. Dacey officiating, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore cream-colored satin cut on close-fitting lines with a high neck and long pointed sleeves. Her lace veil, mounted on tulle, was a family heirloom and had been worn by her mother at the latter's marriage.

Mrs. Gardiner Is Matron of Honor

Mrs. W. Gwynn Gardiner, jr., who served as matron of honor, chose ruby satin for her costume, with short full sleeves and long full skirt. Her headdress was formed of a half wreath of chrysanthemums.

The bridesmaids were Miss Jane Egan, cousin of the bride, and Miss Katherine Tumulty, whose dresses of rose beige satin were cut on the same lines as that of the matron of honor.

William Otto Cramer, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man, while the ushers were Maurice O'Reilly, of New York, cousin of the bride; Charles von Brecht, of St. Louis, cousin of the bridegroom, and George Cassidy and Lee Kenny, both of Washington.

Wedding Breakfast Follows Ceremony

Out-of-town guests were John Edward Cramer, Mrs. Charles von Brecht and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mitchell, all of St. Louis; Mrs. Charles Harper Walsh and Miss Carmel O'Reilly, of New York.

Five Vocalists With Symphony

"International music day" might well be the subtitle of the opening concert of the National Symphony Orchestra next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Constitution Hall under the baton of Dr. Hans Kindler, conductor.

For not only do the five vocalists of the Wagnerian Festival Singers, appearing as soloists with the orchestra, represent five nationalities, and not only does the program draw on works of composers of three countries, but diplomatic representatives of several nations have announced their intention of being present at the concert.

Honoring Henk Noort, Dutch tenor, and Richard Hageman, musical director of the Festival Singers, who was also born in Holland, the Minister of the Netherlands and Mme. de With have taken a box for the concert.

The Minister of Sweden and Mme. Bostrom have likewise taken a box in honor of Joel Berglund, barytone of the group, who is the Swedish member of the ensemble. The Minister of Czechoslovakia and Mme. Hurban will be with Mrs. Lawrence Townsend in her box.

The opening program will include the playing of a Toccata of Frescobaldi, Italian master, and the Fourth Symphony of Tschaikowsky, Russian composer. The second half of the program consists of Wagnerian excerpts, mostly vocal, from "Lohengrin," "Tannhauser," "Die Walkure" and "Die Meistersinger." Dr. Kindler and Richard Hageman will share the podium. The other two singers in the group are Hilda Konetzni, Austrian soprano, and Alexander Kipnis, Russian basso.

Mary Mohun-G. W. Best Wedding Is Tomorrow

The marriage of Miss Mary Margaret Mohun and Glenn William Best will take place tomorrow at 11 o'clock at St. Jerome's Church in Hyattsville, Md.

It had been previously announced that it would take place in St. Thomas's in Washington.

Opening of Concert Season Draws Brilliant Throng to Constitution Hall

Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, Fritz Kreisler Heard in Capital.

Top drawer society always turns out for the opening concert of the season here of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra. Last evening, when Fritz Kreisler and his violin were an added attraction, the boxes and the downstairs seats were packed with a glittering audience which met at Constitution Hall for the first concert of the year.

Ermine, mink and sables were everywhere as this is always a very "dressy" occasion. Diplomats, officials and residents were al there, and during the intermission the lobby was jammed with members of Capital society.

In a box nearby sat Mme. Saito, wife of the Japanese Ambassador, with a party of ladies from the embassy. Mme. Saito's beautiful brocaded gown in black and rose lent a colorful note amid the more somber blues and greens around her.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss were there, the latter wearing a long black cloak with a white fur collar over her evening gown. Justice and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone occupied a box, Mrs. Stone gowned in yellow crepe with sequins of the same shade at the shoulders. Countess van der Straten Ponthoz, who occupied the adjoining box, wore a simply cut gown of black satin and a strand of pearls, very striking with her mauve hair. With her was her guest, Senora de Ganara, of Venezuela, who was also in black. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Walker and Ralph Snowden Hill were others who gazed down upon the stage from boxes.

The Charge d'Affaires of the British Embassy, Victor Mallet, escorted Mrs. W. W. T. Torr, wife of the Military Attache of the Embassy, and Lady Hardwicke, a visitor in Washington. Also from the British Embassy came Maj. and Mrs. Henry Frank Heywood and Michael Vyvyan, who was with Mrs. Patterson Roberts.

Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins wore a mink coat over her black velvet dress, which was trimmed down the front with ecru lace. Near her sat Prince and Princess Ourusoff, who seldom miss a concert.

Mrs. Francis Sayre, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State, came alone, as Mr. Sayre was detained by business at the last moment. The Marquis Capomazza of the Italian Embassy was with Mrs. Harold Hinton, and other members of the Diplomatic Corps at the concert were the Marquis of Sant 'Orsola, Naval Attache of the Italian Embassy, and Lawrence Bungardeanu, who escorted Mrs. John Bain, recently returned to the Capital after an absence of several years. Mrs. Bain was the only woman wearing a veil, and hers was embroidered in tiny stars which sparkled in the light.

Mr. and Mrs Denys Smith were being greeted on all sides, having just returned from a vacation in England and France.

Dr. Warren Tells Aims of New College

Sarah Lawrence Head Addresses Washington A. A. U. W.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Dr. Constance Warren, president of Sarah Lawrence College, in Bronxville, N. Y., last night addressed an audience of distinguished women educators at a dinner given by the education committee of the Washington Branch of the American Association of University Women, in honor of members of the national council, here for the executive session to be held today. Dr. Warren, taking as her subject, "What Educates the College Woman?" left the topic a question still in the process of being answered by extensive research at the college of which she is the head.

Ten years ago, when Sarah Lawrence College was founded, it was with the purpose of suiting its educational program to the needs of the student, rather than endeavoring to fit the student into educational patterns of years past, she said. The faculty proceeded on the assumption that the student was there with a sincere desire to acquire knowledge in the field of her interest and also that young people of college age desired to be regarded as adults and given responsibility.

On the basis of these assumptions, it was deemed unnecessary for students to follow textbooks and be given grades and written examinations. A plan of guidance in study and reading was substituted, with four hours a week devoted, in two-hour periods, to discussion of the subject at a sort of seminar with the faculty member and a small group of other students. Each girl also was assigned a faculty adviser, to whom she could go freely with all her problems. Each faculty member was chosen with great care, both as a thorough scholar and a student of human nature, said Dr. Warren—"one as interested in teaching the individual as in teaching her subject."

The plan has been successful, but is still in the process of development, she pointed out, and will remain flexible, for adjustment to educational needs as they become apparent.

Mrs. Robert Olesen, as chairman of the education committee, of the Washington branch, introduced Dr. Warren. Mrs. Richard Hogue, president of the club, and also chairman of the clubhouse committee for the national association, presided at the dinner and introduced members of the national board, including Dean Louise Pound, of the English department of the University of Nebraska.

Dean Pound, a vice president of the association, spoke preceding Dr. Warren, punctuating her remarks with droll comments which kept her audience laughing. She characterized herself as a "chronic vice president," being also vice president of the American Association of University Professors, of the American Dialect Society and other organizations.

She called attention to the large number of women scholars in America today and observed there were plenty of them capably equipped to handle the presidency of Mount Holyoke College "as well as the former marine, President Ham." Dean Pound spoke for Dean Margaret S. Morriss, of Pembroke College, Brown University, president of the association, who will not be here until today.

Mrs. Hogue presented, in addition to Dean Pound, Dean Margaret Justin, of Kansas State College; Mrs. Adam Leroy Jones, of Montclair, N. J.; Mrs. A. Ross Hill, of Kansas City, Mo., national treasurer; Dr. Katharine R. Adams, of Albany, chairman of membership and maintaining standards; Miss Lura Beam, of Philadelphia, chairman of the arts; Mrs. L. T. Merwin, of Portland, Oreg.; Mrs. Arthur S. Heineman, of Los Angeles, chairman of education; Dr. Susan Kingsbury, president of the Philadelphia branch; Mrs. J. K. McClintock, of Washington, comptroller; Miss Martha Enochs, of Jackson, Miss.; Mrs. H. K. Painter, of Minneapolis; Mrs. W. S. Garnsey, of Greeley, Colo., and Dr. Elizabeth F. Jackson, of Agnes Scott College, in Decatur, Ga.

Larger Life Group to Meet.

"Madame Chairman" . . .

By Suzanne.

MRS. CARL SMITH DOW, a member of Columbia Alpha Chapter of the Pi Beta Phi Alumnae Association, has been appointed convention guide for the national conclave of the sorority in Asheville, N. C., next June. This news was received by the Pi Phis yesterday at the tea given by Miss Marion McCoy in honor of Mrs. Adele Alford, editor of the sorority's official organ, The Arrow.

Mrs. Alford, who has been in New York at the National Panhellenic Association meeting, is visiting various chapters on her way to her home in San Diego, Calif. Representatives of the 30 national sororities in the City Panhellenic were among the guests at yesterday's tea. Mrs. Rogers Fred is president of the Washington Alumnae Chapter.

PEOPLE from Utah seem to have a way of keeping together when they move back East. There is the Capital Review Club, which opened its season with a dinner meeting at the Roosevelt Hotel Tuesday night and has a membership of 35 young women, all former residents of Utah. It is a study club, with music as the theme of its program this year, and has its regular meetings every two weeks at the homes of members. Mrs. Eleanor Leatherwood, wife of former Representative Leatherwood; Mrs. William H. King, wife of Senator King, and Mrs. George Sutherland, wife of Associate Justice Sutherland, are honorary members.

ANOTHER active Utah group is the Washington Chapter of the Daughters of Utah Pioneers, whose members are all lineal descendants of pioneers who reached Utah before the coming of the railroad, May 10, 1869. The organization has been recognized by the State Legislature as a nonsectarian State historical society and custodian of the State flag and pioneer relics. Washington and New York have the only Eastern branches.

Its first important activity this season will be the sponsoring of a concert Friday night of next week by Edna Cragun Wheelwright, soprano, assisted by Howard Severe, barytone, and D. Sterling Wheelwright and Frances O'Neill, accompanists. The program will be in the recreation hall of the Latter Day Saints' Chapel.

Zina Lambert Willey is president of the society, with Leah Ivins Cardon, Alice Ludlow Wilkinson, Marvel M. Burk, Irma Monson Stewart, Carol Kirkam Jarvis, Dessie Worthington Thomas, Lona Stratford Hyde, Beatrice Simper Creer, Eleanor Miller Farr, Frances O'Neill Berrett and Alice Dinwoody Moyle as other officers.

JUDGE FAY BENTLEY, of the Juvenile Court (I hope she won't mind my telling this), admits spelling has never been one of her strong subjects, but she does have a good sense of direction. When the old Tally Ho burned a few years ago, she turned in the alarm, phoning the fire department with haste and flurry usual in such a situation.

"How do you spell it?" asked the puzzled firemen.

"Spell it?" said the astonished judge, "I don't know, but I can tell you how to get her!"

PATRONS and patronesses of the Fort Washington School are making elaborate preparations for a Halloween Festival to be given Friday night for members of the association and their friends. It is a new organization and is launching a busy season.

There is always a Halloween party for the children at the fort and apparently they have had such a good time in former years, their elders have decided to join in the fun and at the same time swell the treasury of the association. Proceeds from the booths and games will go toward the support of the organization. Mrs. John Judd, Mrs. John Cantrell and Mrs. Charles Forsht are the committee in charge of arrangements.

Mission Parley Is Opened Here

More than 400 women assembled at the First Congregational Church yesterday for the opening sessions of the Missionary Institute, sponsored by the Woman's Council of the Washington Federation of Churches. Mrs. Frank Edgington presided at both morning and afternoon meetings and Mrs. H. M. Kendricks, vice president emeritus of the council, was in charge of the luncheon arrangements.

The two mission study books for the year, "Rebuilding Rural America," by Mark A. Dauber, and "Mecca and Beyond," by E. M. and R. W. Dodd, were discussed. The former by Mrs. Dan B. Brummitt, of Kansas City, Mo., vice president of the National Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and the latter by Miss Grace Schultz, secretary of the Home Board Department of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions in New York. Both books will be further analyzed by the same speakers at today's and tomorrow's meetings, with the purpose of preparing those attending the institute to return to their individual missionary societies and guide the study of the books during the season.

Mrs. Grace Sloan Overton, who addressed the mass meeting Sunday, talked again yesterday on the subject "Is Building a Christian World a Dream." Despite many discouraging factors, she declared there has been a distinct "turning to the right" in recent years. The church must awaken to the fact that building a social consciousness is part of its job in Christianizing the world, she said.

Mrs. H. W. Beatty gave the invocation yesterday and Miss Margaret Applegarth talked on methods. Today, Mrs. George A. Ross will preside at the sessions, Mrs. Thomas E. Robertson will give the invocation and the same speakers will be on the program.

Michigan Party Planned.

Plans have been completed for the Halloween party and dance to be given by the Michigan State Society Saturday evening, at the Lafayette Hotel. D.A.R. Drive To Preserve U.S. Records

A 50-year project was launched by the Daughters of the American Revolution at their executive board meeting yesterday when Dr. Jean Stephenson, chairman of the genealogical records committee, announced a plan for gathering copies of all genealogical and historical records of the Nation into a general depository—the D. A. R. library.

Mrs. William A. Becker, president general, presided at the session in Memorial Continental Hall, with a luncheon following in the banquet hall of the building.

The project is expected to require a vast amount of painstaking research over at least half a century for completion. Millions of records of births, marriages, deaths, deeds, wills and migrations must be copied. Crumbling tombstones in country graveyards, old family Bibles and musty records stored in town, county and city vault will yield the story of America's growth.

To Save Priceless Records.

Historians regard the project, conceived by Dr. Stephenson, as one of the most important patriotic endeavors since the founding of the Nation. They urge it be expedited because each year many tons of priceless genealogical records are destroyed.

The work will be done by the 2,300 chapters of the D. A. R., Dr. Stephenson explained. The first task will be to get a census of the records in each of the 4,000 counties in the country. After these records are copied those of cemeteries, churches and so on will be studied.

"The central depository will have true copies of all records. The originals will stay in State or county depositories," said Dr. Stephenson.

Flags for Annapolis.

"These records form a vital part of American history. Through them can be traced the population changes, the various migrations of our people.

"The period from 1820 to 1890 is the most difficult to bridge for it is the period of migrations or shifts of population. For instance, the depression of 1837 resulted in the migration which opened up the West."

Today flags of the 48 States will be presented to the Naval Academy at Annapolis by State regents and the United States flag by Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig, for the District of Columbia. Mrs. Becker will head a delegation of officers and members of the D. A. R. at ceremonies at the academy this afternoon.

Italian Society to Give Concert Tea on Dec. 12

A concert tea will be given at the Mayflower in the Chinese Room on December 12 by the Circolo di Cultura Italiana. Preparations are being made by Mrs. Fausto Royer, chairman of the committee, assisted by Miss Evelina Pacini, Fausto Royer, Giorge Viecchietti, Enrico Pacini, Miss Florence Sari and Miss Liliana di Girolamo.

The regular meeting of the Circolo was held October 20, at the Washington International House, 1708 New Hampshire avenue, with Mme Amelia Conti, solo harpist, of the Metropolitan Opera, as guest speaker.

N. Y. Democrats to Meet.

The New York State Democratic Club will have a Halloween party at the Raleigh Hotel Friday night. The affair will be given in the Queen Elizabeth room which will be appropriately decorated for the season. Miss Betty Ruth and Arthur J. O'Donnell are in charge of arrangements.

WAR ADMIRAL WINS BY THREE LENGTHS AT LAUREL

War Admiral Streaks to Victory in Feature Event at Laurel

War Admiral returned to the turf wars yesterday after a five-month layoff, and won the $1,200 Churchill Handicap at Laurel in easy fashion over Aneroid, shown here three lengths behind the champion. The little son of Man o' War was not extended to take the winner's share.

Turf King Winner In Comeback Race

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Laurel, Md., Oct. 26.—Same cocky champion folks. It was War Admiral all the way. No thrills and no chills for the 2-to-5 backers. Just War Admiral in front at the first turn and War Admiral never asked for his real speed. All questions about the condition of the great colt have been answered. He carried light weight but he won as he pleased.

Making his first competitive start since injuring his leg in the Belmont Stakes last June, War Admiral showed his hoofs to Aneroid, beaten 2½ lengths, to Floradora, beaten 6½ lengths; to Bootless, beaten 7 lengths, and to four others beaten too far to mention.

War Admiral appeared as sound as a silver dollar and looked as if he would go twice as far. With Charlie Kurtsinger in the saddle, the great son of Man o' War looked, acted and ran as far as he did in winning the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness last spring. He was applauded on the way to the post and cheered as he returned to be unsaddled before an army of photographers.

Due to the fact that Kurtsinger was unable to get his weight down to 104 pounds, War Admiral picked up 2 pounds and performed as if he is ready for all tests at the arger weights.

A crowd of 10,000 witnessed the $1,200 mile and a sixteenth race which drew a field that made it appear to be a $10,000 stake. Virtually every trainer of a horse entered tried to scratch out this morning, but only Theradneedle, Bottle Cap and Tugboat Frank succeeded. Officials told the others that they would have to take their medicine.

War Admiral won only $850 today, but brought his earnings for the year to $145,470. It was his sixth straight victory of 1937.

War Admiral's comback was made over a dull track that the chartmakers termed "Good." The fractional time shows that the colt ran steady. He was clocked in 0.24 1-5 for the quarter, 1:13 1-5 for three-quarters; 1:38 4-5 for the mile, and 1:46 for the mile and a sixteenth. Kurtsinger did not pull up War Admiral at the finish, but went on to workout another quarter. Aneroid also went on after the finish.

The 3-year-old champion was his usual self at the starting gate. He applied the same tactics as in his previous races, bounding through the stall each time that the assistant starter had him close to the line. The colt refused to back into the stall even after three men pushed on him and the pressbox half-wit yelled, "Three Men on a Horse."

The start was good and Kurtsinger tiptoed the colt to the front. He shook off Dark Beau and Floradora without apparent effort. Aneroid, which had broken forwardly, was caught in a wedge going into the turn and had to be take.. up. Dark Beau and Floradora continued to follow War Admiral along the backstretch, but the colt kept opening a wider gap on them.

Swinging for the stretch, Kurtsinger came close to letting War Admiral out. The colt drew away to a three-length lead and then was taken in hand again. Aneroid saved ground entering the stretch and was being hand ridden at the finish in contrast to the easy running of his rival. Floradora was tiring badly as she went over the line.

Paget Horse Wins.

Newmarket, England, Oct. 26 (AP).—Miss Dorothy Paget's Radiant, a filly by Blandford—Resplendent, today won the Criterion Stakes, 2-year-old event over 6 furlongs, defeating Lieut. Col. Giles Loder's Golden Eagle by two lengths.

C. last season . . .

BOB GARRISON.

This Morning

WITH SHIRLEY POVICH

There isn't very much astounding in the statement that the veriest plater, given a sufficient pull in the weights, could show his heel plates to Man o' War on the day that turf champion was at his best. Because it's an old axiom of the race track—that weight is the great leveler. And now, having drawn that moral again, we leap gayly from the turf to the prize ring.

POVICH

Pete Sarron and Homicide Henry Armstrong will both enter the ring at Madison Square Garden Friday night so close to the featherweight limit of 126 pounds that an extra glass of water would probably send both of 'em over the limit. They will be evenly weighted—yet they will be unevenly weighted.

* * * *

And therein apparently lies the greatest reason for the belief that Sarron will emerge from the Garden proceedings with his world featherweight title not only intact but embellished by the scalp of the dusky belter from the Coast. Because, at 126 pounds, Sarron will be at almost his normal weight, while Armstrong somewhere along the training trail will have shed a half dozen pounds that may have contained his knockout punch.

* * * *

Of the pair of 'em, Sarron is the legitimate featherweight. Even when fighting abroad, with his title not at stake, the Syrian was rarely over 130 pounds. But making the 126-pound limit is a distinct effort for Armstrong and not until he attempts to turn on the heat next Friday night will it be told just to what degree weight-making has affected his punch.

* * * *

Armstrong has been in the habit of fighting at 130, 131 and 132 pounds and on at least one of the occasions when he was forced to make weight, his punch suffered seriously. That was when he fought Aldo Spoldi and had to be content with a ten-round decision despite the fact that he was recently knocking out far tougher guys than Spoldi. But that evening, at 126, Armstrong could produce no knockout punch.

* * * *

And if Armstrong doesn't carry a knockout wallop into the ring with him on Friday night, then the chances are he's a gone Henry because if the thing comes down to a decision, well, Sarron figures to be the winner. No Johnny-come-lately to the featherweight ranks is likely to outbox the crafty Sarron, who has had 12 years of professional warfare and is a master boxer himself.

If, perchance, one of Frank Dobson's football players at Maryland University should achieve such fame as to win him an all-American post, Coach Dobson will not be among those who are visibly impressed. In fact, Dobson probably will utter a derisive "humph."

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Ellen Kincaid, the young Congressional golfer, who started the season by winning the Miller Memorial event in April, put the finishing touches on yesterday when she annexed both net and gross honors on the annual Beaver Dam Women's invitation tournament over the Landover course. Miss Kincaid scored 42, 44—86, and deducted a 6 handicap for a net of 80.

The winner preferred the net award, thus the gross prize went to Helen Dettweiler with an 88, from nines of 42 and 46. Nine-hole gross awards went to Mrs. Charlotte Stern on the first nine with a 46, and Mrs. Betty Mackley on the back nine with a 4, both Indian Spring members.

Second low net went to the recent Corby Cup winner, Mrs. C. L. C. L. Miller, of Army and Navy, who shot 55, 50—105—20, 85. Three tied for third with the host club champion, Mrs. Ora Emge, winning in the draw from Mrs. H. L. Simons, Manor, and Mrs. J. O. Rhyne, Congressional.

Mrs. Emge scored 48, 45—93—7—86, Mrs. Simons 47, 47—94—8—86 and Mrs. Rhyne 50, 42—92—6—86.

Mrs. K. S. Giles, Indian Spring, won in a draw over Mrs. A. W. Tucker, Beaver Dam, for the final net prizes, Mrs. Giles scoring 46, 47—93—6—87, and Mrs. Tucker 50, 50—100—13—87.

Special high score on a hole awards went to Mrs. Albin Pearson and Mrs. Myles Stearns, of the host club, and Mrs. Roy C. Miller, Kenwood.

The winner, playing over the course where she first gained prominence in local golfing circles, shot consistent rounds in pacing the field that found the Beaver Dam layout the hardest to score on than in any previous event.

Miss Kincaid's outgoing 42 was marked by only one 6, and included a 4-5-4 start. She finished well on the second nine, 5-3-5, to pace the field by 2 strokes.

Rome, Oct. 26.—Italian athletic officials confirmed today that letters had been dispatched to the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States protesting that body's asserted "anti-Nazi" attitude.

The letters—one to the A. A. U. and the other to its president, Jeremiah T. Mahoney—were sent by the International Amateur Athletic Federation. They asked the United States to break its "athletic boycott" against Germany on the grounds that sports do not mix with politics.

Letters Polite.

Dr. Puccio Pucci, secretary of the Italian Athletic Federation, and Luisi Ridolfi, president of the Italian Federation and Italian delegate on the I. A. A. F. committee, said the letters were written "politely" and requested a reply from the United States by December 31.

The letters followed an incident last summer in which Mahoney, who bitterly opposed American participation in last year's Olympic games at Berlin, refused to sanction appearance of barnstorming American athletes in Germany.

At that time J. S. Edstrom, president of the I. A. A. F., wrote to Mahoney asking why permission was denied. Mahoney replied to the effect that he did not wish U. S. athletes to appear in Germany because of alleged Nazi discrimination toward Jewish athletes.

Ban Notification.

Dr. Pucci received the United Press correspondent in his studio today and said he had received unofficial notification from Stockholm, Sweden, that letters had been written to Mahoney and the A. A. U. "regarding the ban placed on United States athletes appearing in Germany."

"I have seen copies of the letters which condemn the A. A. U. attitude in mixing sports with politics and demand retraction of the ban before December 31. They were written in the most polite terms and deplore the affront to the German nation," he said.

Ridolfi confirmed the letters had been sent but declared he had not not see copies of them.

He said an answer from the A. A. U. was necessary before the end of the year to determine whether consideration of U. S. expulsion from the I. A. A. F. should be included on the agenda of the committee meeting in London next March.

Kelvinator to Enter Pin Team in League

The Kelvinator Corporation of this city, will be represented for the first time, in the Radio and Refrigeration Bowling League this year.

All the Kelvinator players are busily practicing for the opening game and hope to book some outside games with teams in the city. Any team desiring to play the Kelvinator Bowlers should get in touch with its manager at District 2701, between 9 and 5 p. m.

Tulsa Team's Tough, Warns Mr. Moynihan

It's Just Another Alabama, G. W. Scout Says After Watching Hurricane in Action—Looks Like Locals Will Have a Nice Evening.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

You can take it from Mr. Timothy Moynihan, who gave it to us, that this Tulsa team which comes to town Friday night to play George Washington, is a second Alabama in virtually every phase of the game. He should know, for he scouted the Hurricane last week when it bowled over Oklahoma A and M., 27-0.

Mr. Moynihan's Irish eyes were not smiling as he described the big wind in action. It was, in brief, all a hurricane should be, according to him. Maybe not as smooth as Alabama, but just as tough.

"Tey have a big, fast line, fully as big as Alabama's. There is plenty of power behind it. Lots of class and deception. They have a few good triple-threat men, and others who just kick and run, or run and pass. But whatever they want to do they have the man to do it—and well. Tulsa is a fine ball club. One of the best, I'd say."

We coughed politely. Had Mr. Moynihan been coaching long, and if so for which school?

"Well, I've seen some fair teams in my day," he admitted. "You know I did some scouting for that little school in Indiana—Notre Dame. Every now and then they play a good team."

It seemed that Mr. Moynihan should know a good ball club without it having to knock him down and step on him, like some of the boys used to do—although not very often—when he played center for that same little Indiana school.

Pixlee's big assistant was particularly impressed by the center of Tulsa's line. The Westerners play a 6-2-2-1 defense, and the guards and tackles, Tim said, were tough to get by. Oklahoma, as a matter of fact, didn't get by them. He liked the ends, Jack Salee and Jim Hays, on the offense. They're big, rangy and expert pass receivers, and not half bad defensively.

In the backfield the outstanding pair were Morris White and Tommy Thompson, who are triple-threaters and alternate at the blocking and ball carrying posts. White is the better passer of the two, but Thompson is good enough to keep the defense guessing when he falls back into the No. 4 slot.

Moynihan's report confirmed Pixlee's worst fears concerning Tulsa, which is anxious to atone for the two successive lacings it has sufferred at George Washington's hands. But the downtown board of strategy isn't going into the game unprepared. The Colonials have just got to win Friday night, and no stone will be left unturned to attain victory.

Yesterday Pixlee shifted his backfield to obtain the maximum from his men. On the offense Bob Nowasky replaces Jay Turner at fullback, the latter going to right half. Merka will play quarterback and Sampson halfback, but Sampson also will call signals. Defensively they will line up as they did before, with Turner backing up the line, which is his strong suit.

Kansas Vs. Oklahoma.

Lawrence, Kans., Oct. 26.—Ad Lindsey, University of Kansas football coach, will take his Jayhawks to Norman Saturday to do battle with the Oklahoma Sooners, whom he coached from 1927 to 1931. The Jayhawks will be out to duplicate their feat of two years ago when they upset the Sooners, 7-0, at Norman.

Georgetown Football Squad Buoyed for Annual Manhattan Game

Penn Game Is Tonic to Hoyasmen

Jasper Game Expected to Be a Typical Rousing Battle.

They have uncorked some rare old spirits at Georgetown, and are passing it around to get the boys in the proper frame of mind for Saturday's game with Manhattan at Griffith Stadium. It bodes no good for Chick Meehan's men.

Call it the spirit of '26, '27 or '28, or any other year when the Hoyas were known and respected throughout the football world as fighting Irish in every sense of the term, for it is imbuing the present team with the same reckless abandon. The spirit of '26, or whatever year it is, looks like a mighty fine tonic for an ailing Hoya eleven.

Penn Game Tonic.

But the best tonic, perhaps, was Georgetown's scoreless tie with Penn last week, which, the squad feels, marked the turning point in the campaign. By some strange coincidence (not the ruling on Penn's last-minute drop-kick) Georgetown is the first team to hold the Quakers scoreless this season, just as they are the only team that has scored on Holy Cross. This is a good omen, and the Hoyas are confident that they will be in full marching stride by Saturday.

This game promises to be a typical Georgetown-Manhattan affair, with both sides rolling up their collective shirtsleeves and digging in for an arduous afternoon. Georgetown usually is at its best against the Kelly Green. Georgetown's 20-20 tie with the Jaspers, achieved after it had left the field at the intermission trailing by 14 points, and its 9-0 victory the following year when it was supposed to lose, are vividly remembered.

Polish Pass Attack.

Georgetown, if yesterday's practice is any criterion, will spend a goodly portion of the afternoon in the air, for Hagerty spent the entire drill trying out the pass attack, and polishing up the rough spots. Urbanski, Keegin, Keating and Barabas were on the dispatching end of the passes, and the deception they employed defies description.

Hagerty is gratified by his pupils' about face, for he feels that the club will go on to bigger and better things. The Penn game bore out his contention that Georgetown has something on the ball, and he has hopes of keeping it in the proper stride. The crack that the spirit may be good, but the team weak doesn't go any more. Henceforth the spirit must be good and the team better.

Eastern Eleven Takes Inter-High School Lead by Defeating Roosevelt

Rough Riders Give Stiff Opposition

By Jack Munhall.

Eastern High's eleven swept into the lead of the interhigh football series yesterday defeating a stubborn Roosevelt team, 12-0, in the Eastern Stadium before several hundred fans.

By its unimpressive but adequate victory the Lincoln Parkers take undisputed possession of the lead which was shared by Tech. Eastern now has won three games without a loss, while Tech has won its only two starts.

The Rough Riders gave Eastern a pretty rough ride for a time yesterday, but when Eastern discovered a weak pass defense and began to work on that knowledge, the complexion of the game changed completely.

Kidwell, Kemp Star.

In the first quarter Eastern relentlessly drove down the field, with Capt. Al Kidwell and Bill Kemp bearing the brunt of the attack, but was stopped within the Roosevelt 10-yard line on four occasions as the visitors' line arose to smother line smashes.

However, seven seconds before the half, Eastern received a break which was quickly converted into the first touchdown. Bill Hammett, Rider back, gathered in a punt from Eastern's Murray on the Roosevelt 10 and advanced to the 30, where upon being tackled, attempted to lateral to Micky Beck. The ball was fumbled and Paul O'Brien recovered for Eastern on the Roosevelt 26.

Pass to First Down.

A pass, Murray to Kidwell, produced a first down on the 4-yard line and shortly afterwards another pass from Murray contacted Dick Wade, an end, in the end zone for the score.

In the third quarter Yankee Laddbush presented Eastern with another break when he fumbled on the Roosevelt 30 and Dickinson recovered. From there Eastern showed its best offense of the game. Kidwell and Kemp and Hal Speith alternated in effective fashion to move the ball on running plays to the Roosevelt 4.

After one plunge was repelled by Roosevelt's line, Kidwell picked a hole at right tackle and crossed the goal line untouched. O'Brien's placement for point was wide, as was Dickinson's for the point after the initial touchdown.

50 Amateurs Await Golden Gloves Bouts

In the same ring that has felt the shifting feet of four professional world champions since the last one, the fifth annual Washington Golden Gloves boxing tournament, featuring 50 district amateurs, will get under way tonight at Turner's Arena at 8:30.

Headed by the Merrick Boys Club and the Terminal Y. M. C. A., chief rivals for team honors, every local boys club will be represented along with several independent entries.

Merrick has entered ten battlers while the Terminal Club has registered eight prepared to throw gloves for their respective organizations as well as themselves.

The program for tonight calls for several well-matched bouts, with the going promising to get tougher throughout the course of the tournament, which is scheduled to be held intermittently for several weeks.

Boys Set Fast Pace.

Raleigh, Oct. 26.—Eddie (Little Buzzer) Berlinski and Art Rooney continue to set a fast pace in the State College backfield. They scored 19 of the 20 points State made in defeating Wake Forest, 20-0, Saturday night.

WATCH THIS MAN:— Yale's Great Clint Frank

COACH DUCKY POND AND CAPT. CLINT FRANK

Clint Misses Larry Kelley; Will He Be All-American Again?

Clint Frank, Yale's captain and all-America halfback, would rather play football than eat and his 190 pounds certainly require plenty of nourishment. "Football," says Frank, "is the greatest sport there is."

The fact that the Evanston (Ill.) Express loves football is clear. He plays it in a manner that reveals a high type of devotion to the sport. He is rated at Yale as one of the greatest backs ever to wear a Blue jersey.

The 22-year-old curly-haired Frank led the Elis last year as a junior, in yards gained, backed up the line magnificently, called plays from his halfback post and was the trigger-man on the great Frank-to-Larry Kelley passing combination.

In fact, Frank, one of the most popular students on the campus, does everything brilliantly but punt. Clint, who comes from a family of comfortable means, came to Yale from Lawrenceville (N. J.) Prep. He had been an all-Illinois scholastic halfback at Evanston High School.

A shoulder injury, now reported completely healed, forced Frank to the sidelines during the year he was in prep school and on the Yale freshman football team.

He burned up the gridiron as a sophomore and last year was rated one of the best backs playing football on any major college team in the country.

There is no doubt that Frank misses Laughing Larry Kelley, last year's inspirational leader and all-America end, but here's how Kelley felt about it when Clint was elected to head this year's team.

"Frank will make a great captain," said Kelley. "He gives everything he has in every play. Every pass that Clint threw to me was timed so perfectly that whenever I missed it was my own fault."

Frank is the modest type. He has a good sense of humor. He is better than an average student, is majoring in economics and was floor manager of the junior promenade last year.

Redskins Work Hard for Game With Dodgers

Guarding against a let-down in mental pitch, a state of affairs that has followed their every victory in the National League, the Redskins were sent through a vigorous two-hour workout yesterday at Griffith Stadium. Coach Ray Flaherty will take his squad to Brooklyn on Sunday.

Flaherty is troubled by the failure of his Redskins to maintain a consistent winning pace and pointed out to the squad yesterday that each of their defeats followed a victory of the week before.

"We beat the Giants in the opening game, and then what happened?" Flaherty asked. Answering his own question, he continued: "You know what happened—we lost to the Cardinals, a team we should have beaten. Then after we licked the Brooklyns, we lose to the Eagles, another team we should have licked. Then we beat the Pirates and were almost knocked off again by the Eagles last Sunday. That's the way it has been going. One good game, one bad one. We can't keep up like that."

Reid Meets Ingram In Arena Feature

Reid signed yesterday to meet Ray Ingram, the little blonde buzzsaw, in the feature eight-rounder on what Turner and Ahearn predict will be "one of our finest club cards of the season."

Reid and Ingram fought to a six-round draw to swipe the show on the kiddies' free luncheon card at the stadium a few weeks ago. In this match Reid proved himself to be a masterful two-fisted puncher, and Ingram, seeking a comeback after being knocked loose from his featherweight moorings by Joey Archibald last June, proved to be just as classy.

Reid's victory over DaFoe, a tough customer, has raised the youngster's stock considerably. Already to his credit are victories over such performers as Johnny Pena, Young Jack Sharkey, Frankie Terranova, Frankie Martin, by way of mentioning a few.

Now in new hands, Ingram is confident of beating Reid and winning a shot at Lou Gevinson—a goal he hopes to attain before another month fades out.

Indian to Head Week's Rassle Show.

It will be a one-hour time limit bout when Chief Thunderbird, the heap much Injun from Vancouver, engages Cliff Olsen, the Minnesota Swede, in tomorrow night's feature wrestling match at Turner's Arena.

Promoter Joe Turner yesterday decided to put aside the round by round system for his headline bout and return to the one-hour time limit. Thunderbird, who has won four straight here and is moving into the popularity Laverna Baxter once enjoyed, wanted a six-rounder.

The Thunderbird-Olsen match will be supported by some sparkling bouts. The semiwindup finds Vincent Lopez, the Mexican champion and one time world champion, meeting Karl Davis, the Memphis Mauler.

In a special 30-minute bout Hans Steinke, the German giant, hooks up with the Russian titleholder, Grandowich, who is said to be some shucks as a bone bender. Other 30-minute bouts will bring together Bill Sledge and Casey Berger and Mayes McLain and Joe Meixner.

* * * *

"Why, how any man or group of men can pretend to pick the best eleven college football players out of the 25,000 who are playing the game," declared Dobson, "is beyond me. It means only that 2,000 players are neglected for every one that is selected. This all-American business serves only to make the task of the coaches harder, to give our players a false sense of importance and I'm praying that it never hits my squad."

Anytime that George P. Marshall, owner of the Redskins, and the athletic directors of the various local colleges feel like acknowledging the patronage of the Washington football-going public, they will not have to beat down much resistance.

* * * *

There is still a crying need for dollars for the School Kids Free Lunch Fund, and a benefit game between Marshall's Redskins and the pick of the local college football players would provide many, many dollars.

One can virtually speak for Mr. Clark Griffith. Any such worthy project can have his Griffith Stadium free of charge.

* * * *

There doesn't seem to be any reason why Georgetown, George Washington, Catholic U. and Maryland cannot pool their seniors and put an all-star team on the field against the Redskins. By the time the game would be played, the college teams would have finished their seasons, the seniors on their squads would no longer be eligible for college football, and nobody's amateur status would be risked.

Mr. Marshall has said he thinks it's a swell idea.

Pimlico Special Set.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 26 (AP).—Pimlico has scheduled the $7,500 Pimlico special for the opening of its two weeks' meeting Monday. The event, 13-16 miles affair, is for 3-year-olds and may draw War Admiral.

Dobson Fears Tough Scrap With Florida

Frank Dobson, Maryland coach, whacked the old sixpenny square on the head yesterday when he said he thought Florida, which will supply the opposition Saturday at College Park, probably will be the toughest opponent the Terps encounter this year. He undoubtedly forgot the Georgetown tea-party when he brought up the subject, but Florida is still rather keen competition.

The affair will have a local angle, too, for Frank Koscis, a Florida guard—and a good one—hails from this city, having earned scholastic grid spurs at Central High School. In high school he was a fullback, noted for his line crashing ability, but a dearth of guards at the Southern institution led his coach to change the boy over, and Koscis has been in the line since.

But getting back to Dobson, he predicted yesterday that football fans in this vicinity will see no finer back this season than Walter Mayberry, senior halfback, nor a better end than Jack Maynard, a sophomore. The pair have been outstanding throughout the campaign, and against Maryland will be returning to action after an enforced lay-off because of injuries.

Mayberry is another of those quadruple-threaters who does everything but pull alligators out of his helmet, according to press releases. According to the coaches of the teams he has played against the notices aren't misleading. He really is a good man to have around—unless you happen to be playing against him.

Maynard is an excellent defensive wingman as well as expert pass receiver, or just about all he can be as an end.

Leap Nets Eastern High Needed Yardage

Capt. Al Kidwell, Lincoln Parkers' star back, takes to the air to pick up five yards and a first down in the second quarter of the game with Roosevelt yesterday in the Eastern Stadium. Eastern won the contest, 12 to 0, and captured first place in the interhigh football race.

Auto Industry May Curtail 1938 Output

Higher Costs Prevent Lowering of Sales Prices.

New York, Oct. 26.—The automobile industry at the present time is not facing particularly favorable conditions in 1938, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. In the first place, it is possible that the national income will show some recession and, in the second place, a higher price level for automobiles will prevail.

It is apparent that prices cannot be reduced to a level that will stimulate sales without a reduction in the cost of manufacture. Even with the price advances which have already occurred, automobile prices are not as high as in 1929. Present costs consequently seem to warrant a further advance in prices rather than a reduction, since costs at present are above the 1929 level.

Wage rates in the automobile plants have risen from an average of 60 cents per hour at the low for the depression in 1933 to 92 cents. The current figure represents an increase of 22.7 per cent over the average of 75 cents per hour paid prior to the depression. The average price of steel has advanced since the low for the depression to a 13.4 per cent higher level than in 1929.

Since the reducing of costs is a slow process because of labor's resistance to wage-cutting, it is apparent that lower automobile prices cannot be put into effect for some time. It will not be surprising, therefore, if high costs prevent automobile production in 1938 from attaining as large a volume is in 1937.

Extra and Regular Dividends Voted

Chicago, Oct. 26 (AP).—Stewart-Warner Corporation directors have voted an extra dividend of 25 cents a share on the capital stock in addition to the regular semiannual payment of 25 cents, both payable December 1 to stockholders of record November 5.

Consolidated net earnings for the third quarter were $542,625, or 44 cents a share, compared with $469,795, or 38 cents, the same quarter last year.

Utilities Special.

Public Service Company of Northern Illinois ordered a special dividend of 80 cents a share on its common stock, bringing to $3.80 the dividend disbursements this year.

Commonwealth Edison Co. declared a special dividend of 31¼ cents, making dividend disbursements for the year on its $25 par value stock equal to $1.56¼ a share. Both specials will be payable December 1 to stockholders of record November 10.

Inland Steel.

Inland Steel Co. directors voted a cash dividend of $1 a share on the capital stock payable December 1 to stockholders of record November 15.

B. & O. Railway Net Declines in Month

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 26.—The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. yesterday reported net railway operating income in September totaled $2,796,130, compared with $3,403,002 last year, a decrease of $606,782. Freight revenues were off $412,150 from September of last year, with a total of $12,661,825.

Net railway operating income for the first nine months of this year totaled $20,851,462, which compares with $21,146,578, a decrease of $295,116. For the period, there was a gain of $8,147,698 in operating revenues, which was greatly reduced by an increase of $7,525,646 in operating expenses.

Wheat Prices Close Lower With Selling

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—Wheat tumbled back late today and practically lost price gains that earlier rushed the market up 2⅛ cents, to around $1.00 a bushel.

Concentrated selling that was associated with reactions of securities became at the last too heavy a handicap for wheat upturns to withstand.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were unchanged to ⅜ higher compared with yesterday's finish; December, 97⅜@97⅞; May, 97½@97⅝; July, 92¼@92⅜. Corn, ⅛ to ½ down; December 58⅛@58¼; May, 59⅝; July, 60⅛. Oats, unchanged to ⅛ off; December, 30¼. Rye, unchanged to ⅞ lower; December, 74. Stocks Register Small Net Gains in Less Active Trading; U. S. Bonds Up.

New York, Oct. 26.—On the smallest sales volume in some time, under 2,000,000 shares, the stock market closed irregularly lower. United States bonds improved a little. December wheat rose an eighth of a cent to 97⅞ cents a bushel. Stocks went through alternate periods of warmth and coolness suggestive of the spring rather than of the autumn.

Opening prices were unchanged to a shade higher, after which a point or two was added to the leaders. Trading was quiet until around the beginning of the second hour, when a flurry sent prices down. Then followed a short covering rally. The best levels were well maintained until early afternoon. After that irregularity set in and in the last hour a tendency to weakness developed, but the speculative favorites, as Chrysler and Steel, were able to break out and recover from time to time, closing down 1 to 3 points.

Steady Tone.

The tone for the majority of stocks was steady to firm. At the best the leaders were up 1 to 2 points. Most of the rails fell back fractionally in less active dealings. Oils were firm with Phillips a feature. Utilities were mixed. Smelters moved against the weaker trend in metals and mines. Store stocks picked up and mail orders were buoyant at times. A few preferred stocks acted loosely. American Snuff preferred droped 5¼ points on the first sale. Preferreds of Anchor Cap, Consolidated Edison, General Railway Signal, International Paper, Youngstown, Harvester, fell 1 to 9 points at the start. Hercules Powder opened 13 points higher. It gained 8 points near the close yesterday.

Financial markets found little in the news that came as a surprise or that was calculated to exert any fresh influence on prices. The usual attempt was made through Hyde Park and Washington news channels to make it appear that the Administration really is interested in balancing its budget. In any event the outlook is especially bright for higher taxation, either to provide fresh funds for spending, mainly among the farmers, or to offset the decline in revenues that is inevitable as a result of the fall in securieies and commodities markets and the recession in business activity.

Business Recession.

All that comes as a familiar sequel to the colorful addresses made two or three weeks ago by high officials of the Government on the state of trade. Cabinet officers at that time were shading their eyes and perceiving just around the boulder down the canyon a "forward surge" in business activity this autumn. Today even the Department of Labor, with its flair for careful study of a subject, announced statistics indicating a small decline in factory employment during September. In Wall Street the side of moderate optimism on the business outlook seems to be gaining recruits; that is to say, those who look for nothing worse than a moderate business recession this winter outnumber those who think we are about to go into another first-class depression. Perhaps the halt to the stock price decline has turned the tide in business sentiment.

Promise.

The visit of Mr. Kennedy, formerly the head of the SEC, and Mr. Douglas, the present chairman, to President Roosevelt at Hyde Park appealed to some folks' imaginations. Shortly before the close of the market it was announced that Mr. Douglas might have a statement to make on the market. Few regarded that as a promise of anything particularly bullish. Mr. Douglas has made it plain enough that he was inclined to favor more rather than less regulation, and President Roosevelt already has said, indirectly at least, that the fall in stock prices didnt' worry him. Mr. Kennedy may perhaps have a different idea about the matter, but his point of view probably is that of the stock market trader rather than that of the businessman.

Those Were the Days.

Some anniversaries may be celebrated this year, but it is to be hoped that the aftermath of heavy declines in stocks will not be the same as it was several years ago. Wall Street's biggest day was on Tuesday, October 29, 1929, when 16,388,700 shares changed hands as reported on the tape. The actual transactions, including sales that are not reported, naturally were a good deal larger. The ticker tape was 89 minutes late at 2:50 and reports were completed at 5:16. Although the volume was greater, the ticker completed the job, because a larger proportion of the sales were executed in the early hours, earlier than on October 24. On the 24th the turnover was 12,880,900 shares and the ticker ran until 7:09 p. m. On both heavy days prices broke badly. Here and there 15 to 20-point declines in high priced and inactive issues were scored, but the general run of stocks fell from 2 to 10 points, or about the same as on recent bad days. On October 29 in 1929 both Telephone and General Motors closed 28 points lower.

Foreign Markets.

London, Oct. 26 (AP).—Although trading in the stock market was restricted, the tone was steady at the close. Tobacco, rayon, brewing and motors shares were in good demand and the transatlantic section was generally higher. British funds and foreign bonds moved up, while the oil and mining sections were mixed.

Paris.—The bourse closed steady, although government bonds sold under Tuesday's prices. Rentes finished slightly lower, while industrial and international securities held firm. Royal Dutch gained 130 francs and Suez Canal was up 30 francs.

Liverpool.—Wheat futures closed ½d@1¾d net higher on the Australian crop estimate, buying of Australian spot grain by millers and active demand for December futures. Bombay straddle buying and short covering in cotton futures was influenced by the rally in stocks and moderate advances were registered. Prices closed 4@6 points higher.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, Oct. 26 (AP) (U. S. Department of Agriculture).—Inquiries for some lines of domestic wools were more numerous in today's market than for several weeks. Small quantities moved at around 36 cents in the grease for fine Ohio delaines and 37 cents for staple combing lengths half-bloods.

Several low bids were received on coming medium Ohio fleeces, but were refused.

School Savings For Year Reach $14,258,790

New York, Oct. 26.—School children in the United States to the number of 2,823,246 deposited $14,258,790 in school savings banks during the year ended June 30, 1937, according to reports made to the savings division, American Bankers Association.

Of this amount $4,660,832 remained on deposit at the close of the year, the report says, while deposits increased over the previous year by $1,177,606, or nine per cent, and net savings by $930,746, or 24.95 per cent.

"The gain over last year indicates the greater financial freedom now being achieved throughout the country," says W. Espey Albig, deputy manager of the association in making the report public. "These results were accomplished by a group numbering only 36,993 more than during the year previous.

"The past five years have witnessed a great improvement in school savings. Five years ago they were suffering the shock of a business depression without precedent in our history. Fourteen of the 43 States afforded opportunity for school savings showed a greater volume of deposits than withdrawals. This year the one State with an excess of withdrawals over deposits was the exception. The complete transformation marking the past five years nowhere is shown to better advantage than in the buoyant reaction in school savings."

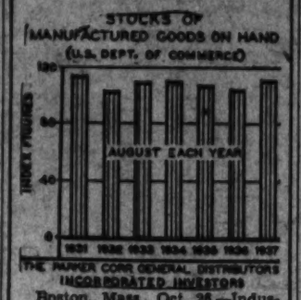
Industrial Output Maintains High Rate



Boston, Mass., Oct. 26.—Industrial production and consumption have continued at a high rate so far this year. Due to strike threats, and also the fear of much higher prices which have not materialized, stocks of manufactured goods on hand have increased somewhat since last spring but are not burdensome. The largest stock increases were in chemicals and food products, while stocks of newsprint on hand dropped.

Curb Irregular; Trading Light

New York, Oct. 26 (AP).—An up-and-down curb market closed today with irregularity in prices of leading shares.

Only mining shares, as a group, closed higher, with Newmont up 2½ at 62 and Lake Shore 1½ higher at 49½.

Among specialities, Aluminum Co. was down 5 points at 93, Great Atlantic & Pacific gained ¼, closing at 76½, Montgomery Ward, at 136¾ was up ¾, Pittsburgh Plate Glass at 89 was up ¾, Sherwin Williams was up ½ at 89 and St. Regis was down ⅛ at 4⅛.

Oils were mixed. Creole closed off ¼ at 25¼, International Petroleum was ⅛ hightr at 30⅛, while Gulf was unchanged at 43.

Utilities were down generally, although a few were gainers, including American Light & Traction. The volume was 278,000 shares, compared with 376,000 yesterday.

Daily Oil Output Increases 1,298 Bbls.

Tulsa, Oct. 26 (AP).—Daily production of crude oil in the United States increased 1,298 barrels daily during the week ending October 23 to a total of 3,622,796 barrels, the Oil and Gas Journal reported today.

Oklahoma had a drop of 5,650 barrels, to an average of 589,775, and East Texas was down 2,498 barrels daily to a total of 486,000. The total State of Texas increased 2,650 barrels daily, to an average of 1,470,442. The output of Louisiana dropped 1,160 barrels daily to 244,700.

$50,000,000 Bills 2.6 Times Subscribed

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has announced that the tenders for $50,000,000, or thereabouts, of 140-day Treasury bills, to be dated October 27, 1937, and to mature March 16, 1938, which were offered on October 22, were opened at the Federal Reserve banks on October 25.

The total applied for was $143,108,000, of which $50,065,00 was accepted.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

Heavy selling of French francs yesterday disturbed an otherwise quiet foreign exchange market.

The franc was quoted at 3.33¾ cents, down .02¾. While selling was attributed largely to international tension felt by Paris traders, who bought sterling and dollars, there were reports in New York that sizeable sums of French capital were finding their way into American stocks after the recent decline.

The pound sterling was up ¼ of a cent at $4.95⅞, while the Belgian belga, the Swiss franc and Netherlands guilder were all unchanged.

TWO BIRDS AND A STONE
Mostly it is luck if you "kill two birds with one stone," but lucky or not, salesmen in our business do exactly that. They render a real service to the buyer, save him some money and actually do him a favor, while making some money for themselves. We have learned the trick of making custom made clothes for less than you would pay for the same suit, ready made. It is no trick at all to make sales when the company back of you is nationally known, already well established and can furnish you with the names of hundreds of customers who have found the above to be a fact and not a promise. Maybe you know nothing of the tailoring business now, but you can learn easily and we are prepared to teach you—work with you in the field, furnish you some leads and otherwise make it worth your while. If you have ever sold anything successfully, on a commission basis, come and see us. We will certainly surprise you—we may amaze you with our proposition. See Mr. Pyle, room 212, 1405 G street northwest.

Bob Burns Says—

I had an uncle down home that use'ta run a dray. When he got through with a job of haulin' he'd just tell the party how much it was and he'd get his money. He never kept any books and never made out any bills because the people he hauled for didn't keep any books either. But finally a big city man come down there and got my uncle to do quite a bit of haulin' for him and when my uncle told him it'd be a dollar and eighty cents the man said, "Well, you'll have'ta make out a bill for it so I can take if off my income tax."

My uncle went home and he sat there for hours with a pencil and a piece of paper tryin' to figger out that bill. Finally he told his wife, he says," I think I got it!" And he proudly read her what he had written on the bill. It said "Three comes and three goes at thirty cents a went—$1.80."

Talleyrand Dies In Paris; Wed Gould Heiress

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Oct. 26.—The fifth Duke of Talleyrand died of a heart attack at his Paris home on Monday, his family announced today. He was 78.

He is survived by the duchess, the former Anna Gould, daughter of the late American financier Jay Gould, and a daughter, Helene, the wife of Count James de Pourtales.

The head of the famous Talleyrand-Perigord family was found dead in bed by servants. The duke returned only recently with the duchess from their Chateau le Marais, near Saint Cheron, in the Seine Valley.

Talleyrand died in his "pink palace," a luxurious mansion in the fashionable Bois de Boulogne district of Paris. The home is a marble reproduction of Marie Antoinette's Little Trianon at Versailles.

The duke was a descendant of Charles Maurice Talleyrand-Perigord, French diplomat and statesman, who figured prominently in the eighteenth century French Revolution, the rise and fall of Napoleon, and the fortunes of France for 20 years after Napoleon's abdication.

The international social event of 1908 was the marriage of the duke, then Prince Helie du Sagan, to the daughter of Jay Gould in London.

The prince, a Catholic, made an unsuccessful trip to Rome to persuade the Pope to annul the marriage of Anna Gould to Count Boni de Castellane, whom she had already divorced. When the papal sanction was not forthcoming the globe-trotting prince became a Protestant in order to marry the divorced countess.

The Holy See did not annul the duchess' marriage to the count, who sought the annulment persistently until 1915.

Notables Will Attend Third Division Party

Maj. Gen. Peter C. Harris, retired, former adjutant general of the Army; Gen. William M. Cruikshank, retired; former Secretary of War Patrick E. Hurley, and Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Wayne Chatfield Taylor are expected to attend a barbecue Saturday of the Washington branch of the Society of the Third (Marne) Division of the A. E. F., to be held on William Link's estate in Cheverly, Md.

The Washington members of the Military Order of the Purple Heart have accepted an invitation to attend the barbecue in a body. Tickets may be obtained from Richard C. Walters, 3717 Twenty-sixth street northeast.

Couple Finds Solace as Fortune On Sweeps Favorite Fades Out

Conners, Victims of Address Error, Glad News Will Stop Swarm of Salesmen Bothering Them Since Saturday.

The prospect of $150,000 breezed into the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Conner, 4800 Georgia avenue northwest, Saturday. Yesterday it breezed out again, and Mr. and Mrs. Conner are just as glad. It left them with a perfect argument for the salesman who wanted them to buy a couple of brushes.

Saturday, a newspaper reporter called Mrs. Conner to announce that she was the holder of a ticket on Epigram, the favorite in today's Irish Sweepstakes. Mrs. Conner was not particularly impressed, but relayed the news to her husband when he returned from work. He was even less impressed, because he was sure the serial number on the lucky ticket did not correspond with that on the stub they held.

It was too late to check the numbers, because the stub lay in his safe deposit box in a bank. So he and Mrs. Conner postponed their decision as to what they would do with their wealth if Epigram won and if they had the right ticket.

Monday his suspicions were confirmed. There had been a mistake in the address of the ticket holder. No sooner had he given up all thought of getting the $150,000 than the cemetery lot salesman came around.

"I told him we weren't quite ready to buy yet," he said. "I expected an undertaker to drop in any minute, so I called all the papers and told them to print a correction."

Both he and his wife are fatalists, he added, so the experience hasn't upset them. They think the disappointment may turn out to be a blessing in disguise.

Had Conner known in time, he could have directed the salesman to John Mintzner, a HOLC auditor, who lives at 1137 Allison street. Mintzner is the actual holder of the ticket.

Sweepstake headquarters had announced that the holder of the ticket lived at 1127 Allison street, a vacant house of which the Conners were the last occupants.

Sasscer Assails Funds Division

Lansdale G. Sasscer, president of the Maryland Senate, and a candidate for Governor, yesterday condemned the practice of diverting funds from the State Roads Commission budget to other purposes.

In notifying Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore, another gubenatorial candidate, and Gov. Harry W. Nice that he would be unable to attend a highway safety conference in Baltimore today, Senator Sasscer said that additional money ought to be provided to eliminate highway hazards.

Sasscer, who has led the campaign in the southern Maryland counties to obtain widening of Crain highway, added that "ticket fixing" should be stopped and suggested that motor clubs, civic groups and service clubs co-operate in a concerted drive to promote highway safety.

Roll Call Mark.

One of the few concerns which increased its Red Cross membership by more than 500 per cent during the roll call in the District was the Sanitary Grocery Co., it was announced yesterday by Edgar Morris, chairman of the general business group. A total of 1,015 employes were enrolled this year, it was said.

Massacre Artist Saves Woman's Life in West

Frank Mechau, who painted the Postoffice mural, "Dangers of the Mail," which depicted Indians scalping nude women, was credited yesterday with saving the life of Mrs. Lucille Wadsworth when she was stranded on a 2,000-foot precipice when a frail footbridge collapsed near Glenwood Springs, Colo.

The artist first ran for help. Seven hours later he was lowered on a rope to bring Mrs. Wadsworth to safety.
